STATE OF THE JUDICIARY MESSAGE

The Virginia judiciary has long maintained a commitment to provide the highest quality of judicial and administrative services to the people of the Commonwealth. Today, our courts are called upon to arbitrate increasingly numerous and complex conflicts and to do so efficiently with limited resources. Judges must consider an resolve issues that encompass a broad range of problems encountered by the members of our society. As deTocqueville aptly observed more than one hundred years ago, every issue in this country seems to become ultimately a question for the judiciary. We can only anticipate that these pressures will continue to grow in the coming years.

In order to maintain the strength of our system in these difficult times, we must evaluate each aspect of court operation and define areas requiring improvement. Identtification of our weaknesses is the first step in the development of lasting solutions calculated to enhance the judiciary's ability to meet the diverse needs of our citizens, particularly their desire for a fair, efficient, and speedy system of justice.

The presentation of this annual report on the state of the judiciary affords me a welcome opportunity to express my appreciation for your support of and involvement in past improvement projects and, as well, to suggest new means of resolving the concerns facing the judiciary. Active participation by judges, both individually and through this Conference, is vital if we are to address successfully the issues which so directly affect the administration of justice in this Commonwealth.

Even with the pressure of reduced resources, major progress has been made in the past year to rectify what has been the single greatest weakness of the Virginia court system—the lack of appellate capacity. After nearly fifteen years of study by the Judicial Council and other interested groups, including investigation of all possible alternatives, the 1983 General Assembly adopted legislation creating the Court of Appeals of Virginia, effective January 1, 1985.

The new court will hear appeals as a matter of right in criminal and domestic relations cases as well as in cases that originate in administrative agencies, including the Industrial Commission. The Supreme Court will continue to consider other civil appeals by petition and to review as of right all cases in which the death penalty has been imposed. Appeals from the Court of Appeals shall be by petition to the Supreme Court. Composed of nine judges, the new court will sit in divisions of three members at various locations throughout the state.

Creation of the Court of Appeals is the most significant development affecting the judiciary in many years. The court will increase substantially the capability of the judiciary to discharge its constitutional responsibility to operate a fair and efficient system of justice, for it will expand appellate capacity and reduce appellate delay. Now that the court is about to become a reality, the remaining task is to expand its jurisdiction to include appeals in all civil cases in addition to the categories listed in the enabling legislation. This will not only enhance the prestige of the Court of Appeals but also allow the Supreme Court to discharge its primary function of developing the common law. As the time approaches for the new tribunal to begin operation, the bench, the bar, and the General Assembly must continue their cooperative effort to develop and implement the most effective court possible.

The cornerstone of any court system is and always will be its judges. Although Virginia has been favored with a capable judiciary at all levels, it has become increasingly apparent to me that we must adopt new methods to ensure the selection of the best qualified candidates for judicial office. I am satisfied that merit selection by judicial nominating commissions offers the most promising alternative to the present method. The open atmosphere surrounding the operation of the nominating commissions will generate greater public acceptance of and support for selected candidates.

Opponents of judicial nominating commissions might argue that the commissions themselves would become political and hence fail to accomplish the objective of reducing politics in the judicial selection process. I have enough confidence in the integrity of Virginians, however, to believe that those with the appointive power, knowing of this objective of the commission concept, would appoint members who will rise above politics in the performance of their duties. I need cite only the Judicial Inquiry and Review Commission as an example of the type of commission I have in mind—one able to divorce itself completely from politics.

I admit that the General Assembly might be reluctant to surrender some of its authority in the appointment of judges. But, under my proposal, the recommendations of the nominating commissions would be advisory only, reserving the ultimate power to the General Assembly. In time, I would hope that the worth of the commissions might become so evident that their recommendations would carry more than advisory weight. Until that day arrives, however, I would be content to see Virginia take the first step toward removing the selection process from the political arena by instituting nominating commissions with purely advisory authority.

An increasingly important issue in Virginia is the need to develop a comprehensive approach to judicial resolution of matters involving the family. We presently operate under a dual system whereby the circuit and the juvenile and domestic relations district courts exercise overlapping jurisdiction in domestic relations cases. The "yo-yo" effect in the referral of cases back and forth between these two courts has proven detrimental, costly, and frustrating to the parties involved. Where complete jurisdiction over a given issue is not clearly defined, one court often has the tendency to defer to the other at the financial and emotional expense of the litigants and their families.

As the juvenile and domestic relations district courts have expanded in size and sophistication, they have become more accessible and more capable of handling family problems requiring immediate court attention. A growing number of interested persons advocate integrating all domestic relations matters into a single court in order to facilitate the resolution of family problems and to avoid the fragmented treatment of these important cases in different courtrooms.

I am aware of the serious problems attendant upon any reorganization of our court system. At the same time, I am sensitive to the responsibility to seek change where,the need for improvement is apparent. Accordingly, I will ask the Judicial Council to conduct a study of the operational and legal problems involved in the present division of responsibility between juvenile and domestic relations district courts and circuit courts in family matters. I will further request Council, on the strength of its study, to submit its recommendations concerning the feasibility of creating a family court in Virginia.

Another matter of urgent concern is the ever-increasing cost of providing counsel of indigent defendants in criminal cases. In 1965, the cost to Virginia taxpayers of providing court-appointed council totalled $491,000. During the most recent fiscal year, this cost amounted to $8.9 million. The problem, however, is not limited to the monetary expense involved; of equal concern is the quality of the representation afforded those who have the double misfortune of being poor and in trouble with the law.

The need to stem the growth of indigent defense costs is obvious. In my opinion, two approaches have merit.

First, the state must establish workable criteria for determining indigency. The 1983 General Assembly adopted general guidelines for use during the next year and requested the judiciary to study these and other criteria for eligibility determination. I urge the Judicial Council and the Committee on District Courts, with input from judges, clerks of court, and lawyers, to pursue vigorously the establishment of meaningful guidelines to enable the courts to identify those entitled to representation at public expense.

Second, I am now convinced that Virginia should proceed without delay to institute a statewide public defender system. The results to date of our pilot projects have demonstrated that public defender offices can provide representation of enhanced quality at reduced costs. Furthermore, courts currently served by public defenders cite improvements in the docketing and scheduling of cases as well as increased availability of legal representation to those unable to provide it for themselves.

Experience shows that public defender services must be supplemented by court-appointed counsel in approximately 25% of the cases, as the result of conflicts and overload in public defender offices. However, the proven success of the public defender system as the primary method of providing indigent representation demonstrates that the system should be implemented in a uniform fashion over the state, save in those areas not justifying the cost or need of a full-time public defender.

The magistrate system in Virginia continues to be a serious matter of concern. Identifiable problems within the system include difficulty in locating magistrates when needed, lack of supervision, divided loyalties of part-time magistrates who have full-time employment, and the lack of minimal qualifications for appointment. Efforts have been made over the past five years to correct these deficiencies, but the problems still persist.

In a sense, the magistrate stands in the front line of the judicial system. He or she is the first judicial officer encountered by a citizen who becomes involved with the law. The manner in which the citizen is treated by the magistrate will largely determine the citizen's attitude toward the legal system as a whole. Yet, in too many instances, the magistrate is unwilling, incapable, or unqualified to perform this important responsibility.

I believe a reorganization is necessary to improve the supervision, control, and quality of the magistrate system. Several options are available; for example, magistrate offices could be made separate divisions of general district courts, or magistrate offices could be eliminated and the functions they now perform transferred to district court clerks.

Before any plan for improvement is adopted, however, the Committee on District Courts should conduct a detailed evaluation of the magistrate system to determine whether to continue the system as presently instituted or to alter it in some fashion. At a minimum, the Committee should give close scrutiny to requirements for recruiting, screening, testing, appointing, training, and supervising magistrates. And we all must remain aware of the need for improvement in that portion of the judicial system to which the public has such great exposure.

A related point of major concern involves public confidence in the courts. It is indeed ironical that while people are flocking to the courts in record numbers for resolution of their disputes, public regard for the judicial system is distressingly low. A large part of the problem results from a lack of public understanding concerning the operation of the courts, which in turn is exacerbated by the constraints imposed upon judges in performing a didactic function from the bench. I am convinced we must find ways to better inform the public about the operation of the judicial system and to increase understanding of the judicial system's strengths as well as its problems.

I have saved until last what I consider the current most pressing concern in our ongoing efforts to maintain the stature and dignity of our courts: the matter of judicial salaries. Compensation levels must be structured to attract and retain not only men and women of unquestioned integrity but also those who by their training and experience demonstrate a capacity to rise considerably above the accepted level of accomplishment in their particular endeavors in the field of law.

In all sincerity, I submit that the present level of judicial compensation seriously jeopardizes the prestige and authority of Virginia's courts. This must be the undeniable result when many of those appearing before the courts, including lawyers, litigants, and even other public officials, earn significantly more than the judges.

We all know there is an element of financial sacrifice involved in becoming a judge, but we are approaching the point when the sacrifice is simply too great, even for the most dedicated professional. A few facts will demonstrate the plight of Virginia judges. Federal District Court judges earn 28% more than our circuit court judges and, most distressing, federal magistrates earn 12% more. Among the judges in ten neighboring states and the District of Columbia, our circuit court judges rank ninth in level of compensation. The deans of our state-supported law schools earn considerably more per year than Virginia circuit judges. Further, the average Virginia attorney earns 15% more than a circuit judge and, most relevant, the average top partner in a Virginia law firm earns 48% more.

If the trend of inadequate compensation for Virginia judges continues, I predict that in time our judiciary will be composed of three categories of persons: those who are independently wealthy, those who have been successful in the practice of law and wish to "top off" their careers with service on the bench before finally retiring, and those whose lack of success in private practice suggests that financial security is their principal motivation in seeking judicial office. I do not wish to denigrate the abilities of any of these persons, but I fear their presence on the bench would erode Virginia's traditionally excellent judicial system.

In order to remedy the financial situation of Virginia judges, several proposals may be suggested. Paying a circuit judge at least as much as a United States District Court judge or on par with the average top partner in a Virginia firm is a realistic goal. But, whatever proposal is pursued, I ask the General Assembly to ensure that circuit court judges be paid not less than $72,000 by July 1, 1985, and I have included this request in our formal budget presentation. I make the request with full knowledge of the economic condition of the State, and I recognize the necessity to remain conservative in our fiscal policy. I realize that in the atmosphere of budgetary restraint, we must establish priorities for available funds. I consider the necessity to provide funds to maintain a qualified judiciary among our top priorities.

I must pass on to you a word of serious advice I have received in discussions concerning our request for increased judicial compensation: the merit of the request is apt to be measured by the extent to which we make meaningful reductions in other expenditures, reductions beyond the across-the-board cuts imposed at the last General Assembly session. I urge the members of this Conference to scrutinize carefully all items of expenditure over which they have any control and to approve only the lowest amount reasonable under the circumstances. If we make a good faith effort in this respect, I think we will enhance our chances of success in securing relief from the burden of inadequate judicial salaries.

I have dwelt upon the problems of the court system, but what about its strengths? It can boast of many. We have capable, honest, and hard-working judges at all levels of the judiciary, dedicated to the highest principles of justice and bringing to our system a sense of stability and tradition. We have qualified and experienced personnel in our clerks' offices, devoted to providing courteous service to the public. The system is sufficiently unified to produce efficient operation but appropriately decentralized to allow independence of thought and action.

The system, furthermore, is becoming increasingly uniform. This uniformity facilitates the practice of law, enhances the opportunity to provide equal justice under laws, and reduces the costs to taxpayers.

Finally, as I travel throughout the State, I am impressed by the improvement in court facilities and equipment as well as by the implementation of technology within the court system. Since May 1 of last year, I have participated in four courthouse dedication ceremonies, and I consider these symbolic of the public's awareness of the necessity to provide dignified and suitable quarters for court officials. Although additional improvements will be required, I am confident that our courts in time will acquire the tools they need to perform their important tasks.

In summary, the atmosphere within Virginia's judicial system is one sobered by the complexity of the system's problems, yet filled with optimism for its progress. The programs and traditions established by our predecessors continue to yield benefits and lend vigor to the operation of the system. This sound foundation and an abiding faith in our own abilities allow us to look enthusiastically toward the future. With the support and cooperation of all concerned in the welfare of the judiciary, the system can be made even stronger and better suited to satisfy the demands of changing times. I invite you to join me in a cooperative effort as we meet tomorrow's challenges with confidence.

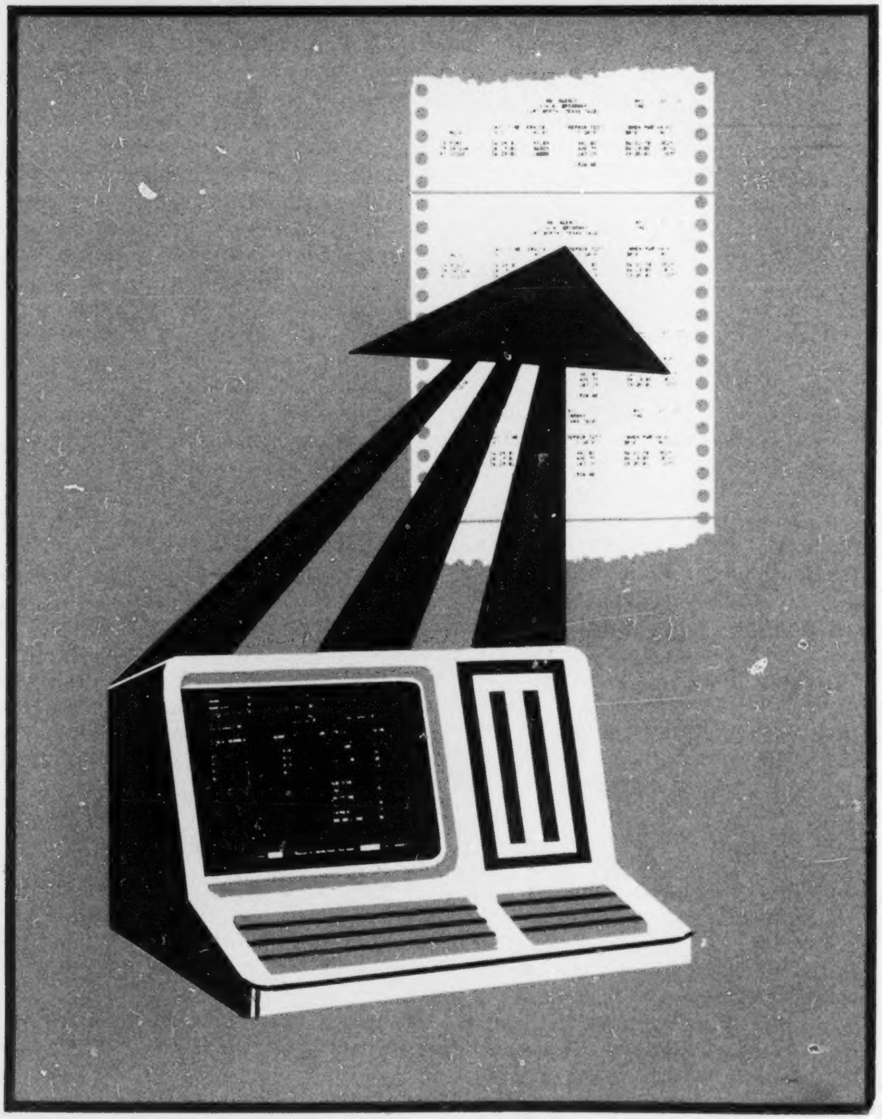
YEAR IN REVIEW



AUTOMATION IN THE COURTS

The first major step towards statewide implementation of the Courts Automated Information System (AIS) took place in 1982 with the installation of the computerized support payment system in the Roanoke City Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court.

The origins of CAIS can be traced to 1974-1975 when planning surveys indicated a desire on the part of judges and clerks to explore the advantages of automation in the courts. Several larger courts already had ushered in the "court information era" by automating their routine clerical functions to cope with an increasing caseload activity. By the latter 70's, burgeoning caseloads, the public's demand for more accurate and timely information and dwindling operating funds were problems being faced by many Virginia courts.

To move ahead, the Judicial Council and the Committee on District Courts began to think in terms of using computers, communications and information technology in general on a statewide basis to address these problems and help achieve the mission of Virginia's judicial system. In 1978, the Office of the Executive Secretary (OES) contracted with the consulting firm Touche Ross, Inc. to undertake a computer utilization study and to identify and evaluate the extent of automation statewide and specify those clerical functions most suitable to automation. The results of the study conclusively showed automation to be a cost beneficial way to remedy a myriad of problems associated with case management, records indexing, accounting and support payment activities. Further, the study noted information captured by an automated system could be shared more efficiently and economically with other local and state criminal justice agencies. The OES then, with the support of the Judicial Council of Virginia and the Committee on District Courts, began the CAIS in 1980 as one of its most ambitious projects . . . the uniform automation of 328 Circuit, General District and Juvenile and Domestic Relations courts throughout Virginia.

After acquiring the necessary equipment, recruiting and training staff, and selecting the 23rd Judicial District as a pilot site, the OES started the difficult task of defining, developing and installing four CAIS subsystems: Support Payment; Financial Management; Case Management; and Records Indexing. By October 1982, with the help of the Judicial Systems Advisory Committee and its subcommittee structure for policy guidance, the Support Payment Subsystem was installed in the Roanoke City Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court. Combining features of a case and financial management system, the Support Payment Subsystem was designed to aid juvenile and domestic relations court personnel in processing support payments.

As the Support Payment Subsystem was being installed, the Financial Management Subsystem was being readied for a February 1983 installation in the Roanoke City General District Court. This subsystem is a uniform general ledger and accounts receivable system designed to fulfill the cash management and accounting needs of both circuit and district courts.

Development of the most complex and intricate of the four CAIS subsystems, Case Management, has been ongoing since late 1981. The first installation of this subsystem is expected in early 1984 in the Roanoke City General District Court. The subsystem is designed to fulfill the basic indexing, docketing, notice generation and management reporting functions of the courts.

Responding to the complexities of creating a system that will assist circuit courts to better manage their recordation function, the OES anticipates installing a Records Indexing Subsystem in the pilot site during 1985.

Automation activities will continue throughout this decade. These efforts will result in the provision of advanced computer technology to assist Virginia's courts in the delivery of services to the public.

THE COURT OF APPEALS OF VIRGINIA

During its 1983 Session, the Virginia General Assembly approved a measure considered by many to be the most significant piece of court-related legislation passed in a decade. The new law establishes an intermediate appellate court for Virginia, effective January 1, 1985. The court will consist of nine judges. It will hear appeals as a matter of right in criminal and domestic relations cases as well as cases which originated before an administrative agency. Capital and civil case appeals will continue to go directly to the Supreme Court by petition. The new court is expected to sit in divisions of three judges at various locations throughout the State.

Approval of this intermediate appellate court is the culmination of work begun in 1971 when the report of the Court System Study Commission (I'Anson Commission Report) first recognized the lack of appellate capacity in Virginia. Composed of distinguished legislators and members of the bench and bar, the I'Anson Commission began study of the need for improvement in the appellate capacity of Virginia in 1968. In order to expand appellate capacity, the 1971 report recommended the creation of an intermediate appellate court. The General Assembly took no action on that recommendation.

In 1978 the Judicial Council of Virginia commissioned the National Center for State Courts to conduct an evaluation of the Virginia court system and to make recommendations for improvements in the future. The major recommendation submitted by the National Center for State Courts was that an intermediate appellate court should be created to expand the appellate capacity of the Virginia courts. In 1979 the Judicial Council established an ad hoc committee of judges, legislators, and lawyers to draft a specific proposal for the creation of an intermediate appellate court. This proposal was reviewed for two years by the bench and the bar and led to the finalization of a proposal for an intermediate appellate court. Legislation to implement the Judicial Council proposal was introduced at the 1982 Session of the General Assembly. The General Assembly took no action on this legislation but decided to conduct further study. Public hearings were conducted throughout the Commonwealth during the Fall of 1982 to gain input from the public, bench, and bar on this issue. Testimony given overwhelmingly supported the establishment of such a court. With the endorsement of the major bar organizations, the proposal was re-introduced in the 1983 General Assembly and ultimately adopted with amendments.

The crisis created by the lack of appellate capacity in Virginia stems mainly from the fact that the Supreme Court's caseload far exceeds its capacity. The constantly rising appellate caseload has rendered the present system unworkable. The Supreme Court of Virginia is simply unable to perform both functions ordinarily assigned to appellate courts.

Appellate courts perform two basic functions. First, it is the responsibility of an appellate court to examine the results of lower court decisions to assure conformity with existing law. In this instance, the appellate court is performing merely an error-correcting function. The cases involved here are those cases which are important to the litigants only and are not precedent-setting cases. In order to perform this function, the appellate court must have sufficient resources and capacity to give adequate review to all allegations of error, including close scrutiny of the record of the trial court. Published opinions are not always necessary.

A second function performed by appellate courts is to refine and develop the body of law. The common law in Virginia is developed through the Supreme Court's interpretation of statutory and constitutional law. In order to perform this function, the Supreme Court must have capacity to review and resolve conflicts in previous decisions, to review issues of first impression, and to re-examine settled doctrine in view of changed circumstances. This portion of the Court's responsbilities requires clear, scholarly, written opinions on major issues of law. In Virginia, one court, the Supreme Court of Virginia, is required to perform both the error-correcting function and the development of the body of law function. Each is a fulltime responsibility. Time is insufficient for one court to perform both functions and the requirements to exercise these responsibilities are different. The creation of an intermediate appellate court as originally proposed would allow such court to perform the error-correcting function while the Supreme Court would be given total responsibility for the refinement and development of the body of law.

The need for an intermediate appellate court can be demonstrated from two perspectives. First, from the viewpoint of the Supreme Court of Virginia, the statistical evaluation of the Court's workload indicates a need for relief. The Virginia Supreme Court has the highest caseload of any state without an intermediate appellate court. Thirty-two states have created such a court. The State of Virginia has the largest population of any state without an intermediate appellate court. The justices of the Supreme Court of Virginia indicate that they lack sufficient time to perform the true function of the highest court—to refine and develop the law—due to the volume of error-correcting cases which must be reviewed by today's Court.

In 1961, 420 petitions for appeal were filed with the Supreme Court of Virginia. This figure has increased five-fold in the last twenty years, reaching 2,290 in 1982. On December 31, 1982, 1,020 petitions awaited disposition. In terms of the 1961 workload, this would indicate that nearly three years' work awaited the Court at the beginning of 1983. Of greater importance to individual citizens is the delay which has been caused by the workload. The average time from filing to granting an appeal is currently six months eighteen days. For those petitions granted, the average time from filing to decision is twelve months and twelve days for criminal cases and thirty months for civil cases.

From the litigants' viewpoint, the volume creates an appearance that the Court does not give cases a full review. In 1961 there were 420 petitions filed with forty percent or 160 being granted. In 1982 only thirteen percent, or 302, of the 2,290 petitions filed were granted. The Court is, in fact, less accessible to the parties. Members of the bar indicate that not enough cases are reviewed to give clear guidance to bench and bar on the status of the law. They further complain that not enough cases are reviewed to even perform the Court's error-correcting function. Some believe that the magnitude of error necessary to grant an appeal has increased because of the Court's volume.

Finally, most citizens today express the view that all one-judge decisions should have a reasonable opportunity for review by a multi-judge court. A court system should be so structured so as to avoid error, prejudice, and human shortcomings.

The discretionary nature of most appeals in Virginia has enabled the Supreme Court to process its huge caseload with remarkable efficiency. Even with this efficiency there is a growing concern that the Supreme Court is becoming increasingly less accessible to litigants. Indeed, some have questioned whether the Court currently gives petitions for appeal the careful review required by American Bar Association standards. The expansion of the appellate capacity of the court system would not only allow more time for the development of the body of law but also assure meaningful judicial review of the merits of each case that is appealed on the basis of error.

It is impossible to estimate the untold millions of dollars lost by consumers in Virginia due to the delay in our appellate courts. When major financial transactions cannot be resolved in our court system in under two and a half years, the results are devastating to many clients. The condition of the Court's docket not only costs those individuals that are actually participating in the court system but deters other individuals from using the appellate courts. In other words, some potential litigants may use extraordinary measures costing excessive amounts of money in order to avoid having to appeal a case to the Supreme Court.

The direct costs of resolving this issue by the creation of an intermediate appellate court is 2.1 million dollars per year, beginning January 1, 1985. This represents the annual operating costs for the Court of Appeals. In addition, a one-time start-up cost of $750,000 will be necessary to renovate existing facilities and to provide necessary equipment. These costs have to be balanced against the injustice that is produced by a system without good appellate capacity. An unclear statement of existing law creates confusion in the bench and the bar and therefore more litigation. This additional litigation creates greater demands on the court system; therefore, costing the taxpayer by having to provide more court personnel at the trial court level. It also costs the individual litigants through the direct costs of attorneys' fees for the actual litigation as well as for the losses incurred in the dispute involved.

Creation of the new Court of Appeals is a major achievement in the continuing effort to improve the administration of justice in Virginia. While changes and improvements are desirable prior to the institution of the court, a significant hurdle has been cleared. Hopefully, the bench, bar and legislature can continue their efforts to develop and implement the most effective Court of Appeals possible.

THE 1983-86 COMPREHENSIVE JUDICIAL PLAN

A new three-year Comprehensive Judicial Plan designed to serve as a blueprint for further improving Virginia's judicial system was adopted by the Judicial Council in December, 1982. Approval of the Plan culminated a year-long effort involving circuit and district court judges and clerks, chief magistrates, and the Judicial Administration Committees of the Council, the Judicial Conference, and the Judicial Conference for District Courts. Substantial work in developing the Plan was done by these Committees.

Sixteen major issues were researched and considered by the Council. These included Case Management, Magistrate System Concerns, Alternatives to Court Adjudication, Jury Management, Involuntary Mental Commitments, Indigent Defense Services, Family Court System, Public Information, Intermediate Appellate Court, Alternatives to Incarceration, Support Staff for Circuit Court Judges, Sentencing Issues, Records Management, Judicial Education, Court Administration, and Judicial Salaries.

Contained in the Plan were several proposals which were submitted to the 1983 General Assembly for action. These included legislation to create an intermediate appellate court; a bill to permit district courts to retain case records originating there, and to shorten retention periods in certain cases; and an amendment to the existing law to allow direct referral of misdemeanants from the general district court into alternatives to incarceration programs established under the Community Diversion Incentive Act. In addition, a resolution was passed by the legislature directing the Supreme Court to establish an advisory committee to develop indigency guidelines for use by all courts.

As a further step in reducing the costs for indigent defense, the Plan includes a recommendation that the legislature move towards statewide implementation of public defender offices. Under such a system, private counsel would continue to be appointed to handle conflict cases and overflow cases.

The Judicial Council voted to incorporate in the Plan a proposal to establish a judicial nominations commission to advise the General Assembly in the selection of nominees to fill judgeships. This is the first endorsement of this concept by the Council. In addition, the Plan calls for salary increases for all justices and judges commensurate with the Commonwealth's ability to pay for such raises. The Council set forth the ultimate objective for salary parity between Virginia circuit and United States district court judges.

In what is considered by many to be the most significant and far-reaching proposal, Council recommended that the Chief Justice administratively establish a system of local judicial councils within each circuit composed of the chief circuit, general district, and juvenile and domestic relations district court judges to administer the activities of the judicial system in those circuits. Among the specific duties which have been proposed for the councils to undertake are the appointment of magistrates and substitute judges. Importantly, it was recommended that each chief judge have veto power over actions taken within the confines of his own specific court structure.

Also, the Plan establishes several task forces to further investigate and make recommendations on a variety of problems confronting the judicial system. Advisory groups will be appointed to study 1) methods of improving case management with particular emphasis on increasing the conveniences of the courts to citizens; 2) development of dispute mediation programs within courts; 3) creation of a family court system in Virginia; 4) revision of the current statistical caseload reporting systems; and 5) examination of jury management programs.

In addition, state funding will be sought to permit judicial education to continue at the level established prior to the cutoff of LEAA funds and to provide support staff (60 secretaries and 30 law clerks) for circuit court judges.

Further, in recognition of the importance of open communication between courts and citizens, the Council voted to undertake a project to develop goals and objectives regarding the responsibility of the judicial branch for informing and educating citizens about the court system and its functions, procedures, and services.

An executive summary of the Plan is scheduled for publication in mid-1983.

Revenue

Revenue from the District Court and Magistrate Systems are either deposited to the credit of the Commonwealth or forwarded to local Treasurers for use by the locality. The revenue recipient is determined by statutory provision. In FY 82, revenues collected for the Commonwealth increased 6 percent, reaching $32,482,641. In other words, the State collected $0.80 for every dollar expended on these two systems. Local revenues likewise increased and totaled $12,646,096.

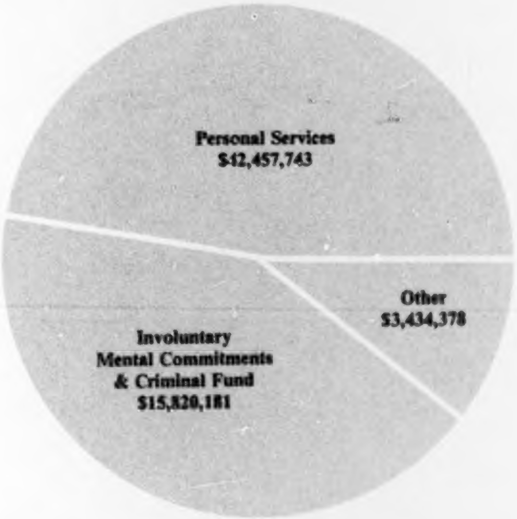
Expenditures

Expenditures for the judiciary during FY 82 totaled $61,712,302, a 16 percent increase over FY 81. The majority of these expenses were for personal services (salaries), compensation to court appointed attorneys and other related court costs (Criminal Fund), and Involuntary Civil Commitments.



Distribution of Expenditures, FY 82

Indigent Defense Services

In 1965, the cost to Virginia taxpayers in providing court assigned counsel for indigents came to $491,010. In FY 71, just prior to the establishment of the Public Defender Commission, the statewide total had risen to $1,655,788. Costs have continued to spiral upward reaching $4.3 million in FY 79 and $8.3 million in FY 82. During the last decade, these expenditures grew by a staggering 332 percent. These latter two amounts do not include sums expended by the Public Defender pilot programs in Roanoke, Virginia Beach, Petersburg, and the Augusta-Staunton-Waynesboro area. During the most recent fiscal year, the cost of these programs reached $610,558, bringing the state expenditure for the defense of indigents to $8.9 million, an 11 percent increase over the previous year. The 1983 General Assembly has directed that the Supreme Court undertake a study of the feasibility of establishing indigency guidelines in hopes of curbing the dramatic increases in these costs annually.

The result is that totals cite an expenditure of $200,000 less than the actual statewide inclusive cost of providing indigent defense services.

Involuntary Civil Commitments

Over the past four years, costs for maintaining the involuntary civil commitment process have risen an average of 34 percent. Total expenditures during fiscal year 1982 were $3,030,871, an increase of 23 percent over the previous year's figure of $2,461,535.

Of the $3 million expended in FY 82, $1.5 million, or 50 percent, went towards payment of hospital costs. This included charges for room and meals, medication, lab tests and pharmaceutical supplies.

The next largest category of reimbursements, 21 percent of the total, were made to physicians and psychiatrists. Payments made to attorneys representing persons alleged to be mentally ill accounted for 15 percent or $460,372 of the total expenditure.

The Supreme Court and the Virginia General Assembly are continuing to discuss methods of containing costs in the involuntary civil commitment fund, particularly those expenses for medical care incurred during temporary detention of patients in hospital facilities.

ADMINISTRATIVE SUPPORT SERVICES AND ACTIVITIES

As the administrative arm of the Virginia court system, the Office of the Executive Secretary assists the Chief Justice in executing the policies and programs of the judicial branch of government. The primary mission of the Office is to assist the courts in improving the quality and efficiency of the administration of justice in Virginia. Generally, this objective is accomplished by introducing effective business management practices and updating and standardizing the legal procedures utilized by the judicial system. Eight departments comprise the Office of the Executive Secretary. Significant activities and accomplishments of the Office during 1982 are described below.

The Assistant Executive Secretary coordinated the issuance of more than 500 designations during 1982. Of this number, 61% were for circuit courts with the remaining 39% assigned to district courts. The largest percentage of circuit court designations were for cases of disqualification while the bulk of district court designations fell into the category of general assistance. The use of designated judges in district courts in 1982 showed a substantial increase over 1981 and reflects in part a larger pool of retired judges from whom assignments could be made. Additionally, this department assigned 143 Medical Malpractice Review Panels, a 27% increase over 1981. As has been true since the inception of the Review System, the largest number of claims are filed in the state's major urban areas of Northern Virginia, Tidewater, and Richmond. Hospital administrators, orthopedic and general surgeons, and doctors with obstetric and gynecological practices continue to account for the largest number of panel actions.

Although the number of foreign attorney applications fell in 1982 to 106, the department processed a substantial increased number of applications for Hearing Officer positions. As of December 31, 1982, 31 new Hearing Officers (a 30% increase) were added to the list maintained by the Supreme Court and this brings to 102 the total number of Hearing Officers available to conduct administrative hearings statewide.

Operating for the first full year without federal funding, the Education Department was required to implement several cost-saving measures in order to be able to continue providing in-state educational conferences for judges and court personnel. All out-of-state education was dropped, as were the Corrections/Mental Health Tours, Evening College for Judges, the William and Mary Basic Course, Management Seminars and the Circuit Court Clerks' Conference. All in-state semi-annual conferences were held.

In the spring all conferences were held at the same facility, yielding a savings due to the volume of business. Magistrate and clerks' conferences were reduced to one day each rather than two half days. Another innovation was to begin sessions of the judges' conferences earlier in the morning. Sessions began at 7:30 A.M. and were completed by 1:30 P.M. This gave the same number of hours of education but permitted the judges to have more time for informal information exchange without extending the conferences in length. This schedule proved to be popular and is being continued. The one day conferences were rejected by the magistrates and clerks by a two to one margin and were dropped for the fall meetings. While there was some saving of expenses with the one-day conferences, it was not deemed significant enough to counterbalance the dislike of the format by the attendees. Future funding restrictions may force a return to this type of conference, but until it does, we plan to remain with the more acceptable format.

Also in line with efforts to reduce the in-state education costs, facilities at the University of Virginia and University of Virginia Law School were secured as locations for the District Judges and Clerks, and Magistrate conferences for spring, 1983.

Using these facilities we expect a savings of some $20 per day per attendee. A "worst-case" study also was completed during the year to determine the cost and feasibility of conducting all education through telecommuncations. The idea would be to hold two-hour sessions monthly with each group until the same number of hours of education has been accomplished as would have been at normal conferences. The groups would meet in central locations within a maximum of two hours driving time of the farthest attendee. This would be either a court or community college. A review of this concept by the Department of State Telecommunications indicated it was feasible. The cost of such sessions would be approximately 13-14% of what we are currently spending. While it is hoped that using such a system may be avoided, it is encouraging to know it is available if necessary.

A major project during the year was the incorporation of all the Special Magistrates into the state's judicial system. This was accomplished smoothly with an outstanding cooperative effort on the part of these magistrates and their chiefs. Training, for the most part, was done by Special Magistrate personnel in the localities affected. Help from the Technical Assistance and Personnel Departments was provided as necessary.

A total of 92 magistrates were trained and tested through the Magistrate Certification Course during 1982, with no failures. In the future there will be three courses scheduled per year. They will be held in March, August, and December. This will make it possible for all new magistrates to attend this course within their probation period, it they so desire.

The yearly Pre-Bench Orientation Program for newly elected judges was held in March. Seven Circuit, eight General District and nine Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court Judges attended. The size of this class and lack of funds precluded any substitute judge training.

The department received a grant from the Juvenile Justice Delinquency Prevention (JJDP) Program to educate our judges, clerks and magistrates on the problem of juveniles in adult jails. The $64,000 grant was expended during the Fall, 1982 conference sessions. The end-of-conference critiques showed that the objectives of these JJDP sessions were well met. Cursory examinations here indicated a noticeable knowledge increase from the presentations.

Finally, a number of education-related concerns were voiced by judges and court personnel through the 1982 Issues Survey sent as a part of the Comprehensive Judicial Plan development. As a result, the Judicial Council adopted recommendations to step up efforts to obtain funding for educational opportunities and to develop goals and objectives for the role of the Virginia judiciary in public education and information about our judicial system. Additionally, the Committee on District Courts, in late 1982, adopted some far reaching proposals for future magistrate training. These include training and testing each year to determine merit salary increases, and additional regional training for magistrates. These proposals will have a major impact on this department.

The Department of Fiscal Services provides centralized accounting, budgeting, payroll, grants, and purchasing and supply services for the Supreme Court, Circuit Courts, District Courts, and the Magistrate System. The department processed an average of 400 vouchers daily during the last fiscal year, a 25% increase over the previous year. In addition, a comprehensive Payroll Manual for use in the District Courts was written, published, and distributed to each court in early 1983.

A major project was initiated during the year to improve the quality of financial information provided each court and various state agencies. Limitations to the current Automated Budget Tracking System have necessitated the development of a new system called FIRS (Financial Information Reporting System). FIRS will be linked to the state's Commonwealth Accounting and Reporting System. Scheduled to begin operation in 1984, FIRS is expected to substantially improve the accuracy, timeliness, and usefulness of financial reports on judicial system revenues and expenditures.

More than 5,000 orders for forms and supplies were processed by the purchases and supply section with an average turnaround time of three days. Storage for all of these forms presently is located in rented quarters more than a mile from the Supreme Court building. For greater efficiency and control, a long-term objective is to move this operation to the Supreme Court building. A study was made of the feasibility of renovating the basement to house the Storeroom. Although the project was determined to be feasible, the funds to pay for the renovation are not available from current appropriations. As a result, it was decided to include the funding request in the 1984-86 budget

Staff of the Judicial Planning Department were responsible for coordinating the development of the 1983-86 Comprehensive Judicial Plan. This included compiling results of the 1982 Issues Survey, working with the Judicial Administration Committee of the Judicial Council in determining major problem areas for further research, participating along with other O.E.S. staff in preparing detailed issue papers, and assisting the Judicial Administration Committees of the Judicial Conferences and the Council in developing recommended action for consideration by the latter body. Contents of the Plan, as approved by the Council, are highlighted earlier in this section.

The department also provided fifty workload analysis reports to the Judicial Council and the Committee on District Courts. Based on the statistical data provided monthly by the circuit and district courts, these reports are used in certifying vacancies and determining the need for additional judges.

During the past two years, a key objective within the department has been to work with judicial system personnel to improve the accuracy and consistency of data obtained from the caseload statistical systems. In the fall of 1982, a committee composed of judges, clerks' office personnel, and O.E.S. staff was established and charged with the responsibility of reviewing and revising the current instructions, definitions and examples associated with the circuit court reporting system. Additionally, they are serving as a resource group to staff involved with defining the requirements for the automation of the monthly reports which is being undertaken as a part of the Court Automated Information System. Their efforts should substantially reduce the subjective areas of case counting and ultimately improve the credibility of information collected both manually and through automation.

Also in 1982, the department continued to research methods of containing costs and improving procedures in the involuntary civil commitment process and the criminal fund. In the area of involuntary commitments, staff assistance was provided to a legislative committee studying civil commitments. That study resulted in the introduction of legislation in the 1983 Session which would have substantially changed the process. While favoring some components within the legislation, a number of district court judges and clerks objected to the bill overall due to anticipated increases which would result in the costs of such commitments as well as the fact that some procedures were considered too cumbersome. Although the bill was not enacted, this issue will likely be raised again in 1984.

Increases in costs for court appointed counsel have resulted in the criminal fund becoming a significant area for inquiry by the legislature. During 1982, the department assisted the Executive Secretary in submitting a report to the General Assembly detailing expenditures and potential cost-saving measures, including expansion of the public defender system. In addition to promulgating guidelines for the court system to utilize in determining indigency, lawmakers also requested that the Supreme Court study the feasibility of developing standards for indigency. The department will be working on this effort in 1983.

The Legal Research Department undertook several projects to assist courts in responding to legislation enacted in the 1982 Session of the General Assembly. These included developing procedures and forms to implement (1) revised criminal procedures on competency to stand trial: (2) court-ordered wage assignments for support payments; and (3) new provisions in the case processing and sentencing of persons convicted of driving while intoxicated.

In response to concerns regarding alleged deficiencies in the criminal procedures regarding both the competency to stand trial and process the examination to determine the defendant's mental state at the time of the commission of the offense, the 1982 Session of the General Assembly enacted Chapter 653 which radically altered the procedures used in both matters. The department provided post-enactment assistance to the district courts by providing detailed procedures to the district courts and designing district court case processing forms for these procedures. In addition, the Forms Advisory Committee participated in the development of new forms to implement the procedures as required by this legislation.

One of the major problems encountered in support cases has been the lack of mechanisms to insure the consistent, timely payment of period support obligations. The impact of the lack of such mechanisms includes deprivation of the obligor's dependents of needed assistance, creation of additional court workload through repeated support enforcement proceedings, and the placement and retention of more individuals on the welfare rolls. In an effort to reduce the private suffering and public costs because of these support payment problems, Chapter 298 of the 1982 Acts of Assembly was passed. This legislation provided for court-ordered ongoing wage assignments to insure payment in full of the support obligation of an individual. This technique was patterned after a similar administrative wage assignment which was being successfully used in welfare cases. After its enactment the department, in conjunction with the Technical Assistance Department, prepared procedures for implementing this legislation. Working with the Forms Advisory Committee, this department designed forms to permit the district courts to implement this legislation and, through the use of statewide uniform forms, to reduce confusion to employers which could be caused by the use of a myriad of different forms.

The 1982 General Assembly also responded to the growing public concern about the trial of drunk drivers by enacting Chapter 301 of the 1982 Acts of Assembly. This legislation drastically changed the trial process of such cases and the sentencing provisions for motorists convicted of driving while intoxicated.

Providing operational instructions and designing appropriate forms for implementing these statutory changes was complicated by these factors: the legislation was a complex compromise bill, there was initial confusion and conflicting interpretations of the precise meaning of the legislation, and the subject area of driving while intoxicated is controversial. A two prong approach was used to address this matter. First, an ad hoc inter-agency working group was created which consisted of representatives of the Division of Motor Vehicles, Department of Transportation Safety, the Office of the Attorney General, and this department. Second, an informal group of district court judges supplemented the Forms Advisory Committee and this department to create a judiciary working group. Through the use of these groups, court procedures and an order form were developed to implement these revised statutory provisions while resolving potential interagency conflicts.

Beginning in the last decade, courts have become increasingly aware of the impact of the form, retention and disposition character of court records on court operations. Pursuant to Va. Code § 16.1-69.51, the Office of the Executive Secretary, with the approval of the Committee on District Courts, has previously implemented uniform dockets and case forms in district courts to make court operations more efficient, thereby reducing personnel costs per case, and to reduce printing costs through volume puchases. In addition, Va. Code § 16.1-306 mandated that juvenile and domestic relations district courts expunge their records in delinquency cases and children in need of services (CHINS) cases beginning in 1979, thereby reducing the need for additional filing equipment and storage space which is provided by localities which a clerk's office serves.

While these efforts were beneficial, the lack of a comprehensive, consistent package of statutory provisions governing all district court records has been recognized since 1976. Since that time, this department has been working with various district court clerks and judges to study existing requirements and to develop the desired district court records legislation. In November of 1982, the final draft of the proposed legislation was approved by the Committee on District Courts for introduction in the 1983 session of the General Assembly. The legislation, which shortens certain retention periods and provides for district courts to retain certain records originating in those courts, was enacted.

In addition, the Department continued the Court Legal Research Assistance Project for circuit court judges.

The Department of Management Information Systems identifies, develops, maintains and administers automated systems in support of the Virginia judicial system. During 1982, the department's continued thrust was with the development of the Courts Automated Management Information System (CAIS). The CAIS has been divided into four subsystems—Financial Management, Support Payment, Case Management, and Records Indexing. Each is being developed in-house on a time phased schedule. The Financial Management and Support Payment development efforts have been completed and these systems were implemented in the Roanoke City General District Court and the Roanoke City Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court, respectively. The Case Management requirements document has recently been approved by the Judicial System Advisory Committee and the design and development of the software is now underway. The requirements definition stage for the Records Indexing subsystem is scheduled to being later this year.

The implementation program for the CAIS as approved by the JSAC calls for 18 courts to be implemented during the current biennium. Two courts in the pilot region (the 23rd Judicial Circuit) have already begun automated operations and the remaining six will complete implementation before mid-summer. The next phase of the CAIS program will include an additional 48 courts during the next biennium, bringing the total number of courts automated by June of 1986 to 66. Additions to the CAIS network beyond that point will be recommended based upon studies conducted under the auspices of the Judicial Systems Advisory Committee.

In addition to monitoring/maintaining the eight automated systems within the Office of the Executive Secretary, the department is currently working with the Personnel and Fiscal Services Departments to develop a new personnel/payroll system (PAL), fiscal reporting system (FIRS), and a historical inquiry system.

In response to the General Assembly's decision not to approve additional positions for the district courts through Fiscal Year 1984, the Personnel Department developed a decentralized personnel management plan. This approach identified various staffing options available to courts by providing judicial court staff with three tools to be utilized in human resource allocation. First, detailed staffing analyses were conducted on both the court and district levels. Utilizing caseload data, courts were categorized as to their ability to handle current and projected workloads given their existing level of staffing.

The Clerks' Advisory Committee and O.E.S. staff designed the "District Court Staffing Criteria Checklist" which was intended to give consideration to workload factors not indicated by the caseload analyses. This second tool provided a mechanism to identify differences and similarities between courts.

The third tool was the development of a new wage allocation procedure. This method, which will be implemented over the next year, will provide greater flexibility in meeting personnel needs at the district level. The allocation, which is administered by the Chief Judges, is based on three criteria. The first being whether the Clerk's Office had two or fewer employees, and second, if the new cases per employee figure ranked at or above the third quartile. It was felt that absences have the most significant impact in offices which are small (two people or fewer) and/or operating at peak capacity. The workload is already heavy enough in offices where the "New Cases per Employee" are at or above the third quartile, that the remaining staff cannot regularly absorb additional responsibilities due to absences. Those offices which are not covered by either of these circumstances (larger than two people and processing "New Cases per Employee" below the third quartile) have the greatest ability to absorb workload changes caused by normal absences. Thirdly, included in the District allocation is a per person appropriation.

Regional training seminars were conducted with judges and clerks throughout the Commonwealth. Participants reviewed existing objective criteria used by the Committee on District Courts in making staffing decisions. Court personnel will utilize this criteria in conjuction with the three management tools in making various staffing decisions within their respective districts, such as the distribution of wage funds or the sharing of personnel between courts.

In addition to its on-going responsibilities of providing personnel services to the judiciary's 1,700 employees, the department participated in the development of the requirements for a new automated personnel and payroll system. This system's major components will include personnel files, position files, and clerks' and magistrates' offices files. Records will be maintained on an individual basis and will provide input for various management reports. System development and implementation will continue in 1983.

By establishing a Southwest Regional Office and employing an additional field assistant, the Technical Assistance Department expanded it operation during 1982. This staff member will serve the magistrates and district court clerks in the 21st, 22nd, 23rd, 27th, 28th, 29th, and 30th judicial districts. This expansion will allow a significant increase in the frequency of field contacts to all courts. In addition, a new type of technical assistance visit was added due to requests by a number of courts. Management Analysis visits are now conducted allowing the judge(s), clerk, and technical assistant to sit down as a team and undertake a comprehensive review of concerns such as needed improvements in office design, management issues, public relations with litigants and/or the Bar, and problems with other court-related agencies. Staff from the Personnel Department often join in these discussions. Management review visits typically take a week due to their more concentrated nature. The Department then provides a thorough report with recommendations to the courts. Five such visits have been undertaken with judges and clerks alike reporting favorable comments concerning the results.

A comprehensive updating of the Magistrate Manual was completed reflecting statutory changes and new fees on traffic infractions. Also new Magistrate Monthly Reporting Forms were designed for easier collection and usage of these statistics. The Court Appointed Attorney Fees Pilot Program was expanded to cover a six month period on the 1st, 8th, 20th, 22nd, and 30th Judicial Districts to determine the cost per charge and per hour for court appointed attorneys in District Courts. The results indicated the average costs per hour to be $33.13. The survey was based on the submission of special time sheets involving 1,808 charges.

A new accounting system was designed to allow for more frequent deposits of Commonwealth revenue. The district courts had been depositing Commonwealth revenue on a monthly basis. In order to speed up the cash flow into the state treasury, a weekly deposit system was developed. The Technical Assistance Department conducted twenty-eight mini-regional seminars across the state to teach the new method to over two hundred clerks and court accountants. The new system was implemented January 1, 1983.

The Basic Training Course for newly appointed clerks was developed and implemented during 1982. This course is designed to give a complete introduction to the district court system through lecture and workshop experience. It is designed for clerks of district courts only and, although directed towards new clerks, tenured clerks are allowed to attend if they feel the need for a refresher course.

JUDICIAL POLICY MAKING BODIES

Judicial Council

Established in 1930, the Judicial Council is charged with the responsibility for making a continuous study of the organization, rules, and methods of procedure and practice of the judicial system of the Commonwealth. It is responsible also for examining the work accomplished and results produced by the system and its individual offices and courts. A report of the proceedings and recommendations of the Council is made to the General Assembly and to the Supreme Court on an annual basis.

The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court is presiding officer for the Council whose membership includes five circuit court judges, one general district court judge, one juvenile and domestic relations district court judge, two attorneys qualified to practice in the Supreme Court and the Chairman of the Committees for Courts of Justice in the Senate and House of Delegates. Council members are appointed by the Chief Justice and serve for four years, or during his pleasure.

The Council is charged with the obligation to study the need for additional circuit court judges. In 1975, procedures for determining the need for additional circuit court judges and for changes in circuit lines were altered by the Council. Prior to this change, cases commenced and population were the primary guidelines. Recognizing the inadequacies of total reliance on these criteria, the Council adopted a dual analysis mechanism.

As the administrative office for the judicial system, the Office of the Executive Secretary was advised that in addition to providing a thorough statistical evaluation of the judicial workload, visits should be conducted to each circuit requesting an additional judge. Court dockets should be reviewed and judges, clerks, commonwealth attorneys, members of the bar, and other such individuals having a knowledge of the court system in that circuit should be interviewed. The Council concluded that additional judges should be authorized in a circuit whenever all procedures short of adding a judge should be exhausted; whenever the administrative efficiency of the court was at a high level; and whenever the existing judges were working to maximum capacity and yet were still unable to handle the caseload in the expeditious fashion desired by the bar and general public. The only way to assure the sound, effective and speedy administration of justice was to insure that sufficient judicial resources were available.

Judicial Conference of Virginia for District Courts

The Judicial Conference of Virginia for District Courts has similar responsibilities for the district court system as has the Judicial Conference of Virginia for the circuit courts. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court also serves as president of this Conference. Membership includes all active judges of the general district and juvenile and domestic relations district courts. Honorary members are the Attorney General, Chairman of the Courts of Justice Committees of the Senate and House of Delegates, the president and secretary of the Virginia State Bar and the president and secretary of the Virginia Bar Association. Seven district court judges are elected by the Conference to serve on the Executive Committee. The 1981 General Assembly added the presidents and secretaries of the Virginia Trial Lawyers Association and the Virginia Association of Defense Attorneys to the honorary membership of this Conference.

The Conference meets at least once a year to consider means of improving the administration of justice in Virginia. The Conference's committee structure is similar in duties and responsibilities of those of the Judicial Conference of Virginia. A list of the committees and their membership follows the membership listing of the Committee on District Courts.

THE SUPREME COURT

The Supreme Court of Virginia experienced a busy year in 1982 as it settled into its new quarters at the refurbished Federal Reserve Bank Building. In spite of its much improved quarters, the Court ended the year with a net increase of petitions filed over 1981 and with the prospect of more delay for the appellate process due to its expanding workload.

The beginning of 1982 saw the retirement of one of the Court's members, Justice Albertis S. Harrison, Jr., who had served since October 23, 1967. A former Governor and Attorney General of Virginia, Harrison continues on a part-time basis to assist the Court in reviewing petitions and in writing Opinions. Judge Charles S. Russell became a member of the Court on March 1, 1982. He had served as a circuit court judge in Arlington County since 1967.

The Supreme Court's administrative office, the Office of Executive Secretary, celebrated its thirtieth birthday in 1982. Created in 1952 to assist in improving the administration of justice in Virginia as an arm of the Supreme Court of Virginia, the Office of Executive Secretary functions today in nearly every area of the state's judicial system. Among its primary areas of concern are payroll, record keeping, technical assistance, judicial education and computer support.

The year 1982 also marked the tenth anniversary of the adoption of the reforms recommended by the Virginia Court System Study Commission. The General Assembly adopted most of the changes in 1972, and they have taken on form during this last decade. The Court Reorganization Act has resulted in numerous changes and an administrative structure aimed at modernizing the previous part-time system. Pursuant to Article VI, § 4 of the Virginia Constitution, the Chief Justice is designated as administrative head of the Virginia Judicial System.

The Supreme Court is responsible for the overall supervision of the entire Virginia Judicial System. Even though the administrative demands on the Virginia Supreme Court are continually increasing, its primary mission remains that of reviewing decisions of lower courts in which appeals have been allowed. These decisions fall into two basic categories.

1. Decisions of lower courts in which questions of proper application of statutory or common law are raised, and
2. Decisions of lower courts based on the question of constitutionality.

The Supreme Court of Virginia is the court of last resort in the Commonwealth's judicial system. The Virginia Constitution of 1971 dropped the words "of Appeal" from the Court's title but left the number of justices (7) unchanged, subject to a provision permitting enlargement to a maximum of eleven.

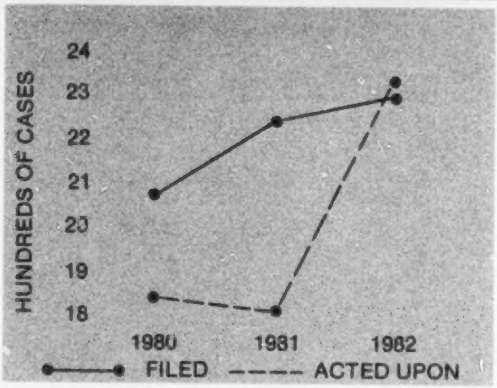
The Supreme Court of Virginia has original jurisdiction in cases of habeas corpus, mandamus and prohibition, and in the matters of judicial censure, retirement and removal (Article VI, § 10; Virginia Code §§ 17-96 and 17-98; and Rule 5:5). All other jurisdiction is appellate (Article VI, § 1). The Court has jurisdiction to hear all appeals, both civil (Virginia Code § 8.01-670) and criminal (Virginia Code § 19.2-317) from the circuit courts, appeals from the State Corporation Commission (Virginia Code § 12.1-39) and the Industrial Commission (Virginia Code § 65.1-98). Written Opinions are required.

The Constitution provides that no decision shall become the judgment of the Court except on the concurrence of at least three justices, and that no law shall be declared unconstitutional under either the Constitution of Virginia or the Constitution of the United States unless a majority of the justices concur (Virginia Constitution, Article VI, § 2 and Virginia Code § 17-94.)

Justices are selected from the state at large. All seven justices and senior justices have offices in the Supreme Court Building. The justices who reside elsewhere in the state also have offices in their local communities. A retired justice may be designated a senior justice, but there may be no more than two senior justices at any time (Virginia Code § 17-95.1).

Petitions Filed: At the close of 1982, the Clerk of the Supreme Court reported that 2,290 petitions for appeal and original jurisdiction had been filed during the year. The Court's caseload increased by 30 petitions over the number filed in 1981. The continued growth in the workload for the Supreme Court is best demonstrated by the fact that there has been an 83 percent rise in the number of filings since 1973.

SUPREME COURT
PETITIONS FILED AND ACTED UPON
1980-1982



Cases Acted On: Increasing significantly by 27 percent, the Court acted on 2,318 cases. Of the 1,895 appellate cases, 724 were civil, 1,093 were criminal, 74 were habeas corpus involving civil cases and 4 represented granted appeals remanded to trial courts. This 1982 activity represented increases of 28 percent (civil), 23 percent (criminal), and 85 percent (habeas corpus) in the number of appellate cases acted on.

Original jurisdiction cases grew by 102 and totaled 423 for 1982. Writs of Habeas Corpus accounted for a majority, 75 percent, of these actions; Writs of Mandamus represented 22 percent; and Writs of Prohibition amounted to 3 percent of the total.

The Court granted 302 petitions during the year, up from the 271 granted in 1981. Of the cases disposed of during 1982, 178 were by Written Opinions and 80 through Orders. Of the cases decided by Opinion, 52 percent affirmed the judgment of the lower court.

THE CIRCUIT COURTS

The Circuit Court is the only court with general jurisdiction in the Commonwealth of Virgina. During 1982, 116 judges, 122 locally elected clerks and approximately 725 support staff served the thirty-one judicial circuits. The 1983 General Assembly created four additional judgeships. The Eighth, Twenty-Fifth, Twenty-Sixth and Twenty-Seventh Judicial Circuits will receive these authorizations effective July 1, 1983.

The Circuit Court has concurrent jurisdiction with the general district court in civil cases involving claims between $1,000 and $7,000 with the exception of attachments in which the claim must exceed $20,000. They have exclusive jurisdiction over all equity matters such as adoptions, divorces, and land title disputes.

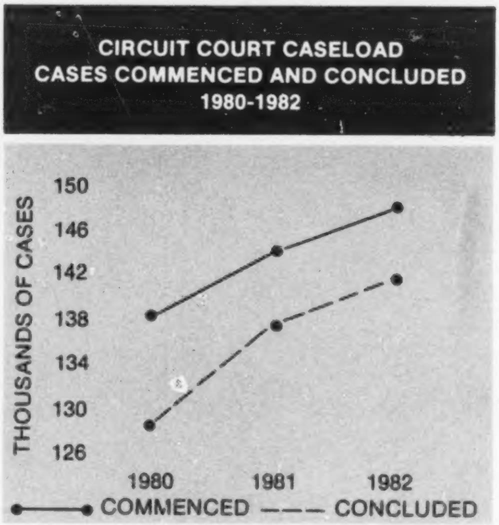
Circuit Courts have jurisdiction of proceedings by quo warranto annd to issue writs of mandamus, prohibition, and certiorari to all tribunals. They must also issue writs of mandamus in all matters or proceedings arising from or pertaining to the actions of the board of supervisors or other local governing bodies. The appellate jurisdiction extends to all cases, civil and criminal, in which appeal may, as provided by law, be taken from the judgment of any inferior tribunal.

Cases Commenced: Circuit courts reported commencing 148,974 cases during the year, a modest 3 percent increase over 1981's caseload. During the last two decades, the commenced caseload of the courts has grown by 128 percent, while the number of authorized judgeships has risen from 75 in 1963 to 116 in 1982, a 55 percent increase.

On an average, each judge commenced 1,284 cases in 1982. In rural circuits this mean was 1,206 while urban judges averaged 1,302 commenced cases each. The year 1982 marked the fourteenth straight annual increase in caseload per circuit court judge.

Cases Concluded: At the close of 1982, 142,355 cases were concluded by the courts. This 3 percent increase paralleled the growth rate of filings. Despite this rise, the number of concluded cases was less than the number of commenced cases. This has been the trend since 1966, and therefore, the number of pending cases has constantly increased.

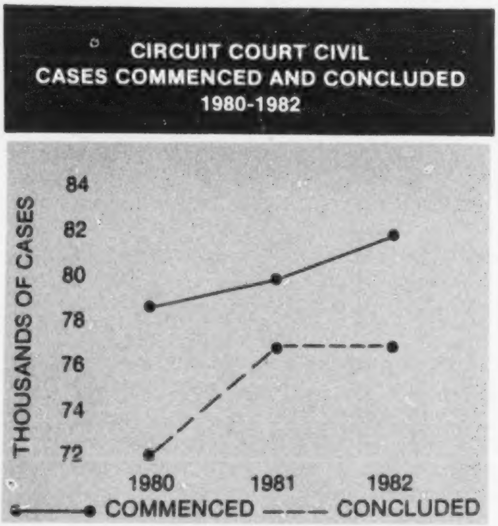
Approximated at 145,706, the circuit court total pending caseload does not necessarily indicate a burden upon court time, nor does it reveal significant delay in case processing. Whether out of preference or strategy, some cases simply "mature" on the docket until a more favorable time. These cases may not represent an immediate demand on judicial resources but merely a deferred normal expenditure of bench time. All court caseloads contain a natural level of pending cases.



CIRCUIT COURT CASELOAD
CASES COMMENCED AND CONCLUDED
1980-1982

Civil:

Increasing modestly by two percent, civil filings numbered 82,111 for 1982. The Eleventh Judicial Circuit registered the greatest change, growing by 14 percent. The largest percentage decline was noted in the Twenty-Fifth, a drop of 7 percent in their commenced civil caseload. Last year, eleven of the state's 31 circuits reported civil filings below their 1981 level.



CIRCUIT COURT CIVIL
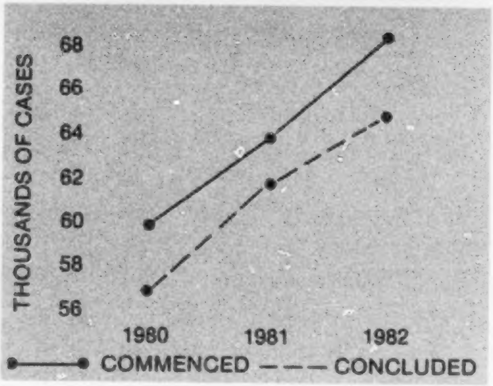
1980-1982

The statewide civil caseload reflected a distribuution weighted more heavily with equity cases (62%) than law cases (38%). Of the total civil caseload, 90 percent were placed on the docket as an initial filing; 7 percent were recorded as supplemental petitions, and 3 percent were initiated due to other circumstances.

Concluded cases totaled 77,438 for the year. Of this number, 26 percent were settled or dismissed prior to trial; 21 percent were concluded as a result of a decree on depositions; and in 16 percent of the cases, a judgment was entered following the judicial review of a Commissioner in Chancery's report and recommendation. Three-fourths of the concluded civil cases were terminated within twenty-four months of filing—70 percent of which reached disposition within the first twelve months.

Criminal:

In 1982, 66,863 criminal cases were initiated in Virginia circuit ditional 2,500 cases courts, over the previous year's figures. Nineteen circuits reported increased caseloads with the most significant changes occuring in the First and Sixth Judicial Circuits. These areas noted changes of 60 percent and 42 percent, respectively. Of the twelve circuits experiencing decreases, the largest declines were noted in the Twenty-Fifth (-19%) and Tenth (-14%) Circuits.



CIRCUIT COURT CRIMINAL CASES COMMENCED AND CONCLUDED 1980-1982

Felonies continued to account for 63 percent of the criminal commenced cases. With 42,383 felonies initiated in 1982, felony charges per thousand residents rose from 5.7 in 1978, to 6.8 in 1980, and to 7.9 in 1982. Misdemeanor cases increased by 951 during the past year and were reported at 24,141.

Misdemeanor appeals from the general district courts rose to 18,633 in 1982, while juvenile and domestic relations district courts appeals fell slightly to 2,326.

Circuit courts reported concluding 64,917 criminal cases. Of this number, 43 percent reached disposition by a guilty plea prior to trial; 25 percent were concluded by judge trials with witnesses; and 14 percent were nol prossed. Disposition was achieved within five months of filing in 83 percent of the concluded criminal cases.

Jury Data:

Jury involvement remained constant with the previous year. Circuit utilized juries in 1,764 civil actions and 3,843 criminal cases. The distribution of cases terminated by a jury were: 31 percent law; 1 percent equity; 56 percent felony; and 12 percent misdemeanor.

The number of days Virginia judges spent presiding over jury trials fell from 5,762 in 1981 to 5,460 in 1982. Law and felony cases each occupied 46 percent of the total jury days.

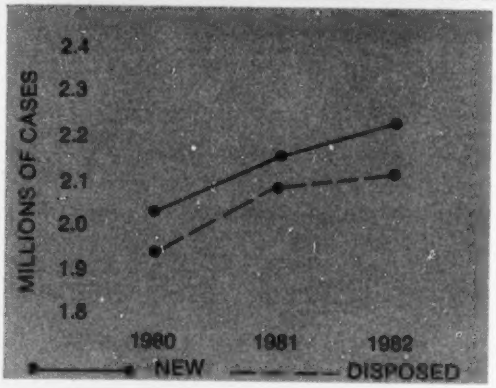
THE DISTRICT COURTS

The Virginia District Court System is composed of 206 courts classified as either general district, juvenile and domestic relations, or combined. During 1982, 168 judges served in the Commonwealth's 32 judicial districts and were supported by 893 clerk's office personnel. The 1983 General Assembly authorized an additional general district judgeship for the Second Judicial District. This position will become effective on July 1, 1983.

General district court cases are categorized as civil, criminal or traffic. The court's civil jurisdiction extends to suits involving amounts of money up to $7,000 and in attachment cases, $20,000. Cases in which a person is charged with a misdemeanor are decided in this court; however, only preliminary hearings are held for felony cases. Jurisdiction extends also to all cases in which an adult is charged with a traffic offense.

Juvenile and domestic relations district courts have exclusive original jurisdiction over all matters and proceedings involving: delinquents; juveniles accused of traffic violations; children in need of services; children who have been subjected to abuse or neglect; adults accused of child abuse or of offenses against members of their own family; adults involved in disputes concerning support, visitation or custody of a child; abandonment of children; foster care and entrustment agreements; court-ordered rehabilitation services; and court consent for certain medical treatments.

DISTRICT COURT CASELOAD
NEW AND DISPOSED CASES
1980-1982



New Cases: Virginia's district courts reported that 2,231,858 new cases were initiated during 1982. Growing by 3 percent, the rate of increase, as captured by the current uniform docketing system, appears to be stabilizing from a high of 9 percent recorded between 1979 and 1980. The 98.75 judges of the general district courts handled 91 percent of the districts' new cases. The balance of 210,131 new cases were heard by the 69.25 juvenile and domestic relations district court judges.

Disposed Cases: During the past year, slightly more than 2.1 million cases were concluded by the district courts. The rate of growth of these cases mirrored the change in new cases, 3 percent. Statewide, 0.95 cases were concluded for every new case initiated.

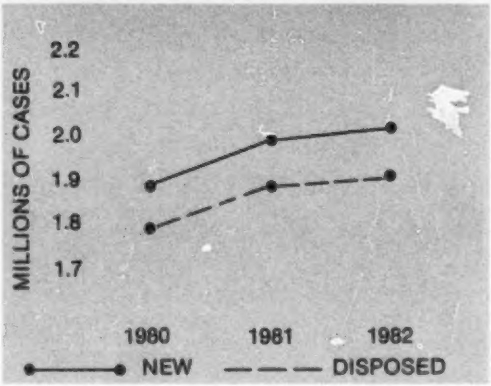
General District:

By the close of 1982, 2,021,727 new cases, 2,394,764 hearings, 2,907,666 transactions and 1,934,864 dispositions were reported by the general district courts. This caseload reflected an increase of 51,806 or 2.6 percent in new cases and an additional 75,347 hearings. The 1982 ratio of hearings to new cases was 1.18, consistent with prior years.

Increasing caseloads were noted in 22 districts, with the greatest change reported as a 14 percent growth in the Sixth's new caseload. Of the districts reporting declining numbers, the Tenth noted the largest decrease (-8.5%).

Judges of the general district courts each averaged 20,473 new cases and 24,251 hearings. Urban judges averaged 23,474 new cases and 29,003 hearings while the rural judges' measures were 17,320 and 19,256, respectively.

GENERAL DISTRICT COURT NEW AND DISPOSED CASES 1980-1982



Criminal cases numbered 351,041 for the year and represented 17 percent of the total general district caseload. The statewide average criminal caseload per judge for 1982 was 3,555 new cases and 6,655 hearings, an increase from 1981 when the measures were 3,391 and 6,244, respectively.

With the number of criminal hearings growing to 657,229, the 1982 hearing per case ratio rose to an average of 1.87 hearings per each new criminal case—the highest ratio within the general district caseload. Hearings waived prior to court grew significantly by 27 percent and totaled 36,694, accounting for 10.5 percent of the new caseload.

New traffic cases numbered 1,046,786 for the last year, a 3 percent rise from 1981. These case constituted the bulk of the general district caseload, 52 percent. The courts also reported 988,589 hearings, 1,368,527 transactions, and 1,017,180 dispositions. The increase in new traffic cases was accompanied by increases in the number of hearings (3% or 32,854), transactions (4% or 54,848), and dispositions (4% or 41,430). Hearings waived totaled 379,938, up 6 percent from 1981. The ratio of hearings to new traffic cases of 0.94 was indicative of the large number of traffic hearings being waived when compared to the 1977 measure of 1.14. The ratio of dispositions to new cases was 0.97 and consistent with previous years figures.

On the average, Virginia's general district judges presided over 10,600 new traffic cases and 10,011 hearings during 1982.

The growth in civil cases in 1982, 0.5 percent or 3,164, was significantly less than the previous increases of 8.3 percent in 1981 and 18.9 percent in 1980. For the year, civil new cases totaled 623,900 with 748,944 hearings and 579,599 dispositions being reported. The majority (65%) of the 845,216 civil transactions involved suits in debt. Decreasing from 1981 levels, unlawful detainers and garnishments numbered 120,380 and 98,904, respectively.

The state average of new civil cases per judge increased to 6,318 and hearings per judge rose to 7,584.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations:

In 1982, there were 210,131 new cases, 404,194 hearings, 415,936 transactions and 184,922 dispositions reported by the state's juvenile and domestic relations district courts. This new caseload was the result of a one percent decline in new juvenile cases, offset by a 12 percent rise in adule cases. The increase in new juvenile and domestic relations cases was accompanied by a 6 percent growth in hearings, representing 22,623 additional hearings from the 1981 figure. While juvenile hearings remained fairly constant, increasing by one percent, adult hearings grew by 14 percent. The 1982 hearings per case ratio was 1.92, up from 1.88 recorded in 1981.

Higher juvenile and domestic relations caseloads were reported in 20 of the 32 districts when compared to the 1981 levels. The Twenty-Eighth Judicial District reported a substantial increase of 19 percent, followed by 17 percent jumps in the new caseloads of the Fifth and Thirteenth. Decreased caseloads varied from a 0.4 percent decline in the Second to a 6.6 percent drop in the Twenty-Seventh.

Virginia's juvenile and domestic relations district court judges handled 3,034 new cases and 5,837 hearings each during the last year. Urban judges averaged 3,477 and 6,708, respectively. Experiencing somewhat lower averages, rural judges handled 2,615 new cases and 5,010 hearings each during 1982.

Juvenile new cases fell by 1,163 and numbered 132,308 for the year. Accounting for 63 percent of the total juvenile and domestic relations caseload, the juvenile proportion has declined steadily. Juvenile and domestic relations judges held 243,451 hearings during the year, nearly 2,700 more than the previous year. Of the 252,619 juvenile transactions reported in 1982, 123,333 (49%) were criminal in nature, 62,747 (25%) involved custody-related matters, 54,472 (22%) dealt with traffic infractions and the remaining transactions, 12,067, were for status offenses. All types of juvenile transactions experienced an increase in comparison with 1981 data with the exception of traffic transactions.

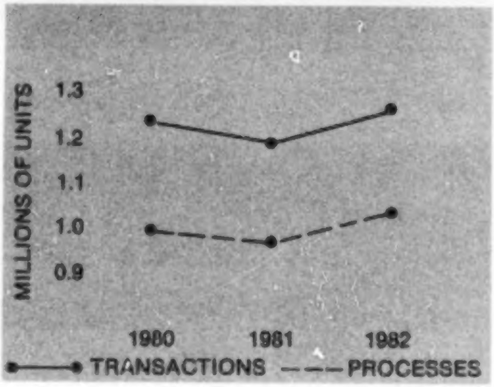
The adult caseload was composed of 77,823 new cases, 160,743 hearings, 163,317 transactions, and 64,553 dispositions. All categories experienced increases over 12 percent when compared with the 1981 caseload. The ratio of hearings to adult new cases was 2.07, up from 2.02 in 1981. The distribution of adult transactions has shifted from an even split in 1980 to a distribution weighted more heavily with non-support hearings (54%) than criminal hearings (46%).

THE MAGISTRATE SYSTEM

On July 1, 1982, the Special Magistrate Systems in Richmond, Arlington, Alexandria, and Fairfax were abolished and merged into the Virginia Magistrate System. This action brought the total number of magistrates in the system to 451, including one chief magistrate for each of the 32 judicial districts.

A principal function of the magistrate is to provide an independent, unbiased review of complaints brought to the office by police officers, sheriffs, deputies, and citizens. Magistrate duties include issuing various types of processes such as arrest warrants, summonses, search warrants, subpoenas, and civil warrants. One of the chief duties of the magistrate is conducting bond hearings to set bail in instances in which an individual is charged with a criminal offense. A magistrate may also accept prepayments for traffic infractions and minor misdemeanors.

MAGISTRATE SYSTEM
TRANSACTIONS AND PROCESSES
1980-1982



Activity: During 1982, state magistrates reported being available or "on-call" 1,405,472 hours, of which 558,285 hours were spent in providing actual services to the public. Demand for magistrate services is best represented by the number of transactions or requests for processes along with the number of incominb telephone calls and in-person inquiries. In 1982, a total of 1,275,567 requests for processes, 666,142 telephone calls, and 254,674 inquiries were recorded by magistrates statewide. Thus, Virginia's magistrates responded to 2.2 million requests for information or service.

In response to requests, magistrates issued 1,057,496 processes (including prepayments). Processes were issued at a rate of 8 for every 10 requests, similar to the 1981 rate. Half of the districts reported issuing fewer processes in 1982 than in 1981. Significant decreases were noted in the Eleventh (-39%) and Seventh (-27%) Judicial Districts. Increases of 34 percent and 29 percent were reported by the magistrates of the Twentieth and Sixth Districts, respectively.

The 409,513 requests for arrest warrants in 982 resulted in the issuance of 329,598 warrants and 35,499 summonses. Of the arrest warrants issued, 46,769 or 14 percent were felony warrants and 282,829 (86%) were misdemeanor. This distribution was consistent with 1981 data.

Magistrates reported a total of 357,628 bond transactions last year. Of this number, 207,979 were processed. The issuance distribution of 12% felony and 88% misdemeanor has remained constant during the past several years. Unsecured bonds were issued at a rate of 1.9 to every one secured bond. Bonds composed 20 percent of the total processes issued in 1982, which was slightly higher than the 1981 percentage of 19 percent. When combined with arrest warrants these two types of processes accounted for 51 percent of the total processes issued in 1982. Prepayment of traffic fines and costs and Class IV misdemeanors again declined from the previous year. During the past year prepayments numbered 31,070.

A total of 3,210 search warrants and 129,089 civil warrants were processed by the magistrates. In 1982 commitals and release orders again made up a significant percentage of the workload (26%) and numbered 149,884 and 126,605, respectively.

During the past year, magistrates handled 41,568 subpoenas and 2,994 mental detention orders.

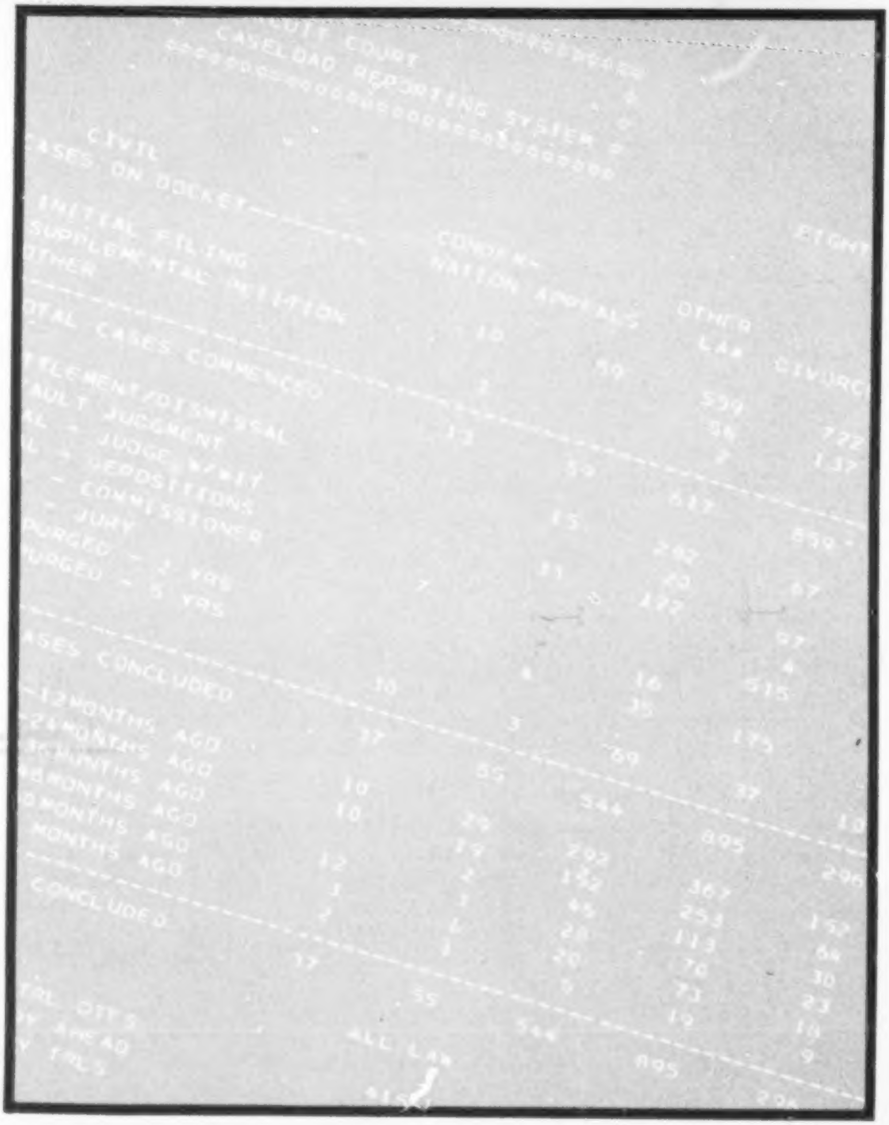
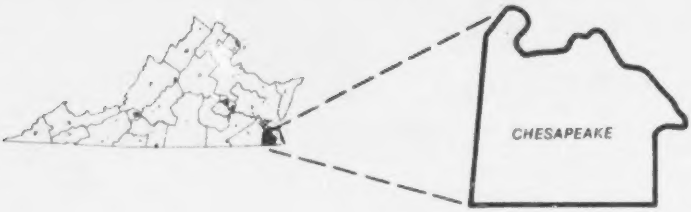
CASELOAD ANALYSIS





FIRST JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The only jurisdiction in the First Judicial Circuit is the city of Chesapeake. The city's 1980 census population (114,486) shows a 27% increase since 1970. The circuit was authorized two judgeships for 1982. They were filled by William L. Forbes and William H. Hodges. Additionally, the circuit regularly received assistance from the judges of the Fifth Circuit. The population per judge stood at 47,703, ranking the circuit nineteenth, slightly above the state mean of 46,093.

In 1982, the circuit commenced 3,076 cases, an increase of 518 (20.3%) from 1981. This increase was the result of a dramatic 60 percent growth in criminal cases wherein felonies nearly doubled in number from 1981. For the year, 1,354 criminal cases were initiated in the First Judicial Circuit. The number of civil cases (1,722) remained steady with 1981 figures, increasing by less than one percent. There were 1,282 cases per judge, ranking the circuit sixteenth in the state, below the urban mean of 1,302.

The distribution of caseload showed: law cases, 21 percent; equity cases, 35 percent; felony cases, 28 percent; and misdemeanor cases, 16 percent. This results in 56 percent civil and 44 percent criminal cases comprising the total caseload. Statewide figures were 21 percent law; 34 percent equity; 29 pecent felony; and 16 percent misdemeanor.

Concluded cases numbered 2,898, an 18 percent growth from the 2,449 in 1981. Of these cases, 1,625 (56%) were civil in nature, while 1,273 (44%) were criminal.

Cases concluded by jury trials numbered 131 with 60 percent (79) being criminal in nature. Jury trials occupied 148 days, the bulk (54%) of which were for criminal cases.

Trial dates were assigned to 637 civil and 1,568 criminal cases. Of the civil cases, 393 or 62 percent were set more than 90 days ahead while 1,115 (71%) of the criminal cases were not assigned within the present term. Of the 1,625 civil cases concluded, 43 percent were disposed of within one year and 89 percent of the 1,273 criminal cases were terminated within five months.

The district was authorized two general district court judgeships and two juvenile and domestic relations district court judgeships. Serving the general district court were Charles B. Cross, Jr. and Russell I. Townsend, Jr. Judges E. P. Grissom and James A. Leftwich heard juvenile and domestic relations cases. Judge Leftwich also provided assistance to the Fifth District throughout the year. The four judges of the district used an average of 18 substitute and recalled retired judge days each, below the state average of 26 days per judge.

During 1982, 37,419 new cases were commenced in the general district court, an increase of 2,950 cases from 1981's 34,369. All categories of new cases showed growth during the year: traffic cases grew by 16 percent; criminal by 7 percent; and civil by less than one percent. Hearings were reported at 53,739, also growing from the previous year's figures.

The composition of the general district caseload was 22 percent criminal, 46 percent traffic and 32 percent civil—a distribution weighted more heavily with criminal cases than the statewide caseload makeup of 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic and 31 percent civil.

The 18,710 cases per judge average ranked the district sixteenth among the 32 districts, below the state and urban means of 20,473 and 23,472, respectively. Hearings per judge averaged 26,780 (urban average, 29,003) and hearings per case were 1.44 (urban average, 1.24).

The juvenile and domestic relations district court reported workload increases of 11 percent and 12 percent, respectively, in new cases and hearings. The new cases totaled 5,091 and hearings numbered 13,084. Juvenile cases accounted for 64 percent of the total J&DR commenced caseload and numbered 3,272, a 19 percent increase from 1981. Adult cases fell by 31 or 2 percent when compared with the 1981 caseload.

Ranking fifteenth among the state's districts, the First had an average case per judge measure of 2,995. The urban and state means were 3,477 and 3,034, respectively. Hearings per judge averaged 7,696 with a 2.57 hearing per case ratio reported. During 1982, 5,372 cases were disposed of in the J&DR court, 24 percent more than in 1981.

Nine magistrates were authorized to serve the district. They reported working 15,689 hours and receiving 16,948 telephone calls, 3,807 in-person inquiries, and 32,784 requests for processes. The 85 percent rate of issuance for processes was comparable to the statewide average of 83 percent.

Requests for arrest warrants numbered 9,454. Eighty-nine percent of these were issued including 1,243 for felonies, 6,413 for misdemeanors and 764 summonses. This was identical to the statewide percentage of warrants issued. The magistrates of the First issued 4,291 secured and 2,494 unsecured bonds. Twenty-three percent of the secured bonds involved felonies. They also reported issuing 138 or 85 percent of the 162 requested search warrants. In addition, 1,534 committals, 801 releases and 460 subpoenas were processed during 1982.

SECOND JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Second Judicial Circuit serves the Eastern Shore counties of Accomack and Northampton and the city of Virginia Beach. According to the 1980 U. S. Census, the circuit's population has grown 43 percent during the last decade. Virginia Beach has shown a growth in population of 52 percent while the Eastern Shore counties have grown by 6 percent. The total population was listed as 308,092 persons.

The circuit was authorized seven judgeships, held by Bernard G. Barrow, N. Wescott Jacob, Henry L. Lam, Austin E. Owen, Philip L. Russo, George W. Vakos, and Kenneth N. Whitehurst. The measure of population per judge was calculated at 44,013 ranking twenty-second highest among the state's circuits and below the Virginia mean of 46,093 residents per circuit court judge.

In 1982, the circuit commenced 9,195 new cases, a 14 percent increase from 1981. Civil cases increased 12 percent compared to a 17 percent rise in criminal cases. Misdemeanors showed a decline of 10 percent, or 159 fewer cases than in 1981.

The commenced caseload composition was 21 percent law, 38 percent equity, 25 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor. The statewide distribution was 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, 29 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor.

Each judge of the circuit averaged 1,314 cases, above the state average of 1,284 and urban average of 1,302.

Concluded cases numbered 9,042 or 1,236 more than the previous year. The additional cases were shared evenly between civil and criminal.

Cases concluded by jury trials numbered 231, a thirty percent jump of the previous reporting period. These jury trial cases were divided 129 in civil and 102 in criminal. The court needed 289 calendar days to hear these jury trials. In the assignment of cases for trial, 43 percent of the 1,797 set civil cases were placed at least 90 days hence on the courts' calendars while a third of the 4,783 assigned criminal cases were not fixed in the present term. Concerning cases terminated, 48 percent of the concluded civil cases met disposition within one year of filing; criminal cases were terminated at a rate of 67 percent within five months of the filing date.

The Second Judicial District serves the city of Virginia Beach. Six judges, three in the general district court and three in the juvenile and domestic relations district court, were authorized during 1982. General district court judges were John B. Preston, Robert L. Simpson, Jr., H. Calvin Spain, and R. Stanley Hudgins. Judge Hudgins replaced Judge Simpson who retired on July 1, 1982. The 1983 General Assembly elected Edward W. Hanson, Jr. to fill a newly created judgeship effective July 1, 1983. The juvenile and domestic relations district court judgeships were filled by Frederick P. Aucamp, John K. Moore, and J. Davis Reed. The judges used 181 substitute and recalled retired judge days, an average of 30.2 days each. The state average per judge was 26 days.

The district had 93,881 commenced cases, an increase of 2,891 or 3 percent. Hearings rose 7 percent to 111,272. Of the total new cases, 20 percent were criminal, 57 percent traffic, and 23 percent civil. State averages were 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil. Criminal cases increased 5 percent, rising to 68,709; traffic cases grew by 4 percent and numbered 53,725; and civil cases declined less than 1 percent and were reported at 21,388 for the year.

On the average, each judge heard 31,294 cases (state average was 20,473), and held 37,091 hearings (state average was 24,251). The district's caseload per judge measure was the third highest among the state's 32 districts.

The juvenile and domestic relations district court reported 14,299 new cases, a decrease of less than 1 percent. Hearings, however, increased by 9 percent. Nearly 35 percent of this caseload was adult cases with 65 percent juvenile. Adult cases showed a 30 percent growth to 4,971 while juvenile cases declined 12 percent for 9,238 total cases for 1982.

Cases per judge were measured at 4,766, above the state average of 3,034. This measure was second highest throughout the Commonwealth. Each judge also had on the average 8,420 hearings, again above the state mean of 5,837. The 1982 hearing per case ratio was calculated at 1.77, slightly below the statewide ratio of 1.92.

In 1982, the Second district was authorized sixteen magistrates, including the chief magistrate. The magistrates reported 27,655 duty hours during which they received 32,862 telephone calls and 11,287 in-person inquiries as well as 53,980 requests for processes. These transactions decreased by 13.7 percent from the number reported in 1981. Of these requests, the magistrates issued 48,089 processes or 89 percent. Statewide, 83 percent of the requested processes were granted.

Arrest warrant requests totaled 19,496 with 95 percent being issued. Of that total, 14,178 were for arrest warrants and 4,336 were for summonses. The magistrates of the Second received 12,983 bond requests. They issued 5,934 unsecured bonds and 2,408 secured bonds. Of the secured bonds, 1,803 were for misdemeanors and 605 were for felonies. For every 10 search warrants requested, 9 were issued.

District 2A is composed of Accomack and Northampton Counties. The district was served by one judge sitting both in the general and juvenile and domestic relations courts. Wescott B. Northam served during 1982. Thirty-two substitute and recalled retired judge days were used during the last fiscal year.

The district reported 17,018 new cases and 13,840 hearings during 1982. Both categories represented significant growth over the previous year. Of the new cases, 12 percent were criminal, 50 percent traffic, and 38 percent civil. For 1982, the statewide caseload composition was 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil. Civil new cases reported a 22 percent jump and totaled 6,422. Criminal, up 8 percent, was listed at 2,147 cases. Traffic, growing by 6 percent, reached 8,449 for the year. Within the district, Accomack County's caseload increased by 1,803 cases (17%) while Northampton reported 41 fewer new cases for 1982. Interestingly, both Eastern Shore counties reported substantial growth in their civil caseloads: Accomack (23%) and Northampton (19%).

The caseload per judge measure (with Judge Northam as a 0.75 FTE) was 22,691 compared to the state mean of 20,473, ranking the district eighth in the state; this measure also exceeded the rural mean, 17,320. Hearings per judge (18,453) and per case (0.81) were both lower than rural means of 19,256 and 1.11, respectively.

There were 1,101 juvenile and domestic relations cases (an increase of 2%) and 1,431 hearings (an increase of less than 1%) reported during 1982. The greatest growth in new cases occurred in adult cases which rose 21 percent to 415 cases, constituting 38 percent of the total caseload. Juvenile cases fell by 7 percent, a change of 49 cases to constitute 62 percent of the caseload.

Within the district, Accomack's juvenile and domestic relations caseload dropped 3 percent compared to Northampton's 13 percent rise; total caseloads were 702 and 399, respectively.

Judge Northam (as a 0.25 FTE judge) heard 4,404 cases, ranking the district fourth in the state, above the mean of 3,034, and well above the rural mean of 2,615. The hearings per case ratio stood at 1.30 for the year.

Four magistrates were authorized to serve District 2A in 1982. During the 3,313 hours of activity, the magistrates reported driving 4,019 miles, receiving 5,237 telephone calls and handling 4,404 requests for processes. Of these requests, 84 percent or 3,713 resulted in a process being issued.

Arrest warrants were issued for 92 percent of the 2,101 requests and included 319 for felonies, 1,495 for misdemeanors and 110 summonses. Bond requests totaled 1,222 of which 461 unsecured and 249 secured bonds were issued. Seventy-nine percent of the secured bonds were for misdemeanors. The magistrates issued 12 search warrants and 149 civil warrants during the year. Committals and releases numbered 514 and 220, respectively.

THIRD JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The City of Portsmouth is the single locality in the Third Judicial Circuit. The population of Portsmouth as determined by the 1980 U. S. Census was 104,577, a 6 percent decline since 1970.

Three judgeships were authorized in this circuit and were filled by William H. Oast, Jr., Lester E. Schlitz, and Dennis F. McMurran. The population per judge in the circuit was 34,859, which ranked sixth lowest in the state.

In 1982, 3,870 cases were commenced, a 9 percent decrease from 1981. Criminal cases dropped by 320 (or 13%) while civil cases declined by 51 (or 3%). The 1,290 commenced caseload per judge measure was slightly below the urban men of 1,302 and ranked fifteenth among all 31 circuits.

The composition of the 1982 commenced caseload was distributed relatively even with 24 percent law, 21 percent equity, 29 percent felony, and 26 percent misdemeanor. This distribution compared to state averages of 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, 29 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor.

The judges disposed of 4,289 cases, a decrease of 8 percent from 1981's 4,639 concluded cases. Concluded civil cases decreased by 35; criminal cases declined by 315.

Although the number of cases concluded by jury trials fell from 292 to 263 in 1982, the circuit's jury trial per judge average (88) remained significantly above the statewide measure of 48 and ranked second highest throughout the Commonwealth's 31 circuits. Jury trials occupied 175 days of the court's calendar in 1982—116 for criminal and 59 for civil cases.

During 1982, the general district court was served by Archie Elliott, Jr., Stanley L. Morris Donald H. Sandie, and James A. Cales, Jr. Judge Sandie retired on July 1, 1982, and was replaced by Judge Cales. Judges Cecil W. Johnson and Von L. Piersall served the juvenile and domestic relations district court. The judges of the district used 26 substitute and recalled retired judge days, the fewest among the state's 32 districts. Each judge averaged 5.2 days compared to a state average of 26 substitute days per district judge.

Portmouth's general district court reported 52,217 new cases and 67,256 hearings in 1982. New cases reflected a 7 percent increase over the 48,825 cases reported in 1981 while hearings rose 10 percent or 5,997. The criminal caseload grew by 986 cases or 10 percent accompanied by a 7 percent increase, or 1,388 cases, in the traffic category. Civil cases grew by 5 percent to 19,842. The caseload per judge averaged 17,406, compared to the urban average of 23,474, giving a rank of twelfth among these districts. The hearings per case ratio was 1.29.

The composition of the 1982 new caseload was 20 percent criminal, 42 percent traffic, and 38 percent civil. Portmouth's proportion of criminal and civil cases was higher than the state average of 17 percent and 31 percent, respectively.

The juvenile and domestic relations district court reported 3,935 new cases and 11,103 hearings, a decrease of 3 percent and an increase of 4 percent, respectively, from 1981 figures. Adult cases, representing 47 percent of the total caseload, reflected a loss of 132 cases or 7 percent. Juvenile cases grew by 5, less than one percent. Across the state, figures showed an average composition of 63 percent juvenile and 37 percent adult. The district's judges averaged 1,968 new cases and 5,552 hearings. Urban averages were 3,477 and 6,708, respectively. The hearings per case ratio was 2.82, higher than the urban measure of 1.93.

The Third District was authorized five magistrates who reported working 10,348 hours during 1982. Telephone calls and in-person inquiries numbered 18,108 and 6,529 during the year. The magistrates also received 27,730 requests for processes. Of these requests, 77 percent (21,357) resulted in a process being issued. Both transactions and processes declined in 1982 by 15 and 18 percent, respectively. Arrest warrants and bonds accounted for 40 percent and 25 percent of the total processes issued.

Of the 10,012 arrest warrants requested, 85 percent or 8,521 were issued. Bonds were issued at a rate of 5.4 for every 10 requested. Of the total bonds (5,263), 2,316 were non-secured bonds and 97 percent of these were for misdemeanor charges. During the year, the magistrates also issued 88 search warrants, 1,075 subpoenas, and 314 temporary mental detention orders.

FOURTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The City of Norfolk is the only locality designated in the Fourth Judicial Circuit. Population of this circuit was reported at 266,979 according to the 1980 U. S. Census. Compared to the 1970 population, the city has experienced a 13 percent decline in residents over the last decade.

Nine circuit judgeships were authorized in 1982. The judges serving were Joseph E. Baker, William Moultrie Guerry, Morris B. Gutterman, Thomas R. McNamara, John P. Harper, Edward L. Ryan, Jr., Robert W. Stewart, Alfred W. Whitehurst, and John W. Winston. The 1983 General Assembly elected John E. Clarkson to fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Judge Harper on December 31, 1982. Population per judge was 29,664, or second lowest in the state. The statewide average was 46,093.

The 1982 commenced caseload of 14,336 represents an increase of 3 percent or 406 cases in comparison to 1981. This change was the result of an increase of 355 (or 5%) in criminal cases and an increse of 51 (1%) in civil. Commenced cases experienced the greatest growth in the category of Class 1 and 2 felony cases, which rose 26 percent or 124 cases to reach 606. The commenced caseload per judge measure of 1,593 ranked the circuit first in the state, well above the state average of 1,284 and urban mean of 1,302.

The composition of the 1982 commenced caseload was 17 percent law, 29 percent equity, 28 percent felony and 26 percent misdemeanor. The circuit was weighted more heavily in misdemeanor cases compared to the statewide percentage of 16 percent. State figures for other cases showed a composition of 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, and 29 percent felony.

The circuit concluded 11,684 cases in 1982, a 3 percent decrease from 1981's 11,986. The greatest change occurred in criminal concluded cases which decreased by 4 percent or 287 cases. This decrease was the result of 704 fewer misdemeanor cases partially offset by 432 additional felony conclusions. Civil concluded cases increased by 4 percent.

Cases concluded by jury trials totaled 363, up 22 percent from 1981's 297. This was an average of 40 per judge, falling below the state average of 48. The judges of the Fourth spent 417 days hearing these trials.

Trial dates were assigned to 1,605 law cases of which 410 (26%) were set beyond 90 days. Of the 4,624 civil cases terminated, 1,977 (43%) were disposed of within one year. In the criminal section, 7,060 were concluded with 5,933 (84%) being terminated within five months of filing.

The Fourth District was authorized five general district and three juvenile and domestic relations district judges. In 1982, the general district court was served by Joseph A. Jordan, Jr., Lawrence C. Lawless, Fred E. Martin, Jr., Leonard B. Sachs, and William L. Shapero. In the juvenile court, the district was served by Edwin A. Henry, James G. Martin IV, Lester V. Moore, Jr., and John C. Morrison, Jr. Judge Morrison replaced Judge James Martin who retired on February 1, 1982. These judges used a total of 140.5 substitute and recalled retired judge days, or 17.8 per judge, below the state's 26 day average.

The general district caseload in 1982 was 157,185 new cases, a decrease of 2 percent from 1981. Hearings, however, increased 3 percent to total 206,704 for the year. The hearings per case ratio was 1.32. Norfolk general district court is divided into three divisions. Of the new cases, 24 percent were in the criminal division, 39 percent in traffic and 37 percent in the civil division. Statewide distribution was 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil. Criminal and civil cases increased each by 5 percent and numbered 38,387 and 57,869, respectively. Traffic cases declined by 12 percent and totaled 60,829 for the year.

The average caseload per general district judge in 1982 was 31,437 new cases and 41,340 hearings each, ranking the district highest among urban areas for these measures. The state urban averages were 23,474 new cases and 29,003 hearings per judge.

The 1982 juvenile and domestic relations caseload was 10,012 new cases and 21,664 hearings. New cases fell 4 percent from 1981's figures while hearings grew by 6 percent. The decrease in caseload was attributable to a decline of 877 in juvenile new cases partially offset by an increase of 465 in adult cases. Juvenile cases represent 64 percent of the total caseload, slightly higher than the statewide composition of 63 percent. Judges averaged 3,337 cases each and 7,221 hearings compared to the respective urban means of 3,477 and 6,708. The hearings per case ratio was 2.16, above the urban mean of 1.93.

Thirteen magistrate positions were authorized for the Fourth District during 1982. These magistrates reported 21,572 hours of activity during which they handled 35,519 telephone calls, 26,087 in-person inquiries, and received 120,810 requests for processes. They issued processes for 87 percent of the requests. The 104,904 processes reflected a 6 percent decrease over the 111,586 issued in 1981.

The magistrates received 36,647 requests for arrest warrants. Of the 88 percent issued, 4,120 were for felonies, 19,954 were for misdemeanors and 8,058 were summonses. Bonds issued totaled 14,601. Of the 7,802 secured bonds, 80 percent or 6,214 were for misdemeanors. The magistrates of the Fourth processed 39,155 civil warrants and 104 subpoenas during 1982. Committals and releases numbered 12,044 and 6,076, respectively.

FIFTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Fifth Circuit serves the counties of Southampton and Isle of Wight, and the cities of Suffolk and Franklin. The 1980 U. S. Census lists the population of the area as 95,263, a 7 percent increase over the number reported in 1970. Within the circuit, Isle of Wight County grew by 16 percent but the number of Suffolk residents continued to account for nearly half of the circuit's total population.

The circuit was authorized three judges during 1982 and was served by E. Everett Bagnell, James C. Godwin, and Benjamin A. Williams, Jr. The judges of the area were designated to provide assistance to the First Judicial Circuit during the year. The population per Judge (2.6 full-time equivalent judges) was 36,640, below the statewide average of 46,093.

During 1982, the circuit commenced 3,191 cases, 131 more than 1981's 3,060. Civil filings were fairly stable, increasing by 29 (2%) while the criminal commenced cases grew by a more substantial 7 percent (102 cases). The localities of the circuit reported the following changes in commenced caseloads for 1982: Isle of Wight reported an increase of 41 cases or 10 percent; Southampton reported an increase of 20 or 4 percent; and Suffolk showed an increase of 70 cases or 3 percent. The judges of the Fifth, 2.6 FTE, averaged 1,227 new cases each, ranking the circuit nineteenth highest among the 31 circuits, and above the rural mean of 1,206.

There were 2,615 cases terminated in the circuit in 1982, representing a 6 percent increase over the 2,461 concluded the previous year. Civil conclusions declined by 12 percent; criminal concluded cases jumped by 25 percent.

During the year, 107 cases were concluded by jury trial, 20 fewer than the year before. These trials occupied 85 days. The judges of the circuit averaged 41 jury trials each, somewhat below the state mean of 48.

In assigning trial dates for the 295 law cases, 60 percent or 177 cases were set beyond 90 days. Of the 1,443 criminal cases set for trial, only 7 percent or 107 cases were not given dates in the present term. The age of concluded cases indicated that 59 percent of the 1,093 civil cases concluded reached disposition within twelve months of filing. Of the 1,522 terminated criminal cases, 1,020 (67%) were concluded within five months.

The Fifth Judicial District was authorized two general district court judgeships and one for the juvenile and domestic relations district court during 1982. Robert B. Edwards and William Wellington Jones served the general district and R. Baird Cabell sat in the juvenile and domestic relations court. Judge Cabell retired on December 31, 1982, and was replaced by William R. Moore, Jr. Judge Leftwich from the First District also provided some assistance to the district's J&DR courts. The district's judges used 78.0 substitute and recalled retired judge days in fiscal year 1982, averaging 26.0 per judge.

The district's 1982 general district caseload was reported as 37,393 new cases and 46,853 hearings, representing increases of 7 percent and 3 percent, respectively. (The 1982 caseload of the district has been annualized due to the non-reporting of Franklin City, October through December.) Criminal cases grew by 558 cases or 10 percent while traffic cases increased by 2,744 or 16 percent. Civil filings declined by 93 or 7 percent. Within the district, all localities reported higher caseloads than recorded in 1981. Southampton noted a 14 percent increase; Suffolk's caseload grew by 9 percent; Franklin was up 3 percent; and Isle of Wight reported a one percent growth in new cases.

The composition of the 1982 caseload was 16 percent criminal, 54 percent traffic, and 30 percent civil. The statewide composition was 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil. The judges of the district averaged 18,697 new cases and 23,427 hearings each, measuring above the rural values of 17,320 new cases and 19,256 hearings per judge. On the average, 1.25 hearings were held for each of the district's cases. The rural ratio was 1.11.

In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, 4,851 new cases were reported with 10,464 hearings. This caseload is 17 percent higher than 1981's 4,164, an increase of 687 cases. This increase in caseload was due to 448 additional adult cases (22% jump) and 239 more juvenile cases (11% rise). Total hearings also showed an increase, growing by 21 percent. The 1982 caseload was evenly split between juvenile and adult cases. The statewide distribution was 63 percent juvenile and 37 percent adult.

Within the district, Franklin, Southampton, and Suffolk reported significant increases of 29 percent, 25 percent, and 18 percent, respectively, in their J&DR court caseloads. Isle of Wight's caseload declined by less than one percent.

The judges (with 0.3 FTE from the First District) of the juvenile and domestic relations district court each averaged 3,732 new cases and 8,049 hearings. The caseload per judge measure was eighth highest among the 32 districts, above both state and rural means of 3,034 and 2,615 new cases per judge, respectively. The hearings per case ratio stood at 2.16.

Nine magistrate positions were authorized in the Fifth District during 1982. The magistrates reported 13,864 hours of activity during which they received over 18,120 telephone calls and in-person inquiries and handled 30,358 requests for processes. These transactions reflected a 7 percent decline from the 32,791 reported in 1981. Processes issued also declined, totaling 23,412. Processes were issued for 76 percent of the requests which was somewhat below the statewide percentage of 83 percent.

For the 10,105 requests for arrest warrants, 6,169 were issued. These included 843 felony arrest warrants, 5,064 for misdemeanors, and 262 summonses. The magistrates handled 7,149 bond requests, granting 3,893. Of the 2,473 secured bonds, 16 percent were for felonies.

SIXTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Sixth Circuit is comprised of the counties of Brunswick, Greensville, Prince George, Surry, and Sussex and the cities of Emporia and Hopewell. The population of the circuit was listed as 97,425 by the 1980 U. S. Census. This population reflects a 1 percent increase over the 1970 census figure of 96,264. Greensville, Prince George, and Surry counties reported growing populations of 14 percent, 6 percent, and 3 percent, respectively.

In 1982, the circuit was authorized two judgeships and was served by Robert G. O'Hara, Jr., and William Park Lemmond, Jr. The population per judge of the circuit was 48,713, ranking the circuit fifteenth highest throughout the state.

The Sixth Circuit reported 2,199 commenced cases, an increase of 216 from 1981. Criminal commenced cases rose significantly by 42 percent from the previous year to reach 893; civil commenced cases increased by 4 percent and totaled 1,306. All localities within the circuit reported increased caseloads for 1982: Brunswick and Sussex (15%); Prince George (14%); Hopewell (13%); Surry (11%); and Greensville (1%).

The two judges of the circuit averaged 1,100 commenced cases in 1982, twenty-sixth highest among the 31 circuits and below the rural mean of 1,206.

The composition of the 1982 caseload was 18 percent law, 42 percent equity, 33 percent felony, and 7 percent misdemeanor. This distribution was weighted more heavily with equity and felony cases than the statewide breakout of law (21%), equity (34%), felony (29%), and misdemeanor (16%). Concluded cases showed a decrease of 4 percent and totaled 1,890 for the year.

In 1982, 72 cases were concluded by jury trials: 14 in civil, and 58 in criminal. Disposition of these cases occupied 37 days of the courts' calendars. Trial dates were assigned for 337 law cases, 46 percent (or 155) of which were set more than 90 days ahead. Of the 780 criminal cases assigned trial dates, 15 percent (or 119) could not be set in the present term. Forty-six percent of the 1,133 civil terminations met disposition within one year of filing; concluded within five months were 676 (89%) of the 757 terminated criminal cases.

In the Sixth Judicial District, two general district court judgeships were authorized in 1982. Serving were C. C. Connelly and James A. Luke. Two judgeships also were authorized for the juvenile and domestic relations district court. Samuel E. Campbell and C. A. Perkinson served the district in this capacity. The four judges of the district used a total of 120.5 substitute and recalled retired judge days for an average of 31.8 days per judge. The state average for this measure was 26 days per judge.

In 1982, the general district court reported 56,152 new cases, 49,196 hearings, and 53,177 dispositions. This new caseload was 14 percent greater than in 1981; hearings showed a growth of 8 percent from the previous year.

The growth in new cases was the net result of 218 additional criminal cases and 7,279 additional traffic cases. Civil cases fell by 555. Within the district, Surry showed the greatest growth in caseload reporting a 60 percent increase in new cases. The caseloads of Sussex and Brunswick also reported significant changes, growing by 35 percent and 23 percent, respectively. The caseload in Emporia declined by 13 percent, the only decrease noted in the Sixth District.

Overall, the district's caseload composition was 11 percent criminal, 74 percent traffic, and 15 percent civil; a composition more heavily weighted in traffic cases than the average statewide distribution which was 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil.

The judges of the district each averaged 28,126 cases during the year. This figure ranked the area first among the 18 rural districts and significantly below the rural mean of 17,320. The state average was 20,473 cases per judge. There were an average of 24,598 hearings per judge and 0.87 hearings per case.

In the juvenile and domestic relations district courts, 3,400 new cases, 8,356 hearings, and 3,158 dispositions were reported. New cases decreased by 66; hearings rose by 773; and dispositions increased by 87. Nearly 60 percent of the new filings fell into the juvenile case category.

The decline in new cases was due to the initiation of 143 (7%) fewer juvenile cases, offset slightly by an additional 77 (6%) adult cases. Within the district, Sussex, Hopewell, and Surry showed increases of 24 percent, 12 percent, and 4 percent, respectively, in total J&DR caseload. The remaining localities reported lower 1982 caseloads than in 1981. The range of these changes was a 9 percent drop noted by Prince George to a 15 percent decrease in Emporia's J&DR new caseload.

The judges of the juvenile and domestic relations district court each averaged 1,700 cases and 4,178 hearings in 1982. This caseload per judge ranked the district lowest among the 18 rural districts whose average caseload per judge was 2,615. The hearings per case ratio was 2.46, compared to the rural mean of 1.92.

In 1982, the Sixth was authorized 20 magistrates. They reported working a total of 31,833 hours. During this time, they drove 74,082 miles, handled 14,769 telephone calls, 7,801 in-person inquiries and reviewed 36,580 requests for processes. This was a 27 percent increase in requests over the previous year. Of the total number of requests, 87 percent resulted in processes being issued.

Requests for arrest warrants numbered 12,216 for the year. The magistrates issued 10,587 of these: 1,185 for felonies, 9,333 for misdemeanors, and 69 summonses. Personal recognizance and promise to appear bonds totaled 3,607 while secured bonds included 337 for felonies and 4,803 for misdemeanors. Eight search warrants were issued for every ten requests. Committals and releases for the year were reported as 3,099 and 6,788, respectively.

The City of Newport News is the single locality in the Seventh Circuit. During the decade 1970-1980, the population of the area increased by 5 percent to reach 144,903 according to the 1980 U. S. Census.

The circuit was served by three judges during 1982. Serving were Fred W. Bateman, Douglas M. Smith, and J. Warren Stephens. The population per judge measure stood at 48,301 for the year, seventeenth in the state and above the state average of 46,093.

The new commenced caseload for the district reached 4,723, a change of 33 cases or only 1 percent. Civil cases fell by 85 (– 3%) due to 72 fewer law filings and 13 less equity actions. Criminal cases showed an overall increase of 5 percent. Misdemeanor cases rose by 20% while felony cases declined by 6 percent (70 cases).

The commenced caseload composition was 15 percent law, 36 percent equity, 25 percent felony, and 24 percent misdemeanor. State average composition was 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, 29 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor. The commenced case per judge measure was 1,574 for 1982, second among the state's 31 circuits and significantly above the urban mean of 1,302.

Growing by 3 percent, the number of concluded cases for the year reached 4,715, a change of 135 cases. This results in a measure of 1,572 concluded cases per judge compared to an urban average of 1,231. Concluded civil cases fell by 7 percent to total 2,262; concluded criminal cases increased by 15 percent to 2,453 for 1982.

There were 53 civil and 66 criminal cases concluded by jury trials during 1982 in the circuit. Hearing these cases required 101 days of the court's calendar, 59 days (or 58%) being used to hear civil cases. Of the total 506 law cases assigned trial dates, 325 or 64 percent were assigned at least 90 days ahead; 1,424 or 41 percent of the 3,486 criminal cases assigned were not assigned within the present term.

Of the 2,262 civil cases concluded, 1,249 (55%) reached disposition within one year of filing while 2,091 or 85 percent of the 2,453 concluded criminal cases were disposed of within five months.

Within the Seventh District, three general district court judgeships were authorized in 1982. Serving were Robert W. Curran, James H. Harvell, and Randolph T. West. Serving the juvenile and domestic relations district court were F. Thompson Wheeler II and Rober M. Yacobi. The judges used 155.5 substitute and recalled retired judge days during fiscal year 1982, for an average of 31.1 each. This measure stood above the state average of 26 substitute days per district court judge.

The number of new cases reached 65,217 (a decline of 5% from 1981) and hearings fell to 108,045 (a decrease of 9%). All categories of cases reported decreases when compared to 1981 figures. Traffic cases experienced the greatest loss, a drop of 1,968 cases; civil fell by 877 cases; criminal declined by 797. Composition of the caseload was 20 percent criminal, 40 percent traffic, and 40 percent civil, a composition weighted less heavily with traffic cases than the average state composition of 52 percent traffic, 17 percent criminal, and 31 percent civil.

New cases per judge averaged 21,739, ranking the district eighth among the 14 urban districts and below the urban mean of 23,474. The number of hearings per judge was 36,015, compared to an urban average of 29,003. The hearings per case ratio was 1.66.

In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, 4,707 new cases were commenced, 15 more than in the previous year. Hearings, ironically, fell by 15 and totaled 12,248. EIGHTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Eighth Judicial Circuit serves the city of Hampton. According to the 1980 Census, the population of the circuit was 122,617. This represents a modest 2 percent increase from the 1970 listing of 120,779.

During 1982, the area was authorized two circuit court judgeships and was served by Edgar A. Massenburg and Nelson T. Overton. An additional judgeship has been approved for the circuit effective July 1, 1983. The 1983 General Assembly elected John D. Gray to fill the position. The population per circuit court judge of 61,309 was nearly one-third higher than the state average of 46,093 and ranked the Eighth Circuit third highest among the state's thirty-one circuits for this measure.

The commenced caseload for 1982 of 2,979 represented an increase of 8 percent from 1981. This rise was a result of a combined increase of 106 civil and 114 criminal commenced cases. The commenced caseload per judge for the Eighth was calculated at 1,490 cases with a rank of fourth highest throughout the thirty-one circuits.

The caseload composition for 1982 was 23 percent law, 38 percent equity, 19 percent felony, and 19 percent misdemeanor. This distribution was weighted more heavily with law, equity, and misdemeanor cases than the statewide composition of 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, 29 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor cases.

There were 2,982 cases concluded within the circuit during the year compared to 2,629 in 1981. This represents an increase of 173 civil and 180 concluded criminal cases.

The number of cases concluded by jury trials decreased from 72 (1981) to 60 (1982). Correspondingly, there were 30 jury trials per judge compared to the state average of 48. The judges of the Eighth Circuit spent 58 days hearing these cases which were 55 percent civil and 45 percent criminal.

Less than one-fifth of the 415 law cases assigned trial dates during the year were given dates more than 90 days ahead. There were 1,018 criminal cases assigned dates, 99 percent of which were heard during the present term. Of the 7 cases assigned dates past the present term, 6 were felonies and 1 was a misdemeanor.

A total of 850 cases, or 47 percent of the 1,827 concluded civil cases were terminated within one year. Of the 1,155 concluded criminal cases, 999 (or 86%) were terminated within five months of filing.

Two general district court judgeships were authorized for the Eighth Judicial District during 1982. These were filled by Henry D. Kashouty and Thomas H. Wilson II. Two juvenile and domestic relations district court judges, Paul Crider, Jr. and Nelson T. Durden, were also authorized to serve in the district. There were 116 substitute and recalled retired judge days used by the judges during the fiscal year, or 29 days per judge. This was above the state figure of 26 days.

The year witnessed an increase of 2,912 cases or 6 percent in the general district's new caseload. By the close of 1982, 51,190 cases were initiated in the Hampton General District Court. Hearings increased by 5,223, or 7 percent, for a total of 79,057. This represents a hearing per case ratio of 1.54 compared to the state average of 1.18.

All categories of the general district caseload grew during the year. Criminal cases increased significantly by 1,656 or 20 percent from 1981's 8,159 for a total of 9,815 while the number of civil cases increased by 985 or 5 percent to total 21,846. Traffic cases rose by a little more than one percent in 1982 for a total of 19,529.

The two general district judges averaged 25,595 new cases and 39,529 hearings each which ranked the district fifth in the state for new cases heard per judge. This measure is also above both the state and urban means of 20,473 and 23,474, respectively.

The general district caseload composition for 1982 reflected 19 percent criminal, 38 percent traffic, and 43 percent civil cases. The district had a higher proportion of civil and criminal cases and a lower proportion of traffic cases when compared to the average statewide general district caseload composition of 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil.

There were 5,280 new cases reported in 1982 by the juvenile and domestic relations district court, accompanied by 14,556 hearings. This represents a 6 percent drop in new cases from 1981 and a 5 percent decline in total hearings. Juvenile cases fell by 10 percent while adult cases increased by 5 percent. The 1982 caseload was composed of 31 percent adult and 69 percent juvenile cases compared to the state average of 37 percent adult and 63 percent juvenile. The measure of hearings per case remained consistent with the 1981 figure and was calculated at 2.76. The 1982 state ratio was 1.92 hearings per J&DR case.

Hampton's two judges averaged 2,640 new cases and 7,278 hearings. This ranked the district tenth out of the fourteen urban districts in regards to the case per judge ratio. The 1982 urban mean was 3,477 new cases and 6,708 hearings per judge.

The city was authorized six magistrates, including a chief magistrate, during 1982. They reported a total of 11,272 hours of duty and receive 28,544 requests for processes. Transactions were down slightly from the 29,535 reported in 1981. During 1982, the magistrates issued 21,476 processes, a small increase from the previous year. Of the 13,517 requests for arrest warrants, 13,280 or 98 percent were issued. Arrest warrants accounted for 62 percent of all issued processes.

The magistrates of the Eighth reported 13,618 bond transactions. Of the total issued, 12 percent were felony bonds and 88 percent were misdemeanor bonds. Slightly more than one-third of all bonds were secured.

A total of 184 search warrants also were issued during the year. Committal and release orders numbered 329 and 33, respectively.

NINTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Ninth Judicial Circuit includes the counties of Charles City, Gloucester, James City, King and Queen, King William, Mathews, Middlesex, New Kent, and York, and the cities of Williamsburg and Poquoson. According to the 1980 U. S. Census, the population of the circuit was 143,418. This figure represents a 30 percent increase since 1970. With the exception of King and Queen County, all jurisdictions experienced a growth in population during the decade.

For the Ninth Circuit, three judgeships were authorized in 1982. Serving were Russell M. Carneal, John E. DeHardit, and G. Duane Holloway. These judges served an average of 47,806 residents each. This was the eighth highest population per judge figure in the state, somewhat above the state mean of 46,093.

In 1982, there were 3,404 new cases reported in the circuit, an increase of 13 percent from 1981's 3,023. This growth was attributable to a 27 percent jump in criminal cases and a 4 percent rise in civil cases. Criminal cases rose by 314 cases to reach 1,475. Interestingly, the number of Class 1 and 2 felony cases decreased by 31 (or 55%) while the number of other felony cases grew by 216 (31%). Misdemeanor cases also experienced a growth over 1981, rising by 132 (33%).

Within the circuit, seven courts reported increased caseloads over 1981 figures. The caseloads of Charles City and King and Queen experienced the greatest relative change, 57 percent and 31 percent, respectively. Declines were noted with the number of commenced cases in New Kent (– 6%) and Middlesex (– 4%).

The caseload composition for 1982 was 20 percent law, 37 percent equity, 27 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor. This composition showed a higher proportion of equity cases than the statewide distribution of 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, 29 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor. The circuit raked twenty-fifth highest in the state with 1,135 new cases per judge, below the respective state and rural means for this measure of 1,284 and 1,206.

There were 3,169 cases concluded in 1982, an increase of 267 from 1981. Concluded criminal cases rose by 11 percent while civil cases increased by 8 percent. Of the 1,847 concluded civil cases, half (917) were terminated within twelve months of filing; 83 percent (1,102) of the 1,322 concluded criminal cases met disposition within five months.

Additionally, 87 of the terminated cases were concluded by jury trial. These trials occupied 78 days of the courts' time. Each judge heard an average of 29 jury trials, a figure below the state mean of 48 jury trials per circuit court judge. Of the 594 civil cases assigned trial dates, 420 were set at least 90 days ahead. For the 1,495 criminal cases assigned trial dates, less than one-third were not set within the present term.

Four judgeships were authorized for the Ninth Judicial District in 1982. Serving the general district court were William T. Bareford and J. R. Zepkin. Herbert I. L. Feild and John G. Sowder served in the juvenile and domestic relations district court.

The judges each used an average of 26.6 substitute and recalled retired judge days during the last fiscal year.

There were 37,592 new cases and 39,525 hearings reported in the general district court in 1982. These measures represented increases of 2 percent each from the 1981 totals. The number of civil cases showed the greatest growth, increasing by 446 cases or 6 percent to reach 8,076. Traffic cases increased by one percent and numbered 21,873. Criminal new cases fell by 8 and totaled 7,643 for the year. The caseload composition was more heavily weighted with civil and traffic cases than the statewide distribution. For the district, the composition was 20 percent criminal, 58 percent traffic and 23 percent civil. Statewide, the composition was 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil.

Within the district, Charles City showed the greatest growth in the new caseload with a 33 percent rise over 1981 totals. Middlesex showed a 24 percent increase. Gloucester's caseload increased by 20 percent, while in York and Williamsburg/James City County increases of 4 percent were seen. Decreases were reported by the remaining four localities: King William (–37%), New Kent (–9%), Mathews (-7%), and King and Queen (-2%).

The general district court reported 19,155 cases per judge (fifth highest among rural districts), 19,763 hearings per judge, and a hearings per case ratio of 1.05.

There were 4,444 juvenile and domestic relations new cases reported and 10,591 hearings in 1982. New cases increased by 6 percent, hearings grew by 5 percent from 1981 to 1982. There were 236 additional adult cases and 18 additional juvenile cases reported in 1982. Sixty-two percent of the total new caseload was composed of juvenile cases, very near the state average of 63 percent.

Within the district, four jurisdictions showed an increase in caseload: Middlesex (48%), Gloucester (42%), York (12%), and King and Queen (1%). Decreased 1982 caseloads were noted in King William (–31%), Mathews (–16%), New Kent (–6%), Charles City (–5%), and Williamsburg/James City County (–5%).

The district reported 2,222 J&DR cases per judge, on the average, 5,296 hearings per judge and 2.38 hearings per case. This caseload per judge figure ranks the district twelfth among the 18 rural districts, below both state and rural means of 3,034 and 2,615 respectively.

Nineteen magistrates were authorized for the Ninth District during 1982. The magistrates reported 14,113 hours of activity during which they received 5,706 in-person inquiries and 20,201 requests for processes. Of the total transactions, 16,916 processes were issued. This year's transactions and processes reflect slight increases from the number reported in 1981.

The magistrates of the district reported receiving 7,224 requests for arrest warrants of which 87 percent resulted in a process being issued. This was higher than the statewide 83 percentage rate. Issued bonds included 1,964 unsecured and 980 secured. Of the secured bonds, 28 percent were for felonies. Search warrants issued totaled 80. Committals and releases totaled 1,488 and 1,006, respectively, for the year.

TENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Tenth Judicial Circuit is comprised of eight counties: Appomattox, Buckingham, Charlotte, Cumberland, Halifax, Lunenburg, Mecklenburg, and Prince Edward; and the city of South Boston. The population of the circuit was listed as 139,585 by the U. S. Census of 1980. This figure represents a 6 percent increase since 1970.

Judges Meredith C. Dortch and John R. Snoddy served the circuit court during 1982. Judge Dortch retired on February 1, 1983, and Judge Charles L. McCormick was appointed to fill the vacancy. The population per judge figure was 69,793; this was highest among all 31 circuits for this measure, well above the state mean of 46,093.

The 1982 commenced caseload was 6 percent lower than in 1981 with 156 less cases. (The 1982 caseload figures of the circuit have been annualized. This was required due to the incomplete reporting of Lunenburg County.) This caseload of 2,345 was the result of 1 additional civil and 157 fewer criminal cases. Within the circuit, only two courts reported increases in their caseloads. Buckingham County showed the greatest percent increase, 42 percent, and the caseload of Halifax grew by 6 percent. Decreases were reported in Lunenburg (–32%), Cumberland (–28%), Prince Edward (–24%), Charlotte (–14%), Mecklenburg (–6%), and Appomattox (–4%).

The 1982 caseload composition was 23 percent law, 36 percent equity, 29 percent felony and 12 percent misdemeanor. The statewide distribution was 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, 29 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor. Ranking twenty-second in the state, the circuit's commenced caseload per judge figure of 1,173 was below the state mean of 1,284 and rural mean of 1,206.

Nearly 5 percent less cases were concluded in 1982 compared to 1981 totals. The 2,229 concluded cases reflected a drop of 8 civil and 120 criminal cases. Of the 1,321 concluded civil cases, 45 percent were disposed of within one year of filing. Of the 908 concluded criminal cases, 76 percent were cleared within five months.

The circuit courts reported concluding 55 cases by jury trial during 1982. These cases occupied 66 days of the courts' calendar. Only 14 percent of the civil cases assigned trial dates were set 90 or more days ahead. For the crimial cases, 23 percent of the 907 cases could not be assigned dates in the present term.

Five judges served the Tenth District in 1982: William Hay, Jr., Robert B. Spencer, Jr., and Robert T. Vaughan served the general district court while Charles L. McCormick III and J. Taylor Williams served the juvenile and domestic relations district court. Effective March 29, 1983, William L. Wellons was appointed to fill the vacancy created by Judge McCormick's appointment to the circuit court. The judges of the district each used an average of 16.8 substitute days during fiscal year 1982 compared to a state average of 26 days per judge.

Reported in general district court for 1982 were 50,452 new cases, 48,112 hearings, and 46,693 dispositions. The new caseload was 4,714 cases less than 1981's reported figure, a decline of 9 percent. Hearings were 5,000 fewer during the year while dispositions declined by 4,000 cases. All categories of cases reported decreases: criminal fell by 409 (– 5%), traffic dropped by 2,262 (– 6%), and civil decreased by 2,043 (– 17%).

Within the district, decreases in new cases were reported by all localities except Charlotte, whose caseload grew by 39 cases throughout the year. The range of change was a one percent drop noted in Halifax to a 20 percent decline in Cumberland's new caseload. The district's caseload composition was 14 percent criminal, 67 percent traffic, and 19 percent civil, a composition higher in traffic cases than the statewide distribution of 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil.

Ranking ninth among the 18 rural districts, the Tenth averaged 16,817 new cases per judge; hearings averaged 16,037 per judge. The rural means for these measures were 17,320 and 19,256, respectively. The district's hearings per case ratio was 0.95.

In the juvenile and domestic relations courts, 5,300 new cases, 9,520 hearings, and 5,065 dispositions were reported. New cases increased by 3 percent or 158 cases; hearings showed an increase of 7 percent or 599 when compared with the previous year's. Both adult and juvenile cases increased in 1982. There were 89 more juvenile cases and 69 more adult cases. The number of juvenile cases constituted 61 percent of the total caseload; adult cases 39 percent. Statewide, the distribution was 63 percent juvenile and 37 percent adult.

Within the district, Appomattox reported the greatest increase in new cases, 33 percent. Increased caseloads were also reported by Prince Edward (9%), Buckingham (5%), and Halifax (4%). Cumberland showed a decline of 12 percent or 32 cases in their J&DR caseload. Other declines were reported as well: Mecklenburg (– 5%), Charlotte (-5%), and Lunenburg (-4%).

The judges averaged 2,650 cases and 4,760 hearings each in 1982. This caseload per judge ranked ninth among all 18 rural districts. The rural mean was 2,615. The rural mean for hearings per judge was 5,010. The hearings per case ratio was 1.80 compared to the state average of 1.92.

Twenty-four magistrates served the nine localities within the district during 1982. During their 22,179 hours of activity, they reported traveling 55,088 miles, receiving 16,740 telephone calls, and 6,771 in-person inquiries. In all, they received 30,946 requests for processes. Eighty-five percent or 26,535 of these requests resulted in a process being issued. There were 11 percent decreases both in transactions requested and processes issued as compared with 1981 figures.

The magistrates received nearly 10,000 requests for arrest warrants, granting 88 percent. They included 1,257 for felonies, 7,445 for misdemeanors, and 102 summonses. The number of bonds issued during 1982 was 5,145, of which 51 percent were secured. Secured felony bonds were reported at 375 for the year. Search warrants were issued at a rate of 9.2 for every ten requested. During the year, the magistrates issued 6,256 civil warrants and 370 subpoenas.

ELEVENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Eleventh Judicial Circuit serves the counties of Amelia, Dinwiddie, Nottoway, and Powhatan as well as the city of Petersburg. The population in 1980 was reported at 99,790 by the U. S. Census, a ten percent increase over that of 1970. With an increase of 70%, Powhatan's population grew faster than any other locality in the circuit. Dinwiddie and Petersburg represent two-thirds of the circuits' population.

The Eleventh was authorized two judgeships in 1982. Oliver A. Pollard, Jr., and Thomas V. Warren served the circuit. The population per judge based on the 1980 census was 49,895, which ranks this circuit twelfth highest throughout the state.

The judges of the circuit commenced 2,308 cases in 1982, an overall increase of 7 percent from 1981 figures. These figures represent an increase in the civil cases of 156 or 14 percent and a decline in criminal cases of 11 or 1 percent. Dinwiddie, Amelia, Powhatan, and Petersburg showed increases of 38 percent, 10 percent, 6 percent, and 1 percent, respectively. However, Nottoway's commenced caseload declined by 2 percent. The judges commenced an average of 1,154 cases, 52 less than the rural mean of 1,206. As a result, the Eleventh Circuit ranked twenty-fourth among the 31 circuits statewide in the measure of commenced cases per judge.

The composition of the circuit's commenced caseload was 20 percent law, 35 percent equity, 34 percent felony, and 11 percent misdemeanor. This composition was weighted more heavily with equity and felony cases than the statewide distribution of 34 percent and 29 percent, respectively.

In 1982, 2,231 cases were concluded, 365 (20%) more than the 1,866 cases reported in 1981. Civil cases concluded totaled 1,130 and criminal terminations were reported as 1,101.

Cases concluded by a jury trial totaled 114 in 1981. Jury days numbered 97. Each judge of the circuit averaged 57 jury trials, nine more than the state mean of 48.

In assigning trial dates for the 195 civil cases, 86 were set more than 90 days in advance. In the criminal area, 1,437 cases were set for trial, 151 of which were not assigned in the present term. The age of concluded cases indicated that 63 percent or 715 of the 1,130 civil terminations met disposition within one year of filing. For the 1,101 criminal terminations, 948 (86%) were cleared within five months of filing.

The Eleventh Judicial District was authorized two general district judgeships in 1982. James F. D'Alton and Richard E. Lewis, Jr. served the district. Judges Ben L. Campbell and L. L. Mason, Jr. served the juvenile and domestic relations district court. The judges of the district averaged 23.2 substitute days each, a measure below the state average of 26 days.

The general district courts had 37,477 new cases and 50,293 hearings in 1982, reflecting a slight increase over the caseload reported in 1981. Criminal new cases grew by 266 to total 8,247 for the year, a 3 percent increase. Traffic and civil cases numbered 16,331 and 12,899, respectively, the former showing an increase of 1 percent over 1981 figures, the latter a rise of 7 percent. The new caseload was weighted 22 percent criminal, 44 percent traffic, and 34 percent civil. The statewide distribution was 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil.

Within the district, all localities except Amelia showed increased caseloads. New cases grew by nearly 1,000 in Petersburg, 186 in Nottoway, 175 in Dinwiddie, and 50 in Powhatan. Amelia reported a decrease of 132 cases during 1982.

The general district judges averaged 18,739 new cases and 25,147 hearings each. Regarding new cases per judge, the district ranked sixth highest among the 18 rural districts whose average was 17,320 new cases per judge. The hearings per case ratio was 1.83 and above the rural mean of 1.11.

The two judges of the juvenile and domestic relations district court handled 3,870 new cases and 7,401 hearings during 1982. New cases declined by 258 or 6 percent while hearings fell by 325 (or −4%). A 10 percent decline in adult cases was accompanied by a less than one percent drop in juvenile cases. The new caseload was weighted 58 percent juvenile and 42 percent adult, varying from the statewide distribution of 63 percent juvenile and 37 percent adult.

Within the district, all localities reported a decrease in new cases when compared to their 1981 level. The most significant change in new cases occured in Powhatan and Amelia where decreases measured 20 percent and 16 percent, respectively.

The judges of the Eleventh averaged 1,935 J&DR cases and 3,701 hearings each in 1982, below the rural averages of 2,615 new cases and 5,010 hearings per judge. The hearings per case ratio of 1.91 was slightly above the rural mean of 1.92.

The Eleventh Judicial District was authorized fourteen magistrates during 1982. During the 14,998 hours of activity, the magistrates handled 14,938 telephone calls, 5,471 in-person inquiries, and 23,942 requests for transactions. For these requests, 19,959 processes were issued.

The magistrates processed 9,087 requests for arrest warrants, issuing 1,304 for felonies, 5,957 for misdemeanors, and 698 summonses. Bond transactions numbered 8,163 of which 66 percent were issued. Release on recognizance and promise to appear bonds totaled 3,595. Of the 1,802 secured bonds, 75 percent were for misdemeanors. Search warrants were issued at a rate of 9.2 per ten requests. The magistrates processed 603 civil warrants and 897 subpoenas. Committals and releases were reported as 3,016 and 1,769, respectively.

TWELFTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Chesterfield County and the city of Colonial Heights comprise the Twelfth Judicial Circuit. This circuit's population was listed as 157,881 by the U. S. Census of 1980. This represents a 71 percent increase over the 1970 figure of 92,142.

The Twelfth was authorized three judgeships in 1982. Serving the circuit court were Ernest P. Gates, D. W. Murphey, and John F. Daffron, Jr. The population per judge measure was 52,627, tenth among the state's 31 circuits.

In 1982, commenced cases grew by 14 percent to reach 3,617. Although the circuit's civil caseload increased by 115 cases or 5 percent to reach 2,295, criminal cases grew by 34 percent and totaled 1,322 for the year. This change was the result of an additional 257 (49%) felony and 84 (18%) misdemeanor cases.

Within the circuit, Colonial Heights reported an overall growth of 26 percent in comenced cases (1% in civil, 106% in criminal). Chesterfield's caseload also experienced growth in 1982. A 6 percent change in civil cases and a 29 percent increase in criminal cases resulted in an overall 13 percent rise in the number of commenced cases.

The composition of the commenced caseload was 15 percent law, 48 percent equity, 22 percent felony, and 15 percent misdemeanor. This composition represents a higher percentage of equity cases compared to the state distribution of 34 percent.

The number of cases per judge averaged 1,206 twentieth in the state and below both the state and urban means for this measure (1,284 and 1,302, respectively).

The courts concluded 3,278 cases, 392 more than in 1981. Civil cases concluded increased 3 percent to 2,203; criminal cases concluded increased 46 percent to 1,075. Juries disposed of 61 cases, 34 (56%) being criminal in nature. It required 69 days to hear these jury trials, 71 percent of the time being used to hear civil cases.

Of the 465 civil cases assigned trial dates, 240 were set at least 90 days ahead; 886 criminal cases received dates also and only 86 (10%) were not assigned in the present term. There were 2,203 civil cases concluded, 1,207 (55%) of which were disposed of within one year. Meeting disposition within five months of filing were 919 (86%) of the 1,075 terminated criminal cases.

Three general district court judgeships were authorized for the Twelfth in 1982. Judges William N. Humphries, Jr., William R. Shelton, and John A. Snead served. In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, Marvin L. Garner and John H. Thomas served as judges. The district used 131.1 substitute and recalled retired judge days, or an average of 26.2 per judge. The state average was 26 days per judge.

The general district courts reported 37,589 new cases and 50,730 hearings. This caseload was an increase of 4 percent of 1,258 cases from 1981; hearings grew by 6 percent. Criminal cases grew significantly by 29 percent during the year and numbered 7,034. A modest one percent rise was noted in the civil caseload, bringing that total to 8,235 for the year. Traffic cases were reported as 22,235, a decline of 439 cases. Caseload composition was 19 percent criminal, 59 percent traffic, and 22 percent civil compared to the state average distribution of 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil.

The cases per judge averaged 12,530, second lowest in the state and lowest among urban districts. The urban mean was 23,474. Hearings per judge were 16,910 (urban mean, 29,003) and hearings per case averaged 1.35 (urban mean, 1.24).

In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, 5,303 new cases were reported with 15,089 hearings. This new caseload reflected an increase of 7 percent from 1981. Hearings were up by 15 percent. Of the new cases, 67 percent or 3,573 were juvenile in nature. These juvenile cases showed a 3 percent increase from the previous year. Adult cases increased, rising 16 percent to reach 1,730. Statewide composition of cases averaged 63 percent juvenile and 37 percent adult.

Each judge averaged 2,652 cases and 7,545 hearings. This case per judge ratio was ninth highest among urban districts. The hearings per case ratio stood at 2.85, above the urban mean of 1.93.

Eleven magistrates were authorized in the Twelfth District during 1982. They reported working 14,077 hours, handling 26,432 telephone calls, 2,383 in-person inquiries, and reviewing 26,812 requests for processes. Of these requests, 81 percent or 21,716 resulted in the issuance of a process. Transactions and processes decreased by 14 percent and 13 percent, respectively, from the numbers reported in 1981.

Of the 9,007 requests for arrest warrants, 8,413 were issued: 1,358 for felonies, 5,860 for misdemeanors, and 1,195 summonses. The magistrates received 9,810 requests for bonds, issuing 5,339 or 54 percent. Of the number issued, 1,897 were secured. Of these, 68 percent were for misdemeanors. THIRTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The city of Richmond is the only locality in the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit. Based on the 1980 U. S. Census, Richmond's population was 219,214. This represents a 12 percent decline from the 1970 census count of 249,332.

During 1982, the circuit was authorized eight judgeships: Marvin F. Cole, James M. Lumpkin, James E. Sheffield, William E. Spain, Thomas N. Nance, Willard I. Walker, James B. Wilkerson, and Frank A. S. Wright. The population per judge measure of 27,402 was lowest in the state. The statewide average was 46,093 residents per circuit court judge.

The circuit commenced 8,499 cases, 237 fewer than in 1981. This decrease was the result of 171 fewer civil filings and 66 less criminal cases. The caseloads of both Division I and Division II were reported as 3 percent lower than in the previous year. The judges of the circuit averaged 1,062 commenced cases, twenty-eighth among the state's 31 circuits. The 1982 urban and statewide measures were 1,302 and 1,284 commenced cases per judge, respectively.

The composition of the 1982 caseload was 32 percent law, 25 percent equity, 34 percent felony, and 9 percent misdemeanor. The state's distribution was 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, 29 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor.

Concluded cases numbered 8,328, also a decrease from the number reported in 1981. Concluded civil cases fell by 5 percent; concluded criminal cases were down by 4 percent.

Juries concluded 615 cases in 1982 compared to 445 cases in 1981. A total of 298 days were spent hearing these jury trial cases. Division I's judges handled an average of 66 jury trials each and the two judges of Division II each averaged 110. The statewide measure of jury trials per judge was 48 in 1982.

Trial dates were assigned for 2,009 civil cases, 74 percent (1,492) of which were set more than 90 days ahead. Of the 4,295 criminal cases set for trial, 45 percent (1,946) were not assigned in the present term. Of the 4,565 civil terminations, 2,709 (59%) were concluded within one year of filing. Disposed of within five months of filing were 3,406 (91%) of the 3,763 criminal terminations.

The Thirteenth Judicial District was authorized ten judgeships during 1982. Serving the general district court were Jose R. Davila, Jr., Robert W. Duling, Melvin R. Hughes, Jr., W. Jerry Roberts, Henry J. Schrieberg, Edgar L. Turlington, Jr., and Robert L. Harris. The juvenile and domestic relations district court was served by Alton E. Bryant, Jr., Willard H. Douglas, Jr. and Arlin F. Ruby. The judges used a total of 210.6 substitute and recalled retired judge days in fiscal year 1982, an average of 22.2 days per judge. The state average was 26 days per judge.

Judges of the general district courts reported 219,851 new cases and 252,727 hearings for 1982. The number of new cases decreased 2 percent from 1981 figures while hearings were slightly greater (an increase of less than 1%). Although the total caseload was reported as a decline, criminal cases increased by 3,221 (or 18%) when compared with the prior year's filings.

The caseload composition was 10 percent criminal, 24 percent traffic, 66 percent civil compared to state averages of 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil.

The new case per judge ratio was 31,407, second among the 14 urban districts and above the urban mean of 23,474. Hearings per judge averaged 36,104 (urban mean, 29,003) and the hearings per case ratio stood at 1.15.

The J&DR district court reported 17,884 new cases, 20,915 hearings and 8,289 dispositions. The number of new cases and hearings increased by 17 percentand 14 percent, respectively, from 1981's figures. Juvenile cases jumped 21 percent and accounted for 57 percent of the total J&DR caseload. Adult cases, increasing by 12 percent, were reported as 7,754 for the year. The average state composition showed juvenile cases representing 63 percent of total caseload.

New cases per judge averaged 5,961, ranking first out of the 14 urban districts; hearings per judge were 6,972, slightly higher than the urban mean of 6,708. The hearing per case ratio was 1.17. This measure was lowest throughout the 32 districts.

Richmond's Special Magistrate System became part of the statewide Magistrate System on July 1, 1982. The district is authorized 9 magistrate positions, including the chief. For the last six months of 1982, the magistrates of the Thirteenth reported working 8,752 hours during which they received over 14,000 telephone calls, 8,573 in-person inquiries, and 33,383 requests for processes. In response to the requests, the magistrates issued 24,757 processes. The 74 percent overall rate of issuance was less than the statewide average of 83 percent.

Requests for arrest warrants totaled 10,409. Ninety-two percent were issued, including 2,060 for felonies, 7,461 for misdemeanors, and 81 summonses. The magistrates of the district processed 1,858 unsecured and 1,251 secured bonds. Of the secured bonds, 33 percent involved felonies. Search warrants were issued at a rate of 9.7 for every ten requested, somewhat higher than the statewide rate of 8.9:10. Nearly 800 prepayments for traffic infractions and Class IV misdemeanors were handled by the office during the six month reporting period.

For comparison purposes, the workload of the district has been annualized on the following annual summary table.

FOURTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Henrico County alone makes up the Fourteenth Judicial Circuit. Henrico's population was 108,735 according to the 1980 U. S. Census. This is a 17 percent increase since 1970.

The circuit was authorized four judgeships in 1982. Serving were E. Ballard Baker, L. Paul Byrne, Edmund W. Hening, Jr., and Robert M. Wallace. Judge Hening has announced his intentions to retire on August 1, 1983. His vacancy will be filled by Buford M. Parsons, Jr. The population per circuit court judge of 45,184 was twenty-first among all 31 circuits.

There were 4,331 commenced cases in the Fourteenth Circuit in 1982, a 6 percent increase from 1981. This change was the result of a 2 percent decline in civil and a 16 percent growth in criminal cases being commenced. Ranking twenty-seventh among the states' circuits, the judges of the Fourteenth averaged 1,083 commenced cases each. The state and urban means were 1,284 and 1,302, respectively.

The composition of the 1982 caseload was evenly weighted between civil and criminal cases. Specific figures were 15 percent law, 35 percent equity (or 50% civil), 24 percent felony, and 26 percent misdemeanor (or 50% criminal).

Concluded cases decreased by 2 percent or 87 during the year. Concluded civil cases fell by 346 while the number of crimial terminations increased by 259.

Cases concluded by a jury trial fell from 129 in 1981 to 51 in 1982. These trials occupied 148 days of the court's calendar, or nearly 3 days per each case concluded by a jury. With an average 13 jury trials per judge, the circuit ranked lowest statewide and significantly below the state average of 48.

The age of concluded cases reflected that 997 of the 1,781 concluded civil cases were terminated within 12 months of filing; 1,499 of the 1,729 concluded criminal cases reached disposition within five months of filing.

The district was authorized three general district court judges and two juvenile and domestic relations district court judges in 1982. Judges Donald R. Howren, Joseph J. Spinella, and H. Ratcliffe Turner heard general district cases while the juvenile and domestic relations cases were handled by Judges Augustus S. Hydrick and J. Mercer White, Jr. The five judges of the district averaged 29.5 substitute judge days in fiscal year 1982, above the statewide average of 26 assistance days.

There were 66,081 new cases, 67,073 hearings, and 66,361 dispositions reported in the general district court in 1982. New cases rose by 2 percent in comparison to the 1981 caseload. The growth in new cases was the result of an increase of 13 percent criminal cases and an increase of 4 percent traffic cases. Civil cases declined by 4 percent.

The district's 1982 caseload composition was 9 percent criminal, 57 percent traffic, and 34 percent civil. Compared to the statewide percentages of 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil, the district is more heavily weighted with traffic and civil cases.

Cases per judge averaged 22,027, seventh among urban district and below the urban mean of 23,474. The hearings per judge measure was 22,358 (urban mean, 29,003); hearings per case stood at 1.02 (urban mean, 1.24).

In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, a total of 6,526 new cases were reported with 11,798 hearings. This caseload represented a decline of 108 new cases with 18 additional hearings being reported. Juvenile new cases, experiencing a drop of 174, were reported as 3,867 for the year. These cases accounted for 59 percent of the total J&DR cases compared to a state average of 63 percent juvenile. Adult cases grew by 66 and numbered 2,659 for 1982. The measure of cases per judge was 3,263 and ranked sixth among urban districts. The urban mean was 3,477 new cases per judge. On the average, 1.81 hearings were held for each new case compared to the urban ratio of 1.93.

The county was served by nine magistrates during 1982. Working a total of 16,256 hours, they received 76,725 telephone calls and 7,716 inquiries from the public. Transaction requests totaled 43,498, a slight increase from the previous year. In response, the magistrates issued 38,434 processes.

Twenty-three percent of the total processes issued were arrest warrants. Nearly 6,400 misdemeanor warrants were handled by the magistrates as well as 1,442 felony warrants and 826 summonses. Of the 11,170 bond requests, 6,674 or 60 percent were issued. Misdemeanor bonds comprised the largest category (85%) of those processed during the year. In addition, the magistrates handled 8,293 subpoenas. All 69 of the search warrant requests were processed. Committals and releases were 4,959 and 4,153, respectively.

FIFTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Eleven localities comprise the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit: the counties of Caroline, Essex, Hanover, King George, Northumberland, Richmond, Spotsylvania, Stafford, Westmoreland, and Lancaster, and the city of Fredericksburg. According to the 1980 U. S. Census, the population of the circuit was 218,886, 38 percent higher than in 1970. The counties of Spotsylvania and Hanover grew significantly in population by 110 percent and 83 percent, respectively.

During 1982, the circuit was authorized four judgeships. Serving were Dixon L. Foster, John A. Jamison, Richard H. C. Taylor, and J. M. H. Willis, Jr. The population per judge was 54,722, ninth among the state's 31 circuits.

There were 4,634 commenced cases in 1982.This represented an additional 31 cases from the previous year. Civil commenced cases remained consistent with 1981 increasing by 10 (0.4%) while 21 additional cases (1.2%) were reported in the criminal category. Within the circuit, caseload growth was reported in Fredericksburg (43%), Lancaster (30%), Caroline (16%), Spotsylvania (12%), Essex (7%), and Stafford (1%). Lower caseloads were recorded in Hanover (– 18%), Richmond (– 17%), Westmoreland (– 13%), King George (– 3%), and Northumberland (– 3%).

The caseload composition was 23 percent law, 37 percent equity, 24 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor. This composition shows a greater proportion of civil cases (60%) than the statewide distribution of 55 percent civil and 45 percent criminal.

Commenced cases per judge numbered 1,159, giving the Fifteenth a ranking of twenty-third in the state, below the state average of 1,284 and rural average of 1,206.

A total of 4,896 cases were concluded in 1982, 202 more than in the previous year. This growth was the result of 13 fewer criminal cases, a loss offset by 215 additional civil cases.

Juries heard 233 cases during the year, 76 percent of which were criminal in nature. The courts used 231 days to hear these trials. The jury trial per judge average of 58 was above the state mean of 48.

There were 558 law cases assigned trial dates, 68 percent of which were set more than 90 days ahead. One-fourth of the 1,435 assigned criminal cases could not be set within the present term. Meeting disposition within one year of filing were 1,593 (or 51%) of the 3,134 terminated civil cases. Of the 1,762 criminal cases concluded, 1,545 (or 88%) were disposed of within five months.

There were four general district court judgeships authorized in 1982; Andrew G. Conlyn, Robert R. Gwathmey III, J. P. Farmer and J. L. Savage, Jr. served. Judge Conlyn retired on December 31, 1982, and was replaced by Tristram T. Hyde IV. In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, William J. Cox and Walther J. Fidler served as authorized judges. The judges of the district each used an average of 54.7 substitute and recalled retired judge days during the year compared to the state mean of 26 days per judge.

New cases in the general district court numbered 84,773 (an increase of 12% from 1981) and hearings totaled 82,440 (an increase of 10%). Civil cases grew substantially by 22 percent or 3,465 additional filings. Criminal and traffic cases both increased by 9 percent and totaled 12,579 and 52,614, respectively. With the exception of Caroline (-2%), Westmoreland (-5%), and Northumberland (-22%), all localities reported growth in the number of new cases initiated in 1982. Significant gains were reported by Fredericksburg (65%) and Lancaster (56%).

The composition of caseload was 15 percent criminal, 62 percent traffic, and 23 percent civil. Statewide composition was 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic and 31 percent civil.

Each judge averaged 21,193 cases, third highest among the 18 rural districts. The average number of hearings per judge was 20,610. The 1982 hearing per case ratio was 0.97.

In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, 7,880 new cases and 12,477 hearings were reported. Both of these measures showed declines from 1981 totals, decreasing 2 percent in the category of new cases and 5 percent in hearings. Within the district, only three localities reported increased caseloads for 1982: Lancaster with a 26 percent rise, Caroline grew by 15 percent, and Fredericksburg up 14 percent. Juvenile cases accounted for 64 percent of the district's total caseload, compared to the state average of 63 percent for these cases.

Cases per judge numbered 3,940, a measure second highest among all rural districts and above the rural mean of 2,615. Hearings per judge were 6,239; hearings per case were 1.58.

The Fifteenth was authorized 25 magistrates during 1982. During their 31,900 hours of activity, they received 16,245 telephone calls, 6,273 in-person inquiries, and 38,642 request for processes. Requests increased 20 percent over those recorded in 1981. Of the requests, 84 percent resulted in processes being issued. This rate is comparable to the 83 percent reported statewide.

Requests for arrest warrants numbered 15,221 with 14,293 being granted. These include 1,858 for felonies, 12,007 for misdemeanors and 428 summonses. Unsecured bonds totaled 5,179 of which 92 percent were for misdemeanors. Secured bonds included 513 for felonies and 2,708 for misdemeanors. Search warrants were granted for 88 percent or 58 of the 66 requests. Committals and releases numbered 4,752 and 3,625, respectively.

SIXTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Included in the Sixteenth Judicial Circuit are the counties of Albermarle, Culpeper, Fluvanna, Goochland, Greene, Louisa, Madison, and Orange as well as the city of Charlottesville. The 1980 U.S. Census reports the population of the circuit as 194,069 which reflects a 26 percent increase over the past decade. Albemarle and Green counties experienced the highest ratios of growth, 48 percent and 45 percent, respectively.

The circuit was authorized four circuit court judges during 1982 with Vance M. Fry, David F. Berry, F. Ward Harkrader, Jr., Herbert A Pickford III, and E. Gerald Tremblay. Judge Fry retired on March 1, 1982, and was replaced by Judge Tremblay. There were 48,517 residents per judge, a rank of sixteen among the 31 circuits.

The Sixteenth commenced 4,756 new cases in 1982, 36 (-1%) fewer than in the previous year. This change was attributable to a 10 percent decline in criminal cases, offset partially by a 7 percent jump in civil cases. For the year, 2,662 civil and 2,094 criminal cases were commenced in the circuit. Within the circuit, Goochland, Louisa and Orange reported caseload growths of less than 10 percent while Greene County noted a 58 percent rise in the number of commenced cases. This latter change was the result of the court's criminal caseload doubling its 1981 activity. Decreased caseloads were recorded in Albemarle (-1%), Culpeper (-16%), Fluvanna (9%), Madison (-12%), and Charlottesville (-11%).

Caseload composition for the circuit was 20 percent law, 36 percent equity, 29 percent felony, and 15 percent misdemeanor. State average composition of new cases was law - 21 percent, equity - 34 percent, felony -29 percent, and misdemeanor - 16 percent. Commenced cases per judge totaled 1,189, twenty-first in the state and below the rural mean of 1,206.

The judges each concluded 1,168 cases, 10 more than the year before. Although concluded civil cases grew by 168 to number 2,510, criminal cases fell by 125 to total 2,163 for the year.

The number of cases concluded by a jury was down from 1981's figure of 269. The circuit reported that the 251 jury trials occupied 231 days of the courts' calendars. The jury trial per judge measure of 63 was above the statewide average of 48.

Trial dates were set more than 90 days ahead for 51 percent of the 527 civil cases assigned dates while 33 percent of the 1,757 criminal cases assigned dates were scheduled beyond the present term. Slightly more than 57 percent (1,434) of the 2,510 concluded civil cases met disposition within one year of filing. Criminal cases showed a disposition rate of 82 percent (1,779) of the total 2,163 cases being terminated within five months of filing.

In the Sixteenth District, Basil C. Burke, Jr., Stephen H. Helvin, Franklin J. Jenkins, and D. B. Marshall served the general district court. William D. Reams, Jr. and Ralph P. Zehler, Jr. served as judges in the juvenile and domestic relations district court. These judges used 171.6 substitute and recalled retired judge days, for an average of 28.8 each. This compares to a state average of 26 for this measure.

The general district court reported 67,031 new cases and 78,009 hearings for the year. These figures represent changes of -6 percent and 1 percent, respectively, compared to 1981. Criminal new cases grew by 2 percent while traffic cases were down 9 percent. Civil cases decreased by 6 percent. Within the district, the county of Fluvanna was the only locality to report an increase in new cases, growing 17 percent.

The composition of new cases was 23 percent criminal, 53 percent traffic, and 24 percent civil. This compares to the state composition of 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil.

The judges each averaged 16,758 new cases, tenth among rural districts and below the rural average of 17,320. Hearings per judge were 19,502, slightly higher than the rural mean, 19,256. The hearing per case ratio stood at 1.16.

In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, 6,178 new cases were reported, a decrease of 2 percent or 120 cases. Hearings, however, increased, rising by 9 percent to reach 11,561. Juvenile cases decline 10 percent while adult cases grew 13 percent. The caseload composition was 61 percent juvenile and 39 percent adult new cases. Statewide this breakout was 63 percent and 37 percent, respectively. New cases per judge numbered 3,089, sixth among the 18 rural districts and above the state and rural averages of 3,034 and 2,615, respectively. Hearings per judge averaged 5,781 and hearings per case 1.87.

Twenty-two magistrate positions were authorized for the Sixteenth District in 1982. They reported working a combined total of 18,335 hours. During that time they received 37,784 requests for processes, 15,070 telephone calls, and 7,028 in-person inquiries. The magistrates reported driving 31,474 miles in the course of their duties. Of the 37,784 transactions, 33,975 processes were issued, or 90 percent. Transactions declined by 10 percent and processes issued decreased by 13 percent compared to 1981. During the year, the magistrates handled 19,137 requests for arrest warrants, issuing 17,178 or 90 percent. This was comparable to the state average of 89 percent. Arrest warrants comprised 51 percent of the district's total processes.

Bonds issued totaled 7,104, of which 1,854 were secured. Of the unsecured bonds, 9 percent were for felonies and 91 percent for misdemeanors.

During the year, 2,390 civil warrants and 97 search warrants were issued. Committals and release orders totaled 3,713 and 2,679, respectively.

SEVENTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Seventeenth Judicial Circuit serves the county of Arlington. The area's population has declined 12 percent since 1970 with the 1980 U.S. Census listing it as 152,599.

Four judgeships were authorized for the circuit during 1982. Servinc the Seventeenth were Charles S. Russell, Paul D. Brown, Charles H. Duff, William L. Winston, and Thomas R. Monroe. Judge Russell was elected to the Supreme Court of Virignia on March 1, 1982. The population per judge measure was 38,150, twenty-fourth among the state's 31 circuits. The state average stood at 46,093.

During the year, the circuit reported 4,055 commenced cases, a decrease of 3 percent from 1981's 4,157. This change was primarily due to a 6 percent decrease (128 cases) on the criminal side of the docket . Civil new cases, up 26 from 1981, were reported at 1,917.

The composition of the Seventeenth's 1982 commenced caseload was 19 percent law, 28 percent equity, 48 percent felony, 4 percent misdemeanor, and one percent habeas corpus/post conviction. This distribution was weighted more heavily with felony cases than the statewide distribution of 29 percent, and significantly less than the 16 percent of misdemeanor cases.

The number of commenced cases per judge was 1,104, second lowest among the state's 31 circuits and well below the urban mean of 1.302.

Concluded cases numbered 3,362, a decrease of 633 cases from 1981. This decrease resulted primarily from the fact that 579 fewer civil cases were concluded last year. Concluded criminal cases were down by 54.

Juries concluded 52 civil and 125 criminal cases in the circuit. These cases required 319 days to be heard.

Trial dates were assigned to 835 law and 2,898 criminal cases. Nearly 67 percent or 559 of the civil case trials were assigned at least 90 days ahead while 32 percent or 935 of the criminal case trials were not assigned in the present term. Of the 1,716 terminated civil cases, 797 reached disposition within one year of filing. More than 62 percent (1,019) of the 1,646 concluded criminal cases were terminated within five months.

The Seventeenth District was authorized three general district court judges in 1982. Serving were Richard W. Corman, Joseph C. Gwaltney, Thomas R. Monroe, Francis Everett Thomas, and Eleanor S. Dobson. Judge Thomas replaced Judge Corman who retired on February 1, 1982, and Judge Dobson replaced Judge Monroe who was elected to the circuit court. Serving the J&DR district court were Andrew B. Ferrari and Berton V. Kramer. The judges used a total of 124 substitute and recalled retired judge days. This was an average of 25.3 days per judge, slightly below the state mean of 26.

Arlington's General District Court reported 55,152 new cases in 1982, 1,549 more than in 1981. Hearings rose by 9 percent to reach 72,366. Civil cases grew by 9 percent totaling 8,821; criminal cases increased by 8 percent reaching 6,773; and traffic cases rose by less than one percent and numbered 39,558 for the year.

New caseload composition was 12 percent criminal, 72 percent traffic, and 16 percent civil, a composition extremely skewed towards traffic cases in comparison to state averages of 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil.

Cases per judge numbered 18,384, the eighteenth highest in the state and below the state mean (20,473). The hearing per case ratio was calculated at 1.30. Urban averages were 29,003 new cases per judge and 1.24 hearings per case.

The J&DR district court new caseload was reported at 3,294, a rise of 8 percent over 1981's figure. Hearings fell slightly (-2%) and totaled 11,180.

Nearly 80 percent of the total caseload was made up of juvenile cases which grew 7 percent to reach 2,620 for 1982. Adult cases, representing only 20 percent of the caseload, were numbered at 674, an increase of 73 or 12 percent. On a statewide basis, juvenile cases comprised 63 percent of the total new caseload.

There were 1,647 cases per judge on the average, the lowest among urban districts and less than half the urban average of 3,477. Hearings per judge were 5,590 (urban average, 6,708) and the hearings per case ratio stood at 3.39. This latter ratio was the highest throughout the state.

The Special Magistrates of the Seventeenth Judicial District became part of the statewide Magistrate System on July 1, 1982. The district is authorized six magistrates plus one chief magistrate. Statistics for the last six months of 1982 indicate that the magistrates were on duty 4,874 hours during which they received nearly 9,000 telephone calls and in-person inquiries in addition to responding to 17,142 requests for processes. Of the total requests, 15,378 processes resulted.

Magistrates issued 4,670 arrest warrants and 181 summonses for a rate of 9.98 per 10 requested. Bond requests numbered 5,325 with 3,654 being issued. Of the 2,328 unsecured bonds, 91 percent were for misdemeanors. Secured bonds totaled 1,326 with 344 identified as felony. The six month process activity also included 46 search warrants, 37 temporary mental detention orders, and over 3,000 jail commitals. The magistrates also handled 371 prepayments for traffic infractions.

The Annual Summary Data, on the following page, reflects annualized magistrate activity for comparison purposes.

EIGHTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The city of Alexandria is the only locality in the Eighteenth Judicial Circuit. Based on the 1980 U.S. Census, Alexandria's population was 103,217, representing a 7 percent decline during the last decade.

The circuit was authorized three judgeships in 1982: Albert H. Grenadier, Donald Hall Kent, and Wiley R. Wright, Jr. served the court. The population per judge measure of 34,406 was twenty-seventy in the state and well below the state average of 46,093.

The circuit commenced 3,762 cases, 286 more than in 1981 (an 8% increase). This change was the result of 197 additional civil filings and 89 additional criminal cases. The judges of the circuit averaged 1,254 commenced cases, seventeenth among the state's 31 circuits.

The composition of the 1982 caseload was again weighted more heavily with felony cases (33%) than the statewide distribution of law - 21 percent, equity - 34 percent, felony - 29 percent, and misdemeanor - 16 percent.

Concluded cases fell by 37 and numbered 3,576 for 1982. Minimal decreases were noted in civil (-35) and criminal (-2) concluded cases.

During the past year, 179 cases (50 civil, 129 criminal) were concluded by a jury trial. This represents a 43 percent increase over the 1981 jury trial cases. Jury trials occupied 142 days of the court's calendar. The judges averaged 60 jury trials each in comparison to the state mean of 48.

Trial dates were assigned for 285 civil cases, 121 (or 42%) of which were set for more than 90 days ahead. Of the 765 criminal cases set for trial, 376 (or 49%) were not assigned in the present term. Of the 1,924 civil terminations, 56 percent were concluded within one year of filing. Of the 1,652 criminal terminations, 87 percent were disposed of within five months of filing.

The Eighteenth Judicial District was authorized three judgeships during 1982. Serving the general district court were Robert T. S. Colby and D. F. O'Flaherty. One juvenile and domestic relations district court judge served as authorized: Joseph L. Peters, Jr. The judges used a total of 125.5 substitute and recalled retired judge days in fiscal year 1982, an average of 41.8 days per judge. The state average was 26 days per district court judge.

Judges of the Eighteenth District reported 39,967 new cases and 52,762 hearings for 1982. The number of new cases decreased 4 percent from the 1981 caseload while hearings were 2 percent greater. The decline in new cases was due to a 10 percent drop (2,780 cases) in traffic cases. Criminal and civil cases grew by 14 percent and 7 percent, respectively, during the year.

The caseload composition was 12 percent criminal, 62 percent traffic, and 26 percent civil, compared to state averages of 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil.

The new case per judge measure was 19,984, ninth among the 14 urban district and lower than the urban mean of 23,474. Hearings per judge average 26,381 (urban mean was 29,003) and the hearings per case ratio stood at 1.32.

The juvenile and domestic relations district court reported 2,370 new cases, 7,205 hearings, and 2,366 dispositions. New cases fell slightly (-0.5%) from the 1981 caseload while hearings grew by 4 percent. adult cases increases by 92 or 13 percent to reach 809 while juvenile cases decreased by 104 and numbered 1,561, or 66 percent of the total J&DR new caseload for 1982. The average state composition showed juvenile cases representing 63 percent of the total caseload.

The measure of new cases per judge was 2,370, ranking the district eleventh out of the 14 urban districts; hearings per judge were 7,205, higher than the urban mean of 6,708. The hearings per case ratio was 3.04, much above the urban mean of 1.93.

Effective July 1, 1982, magistrates of the Eighteenth District were incorporated into the statewide Magistrate System. With an authorization of 6 magistrates, 4,284 hours of service were logged for the second half of 1982. In addition to the 8,247 requests for processes, the magistrates responded to over 13,000 individual inquiries. Processes were issued for 83 percent of the requests, identical to the statewide average. Arrest warrants, which numbered 2,200, were issued at a rate of 7.5 per 10 requested. Bonds issued during the last six months of 1982 totaled 2,166: 1,648 unsecured, 518 secured. Slightly more than 80 percent of the bond requests were issued. Search warrants were issued at a rate of 9.65 per every 10 requested. The magistrates of the district also issued 12 temporary mental detention orders and 28 subpoenas during the six month period. Prepayments were processed for 145 traffic infractions and 45 Class IV misdemeanors.

For comparison purposes, activity reported on the Annual Summary Data page has been annualized.

NINETEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Nineteenth Judicial Circuit includes Fairfax County and the cities of Fairfax and Falls Church. The 1980 U. S. Census lists the population of the area as 625,806. This population reflects an increase of 28 percent over the 1970 population.

Effective July 1, 1982, the circuit was authorized eleven judgeships. J. Bruce Bach, Barbara M. Keenan, Lewis H. Griffith, Richard J. Jamborsky, Barnard F. Jennings, Thomas J. Middleton, Jr., Burch Millsap, Johanna L. Fitzpatrick, Quinlan H. Hancock, Lewis D. Morris, and William G. Plummer served the circuit. Judge Morris retired at the close of 1982 and J. Howe Brown, Jr. was elected to fill the vacancy. The population per circuit court judge was 56,891, sixth highest throughout the state.

In 1982, the circuit commenced 14,382 cases, up 4 percent from the previous year. Civil filings grew by 643 while criminal cases fell by 40. The 1982 commenced caseload per judge measure was 1,307, comparable to the urban average of 1,302.

The composition of the commenced caseload was 25 percent law, 41 percent equity, 21 percent felony, and 13 percent misdemeanor. This distribution varied from the statewide composition of 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, 29 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor.

Terminations increased by 11 percent during the year and totaled 14,755. Civil terminations increased by 1,458 or 16 percent, while 45 fewer (1%) criminal cases were concluded.

Juries concluded 498 cases for the year, reflecting a 6 percent decrease from 1981's 532. The judges averaged 45 trials each compared to the state value of 48. The courts used 704 days to hear jury trials.

Trial dates were assigned to 1,609 law cases of which 60 percent were set ahead more than 90 days. Of the 3,610 criminal cases scheduled for trial, 38 percent were not assigned dates in the present term. One-third of the 10,342 concluded civil cases received a disposition witin twelve months of filing. On the criminal side, 92 percent of the 4,413 terminated cases were concluded within five months.

The general district court was authorized seven judgeships in 1982. Serving this court were G. William Hammer, Richard T. Horan, Robert M. Hurst, Barbara M. Keenan, Frank B. Perry III, Thomas J. Rothrock, J. Conrad Waters, Jr., and Stuart P. Davis. Judge Davis replaced Judge Keenan who was elected to the circuit court. Thomas J. Fortkort, Arnold B. Kassabian, Michael J. Valentine, Frank L. Deierhoi, Gaylord L. Finch, Jr., and Johanna L. Fitzpatrick served the juvenile and domestic relations district court with Judge Finch replacing Judge Fitzpatrick when she assumed the circuit court judgeship. The judges used a total of 363.5 substitute days in fiscal year 1982.

The 1982 general district caseload included 159,193 new cases, 183,181 hearings, and 157,202 dispositions. New cases reflected a 9 percent increase over the number reported in 1981. Hearings increased by 4 percent. Criminal cases were reported as a slight decline (150 fewer) from 1981. These cases totaled 19,765 and represented 12 percent of the total caseload. Traffic cases increased by 14 percent, reaching 111,777 and represented the bulk (70%) of the Nineteenth's caseload. Civil cases numbered 27,651 for the year and comprised 17 percent of the total caseload. The statewide breakout was 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil.

Within the district, Falls Church reported the greatest change in the number of new cases, increasing by 15 percent from their 1981 level. Fairfax County's cases, which represent 90 percent of the district's total caseload, recorded a 10 percent growth. The number of cases reported by Fairfax City represented a 3 percent decline from the previous year.

New cases per general district judge averaged 22,742, slightly below the urban mean of 23,474, and ranked the district sixth among the 14 urban districts. Hearings per judge, 26,169, was lower than the urban average of 29,003. The hearings per case ratio was 1.15.

The juvenile and domestic relations courts reported an increase of 15 percent to total 10,025 new cases for 1982. This growth was the result of 1,663 (45%) additional adult cases and 998 (7%) additional juvenile cases. Hearings also increased and reached 29,386 for the year. The caseload composition was 73 percent juvenile and 27 percent adult, a composition more heavily weighted wth juvenile cases than the statewide distribution of 63 percent juvenile and 37 percent adult.

The Nineteenth's 4,005 new cases per judge ranked the district fourth among the urban districts and fifth statewide for this measure. Hearings per judge averaged 5,877 (urban mean, 6,708) and the hearings per case ratio was 1.47 (urban mean, 1.93).

The Special Magistrate System serving this district became a part of the statewide Magistrate System on July 1, 1982. For the time period July-December, they reported receiving 54,388 requests for processes during their 24,455 hours of activity. Eighty-two percent of the requests resulted in a process being issued. This is comparable to the statewide average of 83 percent.

Of the 13,894 requests for arrest warrants, the magistrates issued 2,118 felony warrants, 9,392 misdemeanor warrants and 1,165 summonses. Secured bonds totaled 2,992 or 30 percent of all bonds issued. Unsecured bonds numbered 6,920, 93 percent of which were for misdemeanor charges. During the last half of 1982, 60 search warrants were issued. Committals and releases numbered 9,142 and 9,025, respectively.

For comparison purposes, annualized workload measures are presented on the following annual summary table.

TWENTIETH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twentieth Judicial Circuit serves the northern Virginia counties of Fauquier, Loudoun, and Rappahannock. The population of the area increased by 45 percent from 1970 to reach 99,409, as reported by the 1980 U. S. Census. All jurisdictions within the circuit showed increases in the number of residents.

Effective July 1, 1982, the circuit was authorized three judgeships. Serving the area were Carleton Penn, William S. Robertson, and Thomas D. Horne. The population per judge was listed as 33,136, third lowest in the state and below the state mean of 46,093.

The 1981 commenced caseload was 2,527, an increase of 2 percent or 40 cases over 1981's 2,487. This increase was the result of 5 additional civil and 35 additional criminal cases. Within the circuit, all jurisdictions reported increases in caseload except Rappahannock where new cases declined by 72 or 38 percent. Increases for the other localities included a less than one percent change in Loudoun and a 13 percent rise in Fauquier's commenced cases.

The composition of the 1982 caseload was 19 percent law, 40 percent equity, 31 percent felony, and 10 percent misdemeanor. This composition was more heavily weighted with equity and felony cases than the statewide distribution of 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, 29 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor.

The circuit court judges each averaged 842 new cases, lowest among the state's 31 circuits. The 1982 state mean for this measure was 1,284 commenced cases per circuit court judge.

Concluded cases totaled 2,481 or 17 percent more than in 1981 when 2,123 terminations were reported. Civil terminations increased by 5 percent to reach 1,352. Forty-nine percent of these concluded civil cases were disposed of within one year of filing. Criminal terminations rose by 35 percent to reach 1,129. Of these cases, 626 or 59 percent met disposition within five months.

There were 160 law cases assigned trial dates in 1982, 69 percent of which were set at least 90 days ahead. Of the 522 criminal cases assigned dates, 45 were not heard in the present term.

Juries concluded 187 cases during 1982, a 134 percent increase over 1981. These cases required 113 days of the courts' calendars. Each judge heard, on the average, 62 jury trials, a measure well above the state mean of 48.

The Twentieth Judicial District was authorized two general district judges: Archibald M. Aiken, Jr. and John Alexander. Effective July 1, 1982, the juvenile and domestic relations district courts were served by A. Burke Hertz and John P. Ryan. The judges of the district used 73.5 substitute days, averaging 24.5 days per judge. This measure was below the 26 substitute days per judge statewide for fiscal year 1982.

There were 27,549 new cases and 33,555 hearings in the general district court in 1982. New cases showed no substantial change from the previous year while hearings fell by 4 percent or 1,238. Although total cases increased by only 4, there was significant change in the composition of the caseload. The growth in civil and criminal cases (688 and 262, respectively) offset the 946 fewer traffic cases. The resulting caseload distribution was 16 percent criminal, 65 percent traffic, and 19 percent civil. Statewide, these proportions were 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil.

Only Loudoun County reported growth in their 1982 caseload, increasing by 4 percent. Rappahannock's and Fauquier's caseloads fell by 10 percent and 4 percent, respectively.

The general district court judges each averaged 13,775 new cases and 16,778 hearings in 1982. This caseload was seventeenth highest among the 18 rural districts and below the rural mean of 17,320 new cases per judge. The hearings per case ratio was 1.22, above the rural mean of 1.11.

In the juvenile and domestic relations district courts, 4,347 new cases and 7,509 hearings were reported, increasing from 1981. The rise in caseload was attributable to 244 additional adult and 66 additional juvenile cases. Within the district, Fauquier reported 257 additional cases (18.6% increase) and Rappahannock's caseload grew by 55 cases, a 37 percent jump from their 1981 caseload level. Loudoun reported 2 fewer cases in 1982 than in 1981.

The distribution of new cases was 64 percent juvenile and 36 percent adult, very similar to the statewide distribution for 1982. The judges each averaged 2,174 cases during the year, below the rural district average of 2,615 new cases per judge. Each judge handled 3,755 hearings during the year. The hearings per case ratio was 1.73.

Nine magistrate positions were authorized for the Twentieth District during 1982. They reported 6,743 hours of activity, 7,446 telephone calls and 1,613 in-person inquiries. The magistrates received 29 percent more requests for processes and issued 34 percent more than reported in 1981. Of the 15,949 requests, 85 percent resulted in a process being issued. Statewide, this value was 83 percent. The 13,509 processes included 5,783 arrest warrants and 3,035 bonds. Arrest warrants were issued at a rate of 9.3 per 10 requested and bonds at 7 per 10 requested. Of the 599 secured bonds, 28 percent or 170 were for felonies. The magistrates of the district issued 41 search warrants and 66 temporary mental detention orders. Committals and releases for 1982 numbered 1,966 and 1,873, respectively.

MARTINSVILLE
PATRICK
HENRY

TWENTY-FIRST JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twenty-First Judicial Circuit consists of the counties of Henry and Patrick and the city of Martinsville. The population for the circuit rose to 93,450 according to the 1980 U.S. Census, an increase of 9 percent.

Judges John D. Hooker, Frank I. Richardson, Jr., and Kenneth M. Covington served the circuit court in 1982. Judge Hooker retired on January 31, 1982, and the vacancy was filled by Judge Covington, previously of the General District Court. The population per judge was 46,725 and ranked the circuit twentieth statewide. The state average stood at 46,093 residents per circuit court judge.

The Twenty-First Circuit commenced 2,970 new cases in 1982, down from the 3,149 cases reported the previous year. This change was the result of a 9 percent drop in civil cases accompanied by a 10 percent decline in criminal commenced cases. The composition of the 1982 commenced caseload was 23 percent law, 23 percent equity, 29 percent felony, and 25 percent misdemeanor, varying little from 1981's distribution. The circuit's caseload was weighted more heavily with misdemeanor cases than the state's average distribution of 16 percent. The caseload per judge measure was 1,485, ranking fifth highest in the state and well above the rural mean of 1,206.

Within the circuit, Henry County showed an 11 percent decline in their new caseload; Martinsville reported a decreased caseload of less than one percent; and Patrick's commenced cases grew by one (0.3%) case.

Concluded cases, likewise, fell during 1982 and totaled 2,620. This figure represented a decrease of 423 cases or 14 percent. All localities within the circuit reported that fewer cases were concluded in 1982 than in 1981.

During 1982, juries concluded 19 civil and 56 criminal cases. These trials occupied a total of 79 days. The number of jury trials per judge stood at 38, lower than the state average of 48.

Trial dates were assigned to 257 civil cases, 94 (or 37%) of which were set at least 90 days ahead. Of the 1,148 assigned criminal cases, 281 (or 24%) were not set within the present term. The age of terminated cases reveals that 64 percent of the concluded civil cases reached disposition within one year while 92 percent of the terminated criminal cases were concluded within five months of filing.

Judges J. Frank Greenwalt, Jr., Charles M. Stone, and Kenneth M. Covington served the general district courts during 1982. Judge Stone replaced Judge Covington when he was appointed to the circuit court. Judge J. English Ford served the district's juvenile and domestic relations courts. The judges of the district averaged 29.8 substitute and recalled retired judge days each during the last fiscal year.

In 1982, the district's caseload was 21,597 new cases and 27,140 hearings, representing a 2 percent decrease in new cases and a 12 percent rise in the number of hearings. Civil new cases fell by 781 during 1982 while traffic cases increased by 195 and criminal by 66. Martinsville reported 648 additional cases over their 1981 level and was the only locality within the district to record an increased caseload. Henry County's new cases were 669 less than the previous year while Patrick County reported 499 fewer cases.

The Twenty-First's general district court caseload was composed of 21 percent criminal, 37 percent traffic, and 42 percent civil, a composition which was more heavily weighted in civil cases than statewide averages. Statewide caseload proportions were 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil. Caseload per judge averaged 10,799 new cases, lowest among the rural districts and well below the rural mean of 17,320. The district's hearings per case ratio of 1.26 was above the rural mean of 1.11.

In 1982, the juvenile and domestic relations district courts reported 3,516 new cases and 4,689 hearings. The hearing per case ratio was 1.33, compared to a rural measure of 1.92. New cases grew 11 percent from 1981 and hearings were up 15 percent. The growth in new caseload was the result of a 16 percent increase in adult cases and an 8 percent increase in juvenile cases. Juvenile cases constituted 57 percent of the total caseload. Statewide, juvenile cases accounted for 63 percent of the total J&DR new cases. Within the district, Henry County reported a 26 percent jump in new cases with the initiation of 459 more cases than in 1981. Martinsville recorded 93 fewer cases and Patrick County noted a decrease of 8 new cases.

Judge Ford handled 3,516 new cases and 4,689 hearings. The mesure of new cases per judge ranked fifth among the 18 rural districts and above the rural mean of 2,615 cases per judge.

The Twenty-First District was authorized nine magistrates who reported 12,550 hours of activity during 1982. They also reported receiving 26,774 telephone calls and 9,221 in-person inquiries during the year. The magistrates also logged 9,310 miles and handled 28,842 requests for processes, a small increase from 1981. Processes were issued for 94 percent of these requests. This was well above the statewide issuance rate of 83 percent. Arrest warrant processes included 760 felonies, 5,449 misdemeanors, and 25 summonses. Secured bonds numbered 1,662, 31 percent of which were for felonies. Civil warrants totaled 8,174 for the year. Committals and releases were listed as 1,833 and 2,452, respectively.

TWENTY-SECOND JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twenty-Second Judicial Circuit is composed of Franklin and Pittsylvania counties and the city of Danville. The total area population grew to 147,529 in 1980 according to the U. S. Census, an increase of 11 percent from 1970.

The Twenty-Second Circuit was authorized three judgeships in 1982 and these were filled by Beverly A. Davis III, Samuel M. Hairston, and James F. Ingram. The population per judge was 49,176, fourteenth among the 31 circuits.

The 1982 commenced caseload was 4,335, 5 percent or 202 less than 1981's figure. This decrease was primarily the result of a decline of 258 cases (- 18%) in the commenced caseload of Franklin County. Increased caseloads were reported by Pittsbylvania (1.8%) and Danville (1.6%). Circuitwide, civil cases fell by 59 and criminal cases declined by 146.

The judges of the circuit averaged 1,445 commenced cases, a measure seventh highest throughout the Commonwealth. The 1982 rural and statewide measures were 1,206 and 1,284 commenced cases per circuit court judge, respectively.

The composition of the 1982 caseload was 15 percent law, 27 percent equity, 36 percent felony, and 22 percent misdemeanor. The state's distribution was 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, 29 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor.

Concluded cases numbered 5,214, 14 percent more than in 1981. The circuit concluded 2,069 civil (300 additional) and 3,145 criminal (348 additional) cases. Cases concluded by juries numbered 169, down from the 238 reported in 1981. A total of 141 days were spent hearing these jury trials. The judges averaged 56 jury trials each in comparison to the state mean of 48.

Trial dates were assigned for 465 civil cases, 17 percent of which were set more than 90 days ahead. Of the 2,544 criminal cases set for trial, only 26 (1%) were not set during the present term. Over three-fourths of the civil terminations were concluded within one year of filing. Of the 3,145 criminal terminations, 3,074 or 98 percent met disposition within five months.

In 1982, the Twenty-Second Judicial District was authorized four judgeships. T. Ryland Dodson and F. Nelson Light served in the general district courts. Spiros B. Skenderis and Robert F. Ward served the juvenile and domestic relations district court. The judges of the Twenty-Second used 114.8 substitute days in fiscal year 1982 averaging 28.7 days each.

The general district courts reported 35,242 new cases and 41,455 hearings in 1982 compared to 36,645 cases and 43,143 hearings in 1981. The hearing per case ratio of 1.18 was consistent with the previous year's measure. The drop in new cases was the result of 2,102 fewer civil cases; 359 less criminal cases; and 1,058 additional traffic cases districtwide. Within the district, the caseloads of Danville and Franklin fell by 1,698 and 684 cases, respectively, while Pittsylvania recorded 979 more cases than in 1981.

The distribution of cases in the Twenty-Second was 23 percent criminal, 42 percent traffic, and 35 percent civil. The statewide proportions were 17 percent, 52 percent, and 31 percent, respectively.

The general district court judges averaged 17,261 new cases and 20,728 hearings each. The rural means for 1982 were 17,320 new cases and 19,256 hearings per judge. For the measure of new cases per judge, the district ranked eighth among the 18 rural districts.

The 1982 juvenile and domestic relations district court caseload included 5,283 new cases, 11,468 hearings, and 4,417 dispositions. The 2 percent increase in new cases resulted from 59 additional juvenile and 52 additional adult cases. Nearly 60 percent of the total new cases were juvenile in nature, slightly less than the state proportion of 63 percent.

Within the district, increases in the new J&DR caseload were reported in two localities: Danville recorded 139 additional cases for a 6 percent growth and Franklin's caseload grew by 9 cases or 1 percent. A decrease of 37 cases (2%) was noted by Pittsylvania.

The judges of the juvenile and domestic relations district courts averaged 2,642 new cases and 5,734 hearings each. The 1982 rural values were 2,615 new cases and 5,010 hearings per judge. The hearings per case ratio of 2.17 ranked above the rural mean of 1.92.

The Twenty-Second District was authorized eleven magistrates during 1982. The magistrates received and reviewed 41,863 requests for processes. These transactions reflected a slight decrease from the previous year. Of the requests, 83 percent resulted in a process being issued. The percentage was identical statewide. During the course of their 19,168 activity hours, the magistrates received 10,879 requests for arrest warrants. They issued 9,427 including 1,060 for felonies, 7,507 for misdemeanors, and 860 summonses.

Of the 10,391 requests for bonds, a total of 4,175 unsecured bonds were issued. Seventy-three percent of the secured bonds were for misdemeanors. the magistrates reported issuing 9,772 civil warrants, 53 search warrants, and 158 temporary mental detention orders in 1982.

TWENTY-THIRD JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twenty-Third Judicial Circuit includes the cities of Roanoke and Salem and Roanoke County. The 1980 census reports a population for the entire circuit of 197,123, which represents a 9 percent increase since 1970.

Judges Ernest W. Ballou, Jack B. Coulter, Frederick L. Hoback, Lawrence L. Koontz, Jr., and Kenneth E. Trabue served the circuit courts in 1982. The population per judge of 39,425 ranks the circuit twenty-third in the Commonwealth and below the state mean of 46,093.

There were 6,759 cases commenced during 1982, an increase of 134 from 1981. This growth was the result of an additional 197 commenced criminal cases partially offset by 63 fewer civil filings. The Twenty-Thrd Circuit's commenced cases per judge measure was 1,352, compared to the state average of 1,284. The circuit ranked eleventh highest among the 31 circuits for this measure.

The 1982 new caseload consisted of 18 percent law, 31.3 percent equity, 39.4 percent felony, 10.9 percent misdemeanor, and 0.4 percent habeas corpus/post conviction; totaling 39 percent civil and 51 percent criminal. State figures were 55 percent civil and 45 percent criminal.

A total of 6,890 cases were concluded during 1982, 9 percent more than in the previous year. The number of concluded criminal cases rose by 11 percent and civil by 6 percent.

Cases concluded by juries fell 32 percent totaling 84 for the year. These trials occupied 119 days of judges' service. Each judge averaged 17 jury trials compared to the state average of 48. Compared to other circuits, the Twenty-Third ranked second lowest throughout the state for this measure.

Of the 274 law cases assigned trial dates, 30 or only 11 percent were set more than 90 days ahead. With regard to criminal cases, 667 or 14 percent of the 4,693 assigned were not given trial dates in the present term. The age of concluded cases shows that 43 percent of the 3,476 civil cases were disposed of within twelve months of filing and 89 percent of the 3,414 concluded criminal cases were terminated within five months.

The Twenty-Third District was authorized five general district judgeships during 1982. Serving were James P. Brice, Gerald O. Clemens, Charles O. Cornelison, Edward S. Kidd, Jr., and Arthur B. Crush, Jr. These judges provided assistance to the Twenty-Seventh District on a regular basis throughout the year. Three juvenile and domestic relations district court judges served the Twenty-Third as well. These included James W. Flippin, Frederick L. Hoback, Jr., and Roy B. Willett. The judges of the district used 166 substitute and recalled retired judge days during the last fiscal year for an averge of 20.8 per judge, somewhat lower than the state average of 26.

There were 78,979 new cases and 84,864 hearings in the district representing increases of 4 percent and 1 percent, respectively, from 1981. The greatest change occurred in the number of civil cases which rose 16 percent to 28,219. Criminal cases fell 2 percent to 17,850 and traffic cases decreased 1 percent to 32,910. The composition of the new caseload was 23 percent criminal, 42 percent traffic, and 35 percent civil. The 1982 statewide proportions were 17 percent, 52 percent, and 31 percent, respectively.

Within the district, the caseload of Roanoke City grew by 4,162 (or 8%). Salem reported 689 additional cases over their 1981 level, an increase of 15 percent. Roanoke County's caseload fell by 1,740 cases when compared with 1981 figures.

The judges (4.6 FTE) averaged 17,169 new cases and 18,449 hearings compared to the urban average of 23,474 and 29,003. The district's ranking of new cases per judge placed thirteenth among the 14 urban districts and twenty-first statewide. The hearings per case ratio of 1.07 was below the urban measure of 1.24.

The juvenile and domestic relations district court reported 9,345 new cases, a decrease of 5 percent from 1981 while the number of hearings rose 5 percent to 17,306. Juvenile cases constituted a majority of the decrease, falling 9 percent compared to an increase of 2 percent in adult cases. Adult cases numbered 3,271 or 35 percent of the total caseload and juvenile cases reported were 6,074 or 65 percent. Average state caseload composition was 37 percent adult and 63 percent juvenile.

All localities within the district reported new cases below their 1981 levels: Roanoke County (- 7%), Roanoke City (- 5%), and Salem (-0.3%).

With 3,115 cases per judge, the district ranked twelfth among the state districts and below the urban mean of 3,477. The hearings per case ratio was 1.88, below both urban mean (1.93) and state mean (1.92).

The Twenty-Third District was authorized eleven magistrates during the year. They received 23,408 telephone calls and 9,904 in-person inquiries during their 18,226 hours of activity. The magistrates handled 70,628 requests for processes, a 7 percent decrease from 1981. Issued processes for the year totaled 51,811, also a small decrease when compared to figures for the previous year.

Requests for arrest warrants were reported as 20,194 with 87 percent being issued. Statewide, arrest warrants were issued for 89 percent of the requests. Forty-two percent of the 7,958 bonds issued were secured. Of those, 35 percent were for felonies. Search warrants were issued at a rate of 9.6 per 10 requested. Committals and releases numbered 12,739 and 11,447, respectively.

TWENTY-FOURTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twenty-Fourth Judicial Circuit is comprised of the counties of Amherst, Bedford, Campbell and Nelson, and the cities of Bedford, Lynchburg and Waynesboro. The 1980 population was 209,740, according to the U. S. Census, an increase of 14 percent from 1970's 184,622 listing. The 1983 General Assembly, upon the recommendation of the Judicial Council, revised the locality composition of the Twenty-Fourth and Twenty-Fifth Circuits. Effective July 1, 1983, Waynesboro will become part of the Twenty-Fifth Judicial Circuit.

The circuit was served by four judges during 1982: J. Samuel Johnston, Jr., Robert C. Goad, Norman K. Moon, and William W. Sweeney. The 1982 population per judge measure stood at 52,435, eleventh highest in the state.

There were 5,241 commenced cases in 1982 in the Twenty-Fourth, a 1 percent increase from 1981. Civil cases were reported as 2,589 and criminal cases numbered 2,652. Within criminal cases, the number of felonies increased by 233; misdemeanors fell by 149, and habeas corpus/post conviction cases were down by 33. Law cases decreased by 32 while equity cases grew by 37. Compared to 1981 figures, increased caseloads were reported in Bedford (10%), Waynesboro (10%), and Campbell (6%). Declining from the previous year were the caseloads of Amherst (-9%), Nelson (-5%), and Lynchburg (-2%). The judges of the circuit averaged 1,310 commenced cases each, ranking their circuit thirteenth highest in the state for this measure.

The composition of the Twenty-Fourth's commenced caseload was 17 percent law, 32 percent equity, 36 percent felony, and 15 percent misdemeanor, weighted more heavily with criminal cases than the statewide distribution for 1982.

Concluded cases totaled 5,176, up slightly from 1981's 5,105. Concluded civil cases dropped by 15 while criminal cases increased by 86 cases or 4 percent.

Cases concluded by a jury trial fell again during 1982 dropping from 271 to 243. However, the judges averaged 61 jury trials each, well above the state average of 48. Hearing these trials required 224 days of the courts' calendars.

There were 741 civil cases assigned trial dates, 237 (32%) of which were set at least 90 days ahead. Of the 2,218 criminal cases assigned dates, 499 (23%) were not set for the present term. Of the 2,564 concluded criminal cases, 87 percent reached disposition within five months from the date of scheduling. Nearly 60 percent of the civil concluded cases were terminated within one year.

In 1982, the Twenty-Fourth District was authorized four general district court judges. James S. Farmer, Coy M. Kiser, Jr., Leroy E. Glass, Richard S. Miller, and Jesse C. Crumbley III served. Judge Crumbley replaced Judge Glass who retired on July 1, 1982. The juvenile and domestic relations district courts were served by Lawrence Janow, W. Raymond Minnix, Dale H. Harris, and Earl W. Wingo, who retired on January 31, 1982. The judges of the district used 180.5 substitute and recalled retired judge days, an average of 26.5 per judge.

The general district courts reported 59,492 new cases (a decrease of 5% from 1981) and 73,340 hearings (a decrease of less than one-half percent). All case categories reported declining caseloads for 1982: traffic cases were down by 1,967, criminal fell by 520 cases, and civil dropped by 307. Within the district, all localities, with the exception of Nelson, reported lower 1982 caseloads than in 1981. These decreases ranged from 183 fewer cases in Bedford to a decline of 776 new cases in Campbell County. Nelson county reported a 9 percent growth, or 272 additional cases, for the year.

New caseload composition was 23 percent criminal, 49 percent traffic, 28 percent civil; the state composition averaged 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, 31 percent civil.

New cases per judge averaged 14,873 while hearings per judge stood at 18,335. Hearings per case were 1.23 on the average. The caseload per judge figure ranked the district sixteenth among the rural districts and below the rural mean of 17,320.

The number of new cases reported by the juvenile and domestic relations district court fell by 3 percent between 1981 and 1982 with 8,047 being reported during the latest year. Hearings, however, showed a 9 percent rise reaching 19,208.

Nearly 59 percent of the new caseload was composed of juvenile cases which dropped by 7 percent to 4,709 in 1982. Adult cases grew by 3 percent or 80 cases during the period to reach 3,338. Within the district, increased caseloads were reported in Bedford (7%) and Nelson (12%). The caseloads of Amherst, Campbell, Lynchburg, and Waynesboro were listed below their respective 1981 caseloads.

The judges of the juvenile courts averaged 2,682 new cases each and 6,403 hearings. Rural averages for these two measures were 2,615 and 5,010, respectively. The hearings per case ratio stod at 2.39, above the rural average of 1.92.

Twenty magistrates served the seven localities of the Twenty-Fourth District. In the execution of their duties, the magistrates reported driving 47,[illegible]14 miles. During the year, they received 39,896 requests for processes, slightly less than the 41,550 recorded in 1981. Eighty-one percent of the transactions resulted in the issuance of processes. The 32,319 issued processes represented a decline of 5 percent from those reported the previous year. The magistrates issued 15,553 arrest warrants, 82 percent of the requested number. These were composed of 1,830 felonies, 11,230 misdemeanors, and 2,493 summonses. A total of 8,699 bonds were issued, 15 percent of which were secured. In all, 990 felony bonds and 7,709 misdemeanor bonds were issued in 1982.

Issued search warrants numbered 105; civil warrants processed totaled 153; and 68 temporary mental detention orders were executed. The magistrates issued 2,781 committals and 2,086 releases.

TWENTY-FIFTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The counties of Alleghany, Augusta, Bath, Botetourt, Craig, Highland, and Rockbridge as well as the cities of Buena Vista, Clifton Forge, Covington, Lexington, and Staunton make up the Twenty-Fifth Judicial Circuit. Effective July 1, 1983, the city of Waynesboro will be included in this circuit's service area. The 1980 population for the area was reported at 171,966, a 10 percent increase over the number of residents listed in 1970.

During 1982, circuit court judges were Rudolph Bumgardner III, William S. Moffett, Jr., and Duncan M. Byrd, Jr. A fourth judgeship has been authorized effective July 1, 1983, and will be filled by George E. Honts III. The population per circuit court judge of 57,322 ranked the area fifth highest among the 31 circuits. Statewide, the population figure was 46,093 residents per circuit court judge.

There were 4,233 cases commenced during 1982, which was a 12 percent decrease from the 4,820 new cases of 1981. Civil cases decreased by 7 percent while criminal cases fell by 19 percent. With the exception of the caseloads of Highland and Craig, which reported increases of 1 and 3 cases, respectively, all localities reported decreased caseloads for 1982. Decreases ranged from a 3 percent decline in Augusta to a 50 percent drop in Bath. Even with decreased caseloads, the three judges averaged 1,411 commenced cases each. This measure was ninth highest in the state and significantly above the rural mean of 1,206.

In 1982 the circuit court disposed of 3,770 cases, 739 fewer than in 1981. The largest change in terminated cases occurred in civil where a decrease of 411 cases (− 18%) was reported.

The caseload distribution was 15 percent law, 44 percent equity, 25 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor. The circuit was weighted more heavily with equity cases in comparison to the statewide distribution of commenced cases.

Juries concluded 9 fewer cases in 1982 than in the previous year. The 120 trials required 112 days of the courts' calendars.

In 1982, 1,487 criminal and 376 civil cases were assigned trial dates. Only 9 percent of the criminal cases could not be assigned in the present term; 32 percent of the civil cases were given dates 90 days ahead. Of the 1,854 criminal cases concluded, 78 percent were disposed of within five months while in the civil category 49 percent were concluded within one year.

The Twenty-Fifth District was authorized four general and three juvenile and domestic relations district court judges. Serving the general district court were William E. Carson, Sr., Joseph E. Hess, Elmer C. Westerman, Jr., and Thomas H. Wood. Robert S. Culpepper, John B. Curry II, and Harrison May served as juvenile and domestic relations district court judges. The judges of the district used 158.5 substitute and recalled retired judge days in fiscal year 1982.

The general district courts reported 58,611 new cases and 62,190 hearings in 1982. These figures represent an 11 percent increase in new cases and an 8 percent jump in hearings. Both criminal and traffic cases increased during the period (12% and 18%, respectively) while civil cases fell by 12 percent.

Within the district, Botetourt reported the most significant growth in new cases, increasing by 4,468 or 45 percent. Other localities recording caseload growth included: Augusta (5%), Bath (15%), Highland (32%), Rockbridge (7%), Buena Vista (10%), Lexington (16%), and Staunton (9%). Craig, Clifton Forge, and Alleghany closed 1982 with fewer cases than in 1981.

The hearing per case ratio for the Twenty-Fifth was 1.06, compared to a rural mean of 1.11. Judges of the district averaged 14,653 new cases, well below the rural average of 17,320.

The 1982 caseload was composed of 68 percent traffic, 17 percent criminal, and 15 percent civil cases. State averages are 52 percent traffic, 17 percent criminal, and 31 percent civil

In 1982, the juvenile and domestic relations district court caseload totaled 5,685 new cases and 10,145 hearings, growing from last year's figures by 1 percent and 3 percent, respectively. Adult cases were up 13 percent to reach 1,980 while juvenile cases fell by 199 or 5 percent to total 3,705 cases. Within the district, Highland, Lexington and Bath showed significant growth in their total caseloads increasing by 64 percent, 37 percent, and 12 percent, respectively. Augusta, Botetourt, Rockbridge, Buena Vista, and Clifton Forge reported increases of less than 10 percent. Decreases were noted with the caseloads of Craig (–26%), Alleghany (–14%), and Staunton (–4%).

The three judges of the Twenty-Fifth averaged 1,895 cases and 3,382 hearings each. This caseload ranked the district seventeenth among the 18 rural districts whose average was 2,615 cases per judge. The rural average for hearings per judge was 5,010. Hearings per case stood at 1.78.

The Twenty-Fifth District was authorized 29 magistrates including the chief magistrate during 1982. A total of 28,707 requests for processes, 13,885 telephone calls and 11,569 in-person inquiries were handled during the magistrates' combined 21,931 activity hours. Transactions and processes grew by less than one percent from the workload reported in 1981. Overall, the magistrates issued 92 percent of the requested processes.

During the past year, the magistrates issued 91 percent of the 12,632 requests for arrest warrants. These included 1,236 warrants for felonies, 9,986 for misdemeanors, and 322 summonses. Bond requests numbered 7,222 of which 6,146 were issued. Of the 2,108 secured bonds, 81 percent were for misdemeanors. The magistrates reported processing 1,171 subpoenas, 66 temporary mental detention orders, and 43 civil warrants. They also handled 3,752 committals and 2,947 releases.

TWENTY-SIXTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twenty-Sixth Judicial Circuit serves of the counties of Clarke, Frederick, Page, Rockingham, Shenandoah, and Warren and the cities of Harrisonburg and Winchester. The population of the circuit has increased 24 percent since 1970 to total 209,102, according to the 1980 U. S. Census. All localities grew in population during the decade with the most significant changes occurring in Frederick, Warren, and Harrisonburg.

The circuit was authorized three judgeships during 1982 and was served by Henry H. Whiting, Joshua L. Robinson, and Robert K. Woltz. An additional judgeship has been authorized effective July 1, 1983. The 1983 General Assembly elected Perry W. Sarver to fill the position. The population per circuit court judge of 69,734 was above the state mean of 46,093 and ranked the Twenty-Sixth second highest throughout the state.

There were 4,290 commenced cases in the Twenty-Sixth Circuit in 1982, 20 more cases than in 1981. This change was the result of 109 additional civil cases and 89 fewer criminal cases. All types of cases showed declines save the category of "other law" and "divorce" which grew by 16 and 8 percent, respectively. Within the circuit, three of the courts reported gains in their 1982 caseload: Page (16%), Winchester (6%), and Shenandoah (3%). Declines were noted in Frederick (-6%), Warren (-5%), Rockingham (-4%), and Clarke (-2%). The circuit ranked eighth highest in the state with regards to comenced cases per judge with a figure of 1,430, above the state mean of 1,284 and rural mean of 1,206.

The commenced caseload composition was 19 percent law, 35 percent equity (or 54% in civil), 37 percent felony, and 9 percent misdemeanor (or 46% in criminal). The statewide distribution was 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, 29 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor.

The judges of the Twenty-Sixth concluded 6 fewer cases in 1982 than in 1981, a total of 4,054 cases. This change was due to the termination of 194 additional criminal cases and 200 less civil cases.

During the year, juries concluded 266 cases, 5 percent more than in 1981. These trials required 211 days of the courts' calendars. The judges of the circuit averaged 89 jury trials each, which was the highest average throughout the Commonwealth. Examination of assigned cases shows that 30 percent of the 265 civil cases assigned trial dates were set more than 90 days ahead. Of the 1,219 assigned criminal cases, 31 percent could not be set within the present term. There were 2,133 civil terminations and 61 percent of these (1,305) were disposed of within one year of filing. Of the 1,921 criminal cases concluded, 84 percent (1,621) met disposition within five months.

The Twenty-Sixth District was served by four general district court judges and two juvenile and domestic relations district court judge in 1982. Serving were Robert E. Hayes, John A. Paul, Harold G. Potts, and David G. Simpson in the general district courts. Judges B. B. Bowers and Carle F. Germelman, Jr. heard juvenile and domestic relations cases. The judges of the district used a total of 156.3 substitute and recalled retired judge days, for an average of 26.1 each.

Representing a 5 percent rise from 1981, new general district cases totaled 80,215 for the year. There were 87,499 hearings and 79,284 dispositions. Hearings grew by 4 percent; dispositions increased by 3 percent.

All categories of cases grew in number in 1982 with traffic cases showing the greatest growth (7%) over 1981. Criminal and civil cases rose by 3 percent and one percent, respectively. The caseload composition was 15 percent criminal, 62 percent traffic, and 23 percent civil compared to a statewide composition of 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil.

Within the district, all but two localities showed increased caseloads. The increases ranged from 1 percent in Shenandoah to 28 percent in Page. The caseloads of Clarke and Rockingham/Harrisonburg decreased by less than 3 percent.

The new cases per judge measure was 20,054. This was fourth highest among the rural districts. State and rural averages for this measure were 20,473 and 17,320, respectively. Hearings per case numbered 1.09.

In the juvenile and domestic relations area, 7,546 new cases, 11,240 hearings, and 6,484 dispositions were reported. The new caseload was 2 percent more than in 1982. Hearings also grew, increasing by 5 percent. The increase in new cases was due to 649 additional adult cases offset by 506 fewer juvenile cases. Juvenile cases represented 57 percent of the total caseload compared to the state average of 63 percent.

With the exception of Rockingham/Harrisonburg and Shenandoah, all courts in the Twenty-Sixth reported higher caseloads in 1982 than in the previous year. Increases were calculated for Page (24%), Frederick (14%), Clarke (11%), Warren (10%), and Winchester (1%).

Nineteen magistrates were authorized in the Twenty-Sixth District. In 1982, they reported 20,518 hours of activity during which they received 13,049 telephone calls, 7,542 in-person inquiries, and 41,854 requests for processes. Transactions increased by 2 percent from the 40,899 reported in 1981. Eighty-four percent of the requests for action ended in a process being issued, similar to a statewide rate of 83 percent.

Of the 15,397 arrest warrants requested, 14,246 or 93 percent were issued. Bond requests numbered 14,648, of which 7,000 unsecured and 2,057 secured bonds were issued. Of the secured bonds issued, 79 percent were for misdemeanors. The magistrates also issued 1,532 civil warrants, 109 search warrants, and 46 temporary mental detention orders. Committals and releases numbered 5,006 and 4,490, respectively.

The counties of Carroll, Floyd, Grayson, Montgomery, Pulaski and Wythe along with the cities of Galax and Radford comprise the Twenty-Seventh Circuit. Since 1970, the population of the area has grown by 21 percent to a 1980 figure of 199,328, according to the U. S. Census. Within the circuit, Montgomery County continues to dominate the area with a population of 63,516.

The Twenty-Seventh circuit was served by three judges during 1982: R. William Arthur, Kenneth I. Devore, and Dale W. LaRue. Judge LaRue retired on March 1, 1983, and his vacancy was filled by A. Dow Owens. The 1983 General Assembly elected Duane E. Mink to fill an additional judgeship granted effective July 1, 1983. Total population per judge was 66,476, a rank of third highest in the state.

The commenced caseload was 4,449, an increase of 9 percent or 359 cases. Although civil cases fell by 48, the criminal caseload experienced a 24 percent gain and totaled 2,075 for the year. Within the criminal caseload, the largest change was noted with felonies, increasing by 266 cases. With the exception of Wythe (—8%) and Radford (–5%), all localities reported a growth in the number of cases commenced for the year. The range of change was a 10 percent increase in Montgomery's caseload to a 19 percent jump in Floyd's reported cases.

Cases per judge were reported as 1,480 for the year. This measure was well above the rural mean of 1,206 and ranked the circuit sixth highest among all 31 circuits. Of the total caseload, 17 percent were law, 36 percent equity, 31 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor. Statewide these figures were 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, 29 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor.

Concluded cases rose by less than 1 percent and totaled 4,087. Cases concluded by a jury trial numbered 136 and took 117 days of the courts' calendars. Criminal cases comprised 60 percent of the total jury trials and required 51 percent of the total days spent hearing these cases. Trial dates were assigned to 341 civil and 2,024 criminal cases with 115 or 34 percent of these civil cases being set 90 days or more ahead and 292 or 14 percent of the criminal cases not assigned to the present term. Of the 2,290 civil cases concluded, 57 percent reached termination within one year. Criminal cases were disposed of at a rate of 85 percent within five months of filing.

The Twenty-Seventh District was authorized three general district and three juvenile and domestic relations district court judges. In 1982, the general district courts were served by Judges George B. Cooley, James H. Joines, and John G. Snidow, Jr. Additionally, the district received regular assistance from the judges of the Twenty-Third Judicial District. The district's juvenile courts were handled by William F. Thomas, Jr., James L. Tompkins, Jacque W. Pierce, and G. Garland Wilson, who retired on March 1, 1982. A total of 164.9 substitute days were utilized during the past fiscal year.

New cases in the general district courts increased slightly in 1982. All case types noted growths with criminal cases increasing by 7 percent, traffic cases by 4 percent, and civil cases by 2 percent. Overall, a 4 percent growth was recorded in the district's new caseload.

Montgomery and Pulaski reported gains of 4 percent and 3 percent, respectively. The number of new cases in Grayson County fell by 36 percent, or 1,331 cases, when compared with their 1981 level. Other localities reporting declining caseloads were Floyd (-7%) and Wythe (-3%).

Caseload composition was 24 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 24 percent civil. State figures were 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic and 31 percent civil.

Per judge (3.4FTE), the district reported an average of 16,251 new cases and 18,837 hearings. This was below rural mean of 17,320 new cases and 19,925 hearings per judge. The hearings per case ratio of 1.16 placed above the state's rural average of 1.11.

The juvenile and domestic relations district courts reported 6,216 new cases during 1982, a drop of over 400 cases from 1981. Both juvenile and adult cases fell and recorded declines of 8 and 4 percent, respectively. Hearings in these courts increased by 2 percent and raised the hearing per case ratio to 1.86. The composition of the caseload was 60 percent juvenile and 40 percent adult. Statewide, these proportions were 63 percent and 37 percent.

Flory and Galax reported moderate gains of 10 percent and 4 percent in the number of 1982 new cases. All other localities recorded decreases: Grayson (– 23%), Wythe (– 17%), Montgomery (– 15%), Pulaski (– 5%), Carroll (– 1%), and Radford (– 1%).

TWENTY-EIGHTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Included in the Twenty-Eighth Judicial Circuit are the counties of Smyth and Washington and the city of Bristol. According to the 1980 U. S. Census, the area's population was 98,895, 14 percent greater than in 1970.

The circuit was authorized two judgeships during the past year. Charles B. Flannagan II and J. Aubrey Matthews served in the circuit. The population per judge was 49,448, thirteenth highest of the state's 31 circuits. The state average for this measure was 46,093.

Falling by 86 from the previous year, the commenced caseload totaled 2,095. There were 66 fewer civil cases and 20 fewer criminal cases in 1982. Within the circuit, the caseloads of Washington and Bristol were reported higher than in 1981. Smyth, however, noted 213 fewer commenced cases for a 24 percent drop.

The new caseload composition was 19 percent law, 40 percent equity, 25 percent felony, 15 percent misdemeanor, and one percent habeas corpus/post conviction. This shows a slightly higher proportion of civil cases (59%) than the statewide distribution of 55% civil and 45% criminal. The new caseload per judge figure of 1,048 ranked third lowest in the state, below the respective state and rural averages of 1,284 and 1,206 cases.

There were 1,136 civil and 900 criminal cases concluded in the circuit in 1982. Although concluded civil cases fell by 377, 57 additional criminal cases reached disposition last year. The total number of concluded cases totaled 2,036, a 14 percent decline from 1981's 2,356 terminations. Of the civil terminations, 68 percent (777) were disposed of within 12 months of filing. Three-fourths (684) of the criminal cases concluded met disposition within five months.

Juries concluded 129 cases, a 65 percent rise from 1981. These trials occupied 85 days of the courts' calendars. The jury trial per judge average of 65 was above the state average of 48. Of the 383 civil cases assigned trial dates, 22 percent (83) were set at least 90 days ahead. There were 679 criminal cases assigned dates with all of the cases heard in the present term.

Two general district court judges were authorized to serve in the Twenty-Eighth District in 1982. Francis M. Hoge and T. L. Hutton, Jr. served as judges. Judge Hoge retired on December 31, 1982, and was replaced by David D. Brown. In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, two judgeships were authorized effective July 1, 1982, with Charles H. Smith, Jr. and Eugene E. Lohman serving. The judges of the district used 69.5 substitute and recalled retired judges days in FY 1982.

The general district courts handled 29,131 new cases, 28,256 hearings, and 28,697 dispositions during the year. The decline of 2 percent in caseload was due to 4 percent (712) fewer traffic cases and 1 percent (30) fewer civil cases. Criminal cases increased by 3 percent (232). Within the district, Bristol and Smyth reported declines in new cases, falling by 882 and 240 cases, respectively. Washington County reported a 5 percent (612 cases) increase in their new caseload compared with their 1981 figures.

The new caseload composition was 26 percent criminal, 59 percent traffic, and 15 percent civil. This gives the district a greater proportion of criminal and traffic cases than the statewide distribution of 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil.

Ranking fifteenth in the rural districts, the measure of new cases handled per judge averaged 14,566. There were 14,128 hearings per judge in 1982 and the hearings per case ratio was 0.97.

In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, 5,246 new cases, 8,789 hearings and 4,427 dispositions were reported. With juvenile cases increasing by 22 percent and adult cases showing an increase of 14 percent, the total new juvenile and domestic relations caseload grew by 19 percent or 826 cases. Hearings increased by 13 percent from 1981 to 1982.

Within the district, Washington and Bristol Counties reported increases in new caseload of 57 percent (878 cases) and 16 percent (235 cases), respectively. Smyth County's caseload declined by 21 percent (287 cases). The district's caseload composition was 62 percent juvenile and 38 percent adult, very similar to the statewide proportion.

The ;judges averaged 2,623 new cases and 4,395 hearings during the year. This figure ranked eleventh highest among the 18 rural districts whose average caseload per judge was 2,615. The hearings per case ratio was 1.68 compared to a rural average of 1.92.

During 1982, ten magistrtate positions were authorized for the Twenty-Eighth District. The magistrtates reported 13,907 hours of activity during which they received 8,557 telephone calls and 7,826 in-person inquiries. They handled 34,134 requests for processes, which reflected an 18 percent increase over the 28,978 reported in 1981.

The magistrates issued 10,277 arrest warrants, of which 958 were for felonies, 8,777 for misdemeanors, and 542 summonses. Bond processes numbered 6,503 for 1982. Of the 2,289 secured bonds, only 16 percent were for felonies. The magistrates of the district reported issuing 41 search warrants and 31 temporary mental deteniton orders during the past year. Committals and releases numbered 5,565 and 5,488, respectively.

TWENTY-NINTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twenty-Ninth Judicial Circuit is composed of the southwestern Virginia counties of Bland, Buchanan, Dickenson, Giles, Russell, and Tazewell. According to the 1980 U. S. Census, this area experienced an overall population growth of 22 percent from 1970 to reach a 1980 listing of 164,226. Within the circuit, all jurisdictions reported increases in the number of residents.

During the last year, the Twenty-Ninth Circuit was authorized three judgeships which were filled by Nicholas E. Persin, Glyn R. Phillips, and Robert Lee Powell. Population per judge was 54,742, a ranking of eighth in the state, above the mean of 46,093.

The judges of the Twenty-Ninth commenced 4,548 new cases during 1982, an 8 percent increase from 1981. Civil cases increased by 9 percent (226 cases) and criminal cases grew by 6 percent (98 cases). Within the circuit, Buchanan showed an increase of 20 percent in commenced cases; Dickenson's caseload grew by 18 percent; Russell reported a 6 percent rise; and Tazewell's commenced cases were up by 3 percent. The caseloads of Bland and Giles were noted as lower than their 1981 levels by 29 percent and 2 percent, respectively. Commenced cases per judge averaged 1,516 or third highest in the Commonwealth. The state average was 1,284; rural average was 1,206 commenced cases per judge.

Concluded cases grew by 21 percent from 1981 reaching 4,890 for the year. Most significantly, 829 additional civil cases (35% increase) reached disposition during 1982. Cases concluded by a jury trial were reported as 140, 72 percent of which were criminal. The circuit utilized 120 days to hear these cases.

Of the 403 law cases set for trial, only 65 (or 16%) were not set within 90 days. Trial dates were assigned to 1,877 criminal cases, 646 (or 34%) of which were set beyond the present term. The age of concluded cases showed that less than half of the 3,172 civil cases met disposition within one year of filing; three-fourths of the 1,718 concluded criminal cases were disposed of within five months of filing.

In the Twenty-Ninth District three general district judgeships were authorized for 1982. Serving were Thomas J. Bondurant, Wade S. Coates, and Pat B. Hale. The juvenile and domestic relations district courts were served by Charles B. Andrews and Susan Bundy. The judges of the district used 95.5 substitute and recalled retired judge days, an average per judge of 19.1. The FY 1982 statewide average was 26 days.

In 1982, 47,618 new cases were commenced and 53,941 hearings were held. These figures represent increases of 9 percent and 3 percent, respectively, from 1981 statistics. Increases were noted in all case categories: civil cases jumped 13 percent (1,438 cases); traffic cases rose by 10 percent (2,105 cases); and criminal increased by 3 percent (277 cases). The 1982 caseload composition was 23 percent criminal, 50 percent traffic, and 27 percent civil. Statewide, these proportions were 17 percent, 52 percent, and 31 percent, respectively.

Within the Twenty-Ninth, the caseload of Bland grew by 34 percent, Tazewell by 19 percent, Dickenson by 4 percent, Buchanan by 2 percent and Giles by 2 percent.

Russell County noted a 5 percent decline in their 1982 caseload figures.

Cases per judge averaged 15,873, twelfth among rural districts and below the rural mean of 17,320. There were 17,890 hearings per judge and the hearings per case ratio was 1.13.

In the juvenile and domestic relations district courts, 6,010 new cases were reported, an increase of 5 percent from 1981's 5,704. Hearings also experienced growth, rising 16 percent to total 12,024. The new cases were composed of 62 percent juvenile and 38 percent adult. Juvenile cases reached 3,719, an increase of 12 percent. Adult cases fell by 3 percent and totaled 2,291 for the year.

Within the district, Bland showed the greatest change in J&DR caseload with a growth of 32 percent. The caseload of Buchanan, Giles, and Russell grew by 22 percent, 11 percent, and 7 percent, respectively. Both Tazewell and Dickenson recorded declines of 3 percent in their 1982 new caseloads.

The district was seventh among rural districts in new cases per judge with a figure of 3,005, above the rural mean of 2,615. Hearings per judge reached 6,012 and hearings per case averaged 2.00.

This southwestern district was authorized 21 magistrate positions for the last calendar year. During their 25,956 hours of activity, the magistrates received 64,394 requests for processes, 11 percent more than in 1981. Additionally, they responded to 30,000 individual inquiries. Processes were executed for 90 percent of the requests. This measure was higher than the statewide value of 83 percent.

The 57,827 processes included 14,537 arrest warrants, 11,189 civil warrants, and 10,576 bonds. Arrest warrants were issued at a rate of 9.6 per 10 requested, up from 1981's rate of 8.9:10. Of the 4,692 secured bonds, 3,921 (or 85%) were for misdemeanors. Among the unsecured bonds misdemeanors represented 96 percent of those issued. THIRTIETH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Thirtieth Judicial Circuit is comprised of the counties of Lee, Scott, and Wise as well as the city of Norton. The reported 1980 population for this southwestern circuit was 99,644, representing an increase of 17 percent since 1970.

The circuit was authorized three judgeships in 1982: S. W. Coleman III, M. M. Long, Jr., and John Robert Stump served during the year. The population per circuit court judge was 33,215, ranking twenty-eighth among all 31 circuits. The state mean for this measure was 46,093.

The circuit reported 3,722 new cases commenced in 1982, a 6 percent increase from 1981. Civil cases grew by 2 percent while criminal cases jumped 14 percent. Although the caseloads of Lee and Wise increased by 15 percent and 13 percent, respectively, Scott reported that 149 fewer cases (—19%) were commenced during the past year when compared with 1981 figures. The 1982 ratio of commenced cases per circuit court judge was calculated at 1,241, slightly above the rural measure of 1,206.

The 1982 composition of the circuit's commenced caseload was 26 percent law, 32 percent equity, 20 percent felony, and 22 percent misdemeanor. The statewide distribution was 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, 29 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor.

Concluded cases rose by 16 percent and totaled 3,352 for the year. The courts reported that 1,528 criminal cases reached disposition in 1982, 400 more than in 1981. Concluded civil cases reached 1,824, 56 more than in the previous year. Seven percent (244) of the total terminated cases were concluded by juries. These trials required 155 days of the courts' calendars. Trial dates were assigned to 494 civil cases with 192 cases being set more than 90 days ahead. Of the 1,907 assigned criminal cases, only 288 were not given trial dates in the present term. More than half of the 1,824 concluded civil cases were disposed of within one year of filing. Meeting disposition within five months were 968 of the 1,528 concluded criminal cases.

There were two general district court judgeships authorized in the Thirtieth District. Judges William C. Fugate and Monti S. Meeks served the courts in 1982. Effective July 1, 1982, two judgeships were also authorized for the juvenile and domestic relations district courts. These positions were filled by Richard E. Smith and James C. Roberson. The judges of the district each used 42.5 substitute and recalled retired judge days on the average during Fiscal Year 1982, a measure second highest through out the state's districts.

The Thirtieth District reported 31,239 new cases, 47,510 hearings, and 31,257 dispositions. New cases grew by 1 percent from 1981; hearings increased 3 percent; and dispositions rose by 5 percent. Within the district, Lee County showed the greates absolute and percentage growth. New cases there increased by 1,680 cases or 31 percent. Scott's caseload was relatively stable, growing by 1 percent (37 cases) while 1,389 fewer cases were initiated in Wise County.

The district's growth in new cases was the result of 659 additional traffic cases offset partially by 326 fewer criminal cases and 5 less civil cases. The caseload composition was 31 percent criminal, 44 percent traffic, and 25 percent civil, varying significantly from the state distribution. During 1982, the statewide composition was 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffi, and 31 percent civil.

The judges of the Thirtieth averaged 15,620 cases, thirteenth highest among the 18 rural districts and below the rural mean of 17,320. Each judge held 23,755 hearings on the average and there were 1.52 hearings per case.

In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, new cases totaled 4,045 or 178 fewer than in 1981. Hearings rose by 339 or 4 percent to reach 9,678. Adult cases fell by 8 percent to 1,923 while juvenile cases, declining by 1 percent, accounted for 52 percent of the total new commenced caseload. The average proportion of juvenile cases statewide was 63 percent.

Lee County's caseload remained constant with their 1981 figures, increasing by less than one percent. Scott and Wise noted declines of 10 percent and 5 percent, respectively.

The J&DR district court judges each handled an average of 2,023 cases, fifteenth among rural districts. Hearings per judge average 4,839, below the rural mean of 5,010. The hearings per case ratio was 2.39, tying for highest among all rural area.

Twelve magistrates were authorized for the Thirtieth District during 1982. They reported receiving 36,822 requests for processes during their 16,146 hours of service. Eighty-six percent of the requests resulted in a process being issued. The 31,545 processes represented a 4 percent increase over the number executed in 1981.

Of the 10,114 requests for arrest warrants, the magistrates issued 1,180 felony warrants, 8,347 misdemeanor warrants, and 426 summonses. Secured bonds numbered 3,500 or 53 percent of the total bonds issued. Of the total secured, 625 were for felonies. During the last year, 4,111 civil warrants, 285 subpoenas, and 55 search warrants were granted by the magistrates of the Thirtieth. Committals and releases numbered 5,875 and 4,425, respectively.

THIRTY-FIRST JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Prince William County and the cities of Manassas and Manassas Park comprise the Thirty-First Judicial Circuit. Increasing in population by 50 percent during the last decade, the U. S. Census lists the area as having 166,665 residents.

During 1982, the Thirty-First was authorized three judgeships. Judges H. Selwyn Smith, Jr., Percy Thornton, Jr., and Herman A. Whisenant, Jr. served in the circuit courts. Ranking seventh in the state, the circuit's population per judge measure was 55,555.

The Thirty-First reported 4,145 commenced cases, up 11 percent from 1981's 3,737. Civil and criminal caseloads both reported gains, increasing by 209 and 199 cases, respectively. The most significant growth occurred in the number of misdemeanor cases, raising by 163 (or 48%). On the average, each judge handled 1,382 cases, a measure tenth highest among the 31 circuits. The 1982 state and urban means were 1,284 and 1,302 cases per circuit court judge.

The commenced caseload was weighted 66 percent civil (25% law, 41% equity) and 34 percent criminal, (22% felony, 12% misdemeanor). This distribution had a higher proportion of civil cases than the statewide breakout of 55 percent civil and 45 percent criminal.

Concluded cases decreased to 3,663. This change was the result of 488 fewer civil cases being concluded in 1982. This was partially offset by a gain of 235 criminal concluded cases. Of the total concluded cases, juries disposed of 147 cases, 29 civil and 118 criminal. These trials required 145 days of the court's calendar.

Nearly 70 percent (1,647) of the 2,399 civil cases reached disposition within 12 months of filing. On the criminal side, 1,037 (or 82%) of the 1,264 concluded cases were terminated within five months.

During 1982, the district was authorized three general district court and two juvenile and domestic relations district court judges. Serving the general district court were Frank A. Hoss, Jr., William R. Murphy, and Joseph A. Gallagher; J&DR cases were heard by Judges Patrick D. Molinari and Raymond O. Kellem. During Fiscal Year 1982, the district's judges averaged 14.1 substitute and recalled retired judge days each, a measure second lowest throughout the Commonwealth's districts.

Increasing by 13 percent over 1981 figures, the general district new caseload reached 73,871 for the past year. Civil new cases, representing 17 percent of the total caseload, grew by 20 percent or slightly more than 2,000 cases. Traffic increased by 5,892 cases and comprised 71 percent of the total new cases. Growing by nearly 700, criminal cases made up the remaining 12 percent of the Thirty-First's caseload. The statewide distribution of new cases was 17 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil.

The judges of the district averaged 24,624 new cases and 25,929 hearings each during the year. The measure of cases per judge ranked fifth highest among the urban areas, whose mean was 23,474. The district's hearing per case ratio was 1.05, compared to the urban figure of 1.24.

The number of juvenile and domestic relations cases grew by 6 percent from 1981 and totaled 9,095. Hearings, however, fell slightly by 2 percent and numbered 15,281. Adult cases increased significantly by 28 percent and represented slightly more than one-quarter of the total caseload. Reported as 19 fewer than 1981's 6,754 cases, juvenile new cases represented the bulk of the new cases (75%). The statewide composition of J&DR cases was 63 percent juvenile and 37 percent adult.

Averaging 4,548 new cases each, the judges of the Thirty-First ranked third highest among the 32 districts for the measure of caseload per judge. Hearings per judge averaged 7,641 (above the urban mean of 6,708) and the hearings per case ratio was calculated as 1.68.

During 1982, the Thirty-First District was authorized 11 magistrates, including a chief. The magistrates reported 18,060 hours of activity during which they received 32,728 phone calls, and 14,141 in-person inquiries. They handled 53,569 requests for processes, a 5 percent increase over 1981's 50,968 transactions. Processes grew by 8 percent and totaled 45,459.

The magistrates issued 12,606 arrest warrants, of which 1,377 were for felonies; 10,376 for misdemeanors; and 853 summonses. Bonds were issued at a rate of 5.8 per 10 requested. Of the 2,492 secured bonds, 550 were for felonies. Misdemeanors represented 95 percent of the 7,577 unsecured bonds. The magistrates also processed 2,820 subpoenas, 502 civil warrants, 66 temporary mental detention orders, and 63 search warrants during 1982.
